ITALY ABOLISHES ALL POLITICAL PARTIES BUT ONE MUSSOLINI RULES

Premier Drives Single-Constituency Fascist Bill Through Senate Over Strong Opposition.

'SYNDICALISM NOW WITHIN THE STATE'

Premier Declares 'Universal Suffrage Conventional Fiction With Divergent Results.

By the Associated Press.

ROME, May 12.—Premier Mussolini today won the support of the Italian Senate for the new electoral law making Italy a one-party constituency by a speech in which he again termed universal suffrage a conventional fiction and argued for the abolition of all parties except the State.

The Senate voted 161 to 45 to adopt the law which the Chamber of Deputies already had approved.

Vigorous opposition to the bill developed in the debate. Senators Rufini and Albertini spoke against it and 42 Senators signed a resolution declaring the law would deprive the people of their constitutional right to choose their own representatives freely.

Mussolini told the Senators that the bill was as much a consequence of Fascist doctrine as it was a result of the de facto situation in the country. It is not only to have the entire chamber of one party and one political color, but to acknowledge syndicalism as the organ of public law.

Syndicalism Within the State.

"This is a great legislative novelty of the Fascist revolution," he said. "It means that syndicalism, having become an organ of the public law, is no longer outside the State or against the State, but within the State, acknowledged by it, and as such has the right to represent all categories of citizens.

"Besides, in the regime of parties is the people really sovereign, especially when we have reached such a point that 35 tickets of 35 different parties have asked the people to exercise their paper sovereignty? In the regime of parties, elections are really made by uncontrollable committees and the people are asked only to ratify choices already made.

"I have no scruple in stating that universal suffrage is a purely conventional fiction. It says nothing, means nothing, and gives the most divergent results."

Laughs Constitution to Scorn.

Taking up the accusation that the Government is not respecting the Constitution, Mussolini asked: "Has anybody ever thought that the Constitution is eternal, instead of temporary?"

"Indeed," he went on, "Article 37 of the declaration of the rights of man says, 'All constitutions can be revised because no generation has the right to submit to its laws the following generations.'

"The only things eternal are religious laws, the decalogue, for instance—unchangeable, its 10 articles are good for the peoples of all altitudes, longitudes and latitudes. Rather, constitutions are merely the result of special historical circumstances."

The Premier then took up the history of the Italian Constitution. He pointed out how different is the Italy of today from the little Piedmont of 1848 when the Constitution was granted. "If so great and important progress has been achieved in the last 80 years," he said, "it is easy to imagine what developments Italy will have during the next 50 or 80 years, especially if the present concord of all citizens will last, if the State will continue to be the arbiter of every political and social controversy, if everything be in the State, nothing outside the State, because today it is impossible to conceive of an individual outside the State except a savage individual, who can claim for himself only the solitude of the sands of the desert."

Twenty-Three Oil Wells Ablaze.

BUCHAREST, May 12.—Twenty-three oil wells of the Astromano Co. were blazing like a gigantic torch tonight in the Ocuri district. Two engineers were burned to death. Property damage is enormous. Firemen were fighting to prevent the flames from being carried by the strong winds to adjacent wells.

TWIN SISTERS HAVE THE SAME GRADES IN SCHOOL CLASSES

Leota and Leola Simpson, 18, Tied for Third Place in Collinsville Township.

Twin sisters attending the Collinsville Township High School, in the class to be graduated next month, have made exactly the same average grade for all their studies during their four years in the school—90.4 per cent, and are tied for third place in the class.

They are Leota and Leola Simpson, 18 years old, daughters of Mr. and Mrs. James Simpson. Their father is an auditor at the Fairmount Race Track. They pursued different courses of study and, unlike many twins, wear different styles of clothes. They have a general resemblance in features. It has not been decided whether they will go to college.

The highest average grade in the class is 92.5 per cent, attained by Gladys Bertram.

COL. LINDBERGH AN APT PUPIL AT NAVIGATION, SAYS TUTOR

Lieutenant-Commander Weems Concludes Course of Instruction and Reports Progress.

By the Associated Press.

CURTISS FIELD, N. Y., May 12.—Col. Charles A. Lindbergh has made satisfactory progress in his study of aerial navigation, Lieutenant-Commander P. V. Weems, who has been tutoring the trans-Atlantic flyer, said today.

Weems today concluded a special leave from the Navy Department granted at Lindbergh's request for the purpose of instructing the flyer in aerial navigation. The naval officer plans to leave tonight or tomorrow for Los Angeles to rejoin his ship, the Cuyama.

"Col. Lindbergh was able to reduce his time for finding the line of position during the daytime to three minutes and during the night, when speed is most essential, to one minute," Weems said.

SCHOOL CANARY'S LIFE SAVED BY OPERATION

40 Kindergarten Pupils Plunged in Gloom Until Crushed Egg Is Removed From Warbler.

The kindergarten of the De Mun School, Northwood and De Mun avenues, has two pet canaries which perch in their cage in the classroom and sometimes brighten the routine of recitations with a few warbled notes. Shortly after the lunch hour Friday, 40 or 50 small pupils were plunged into gloom and anxiety when "Sunshine," the female bird collapsed.

A hurry call was sent for Dr. F. W. Shaffer, veterinarian who conducts a bird hospital at 4634 Delmar boulevard. After rushing it to the hospital, he found that an egg had been crushed within the bird. He performed an operation, removing the egg, and yesterday the bird was able to eat and sit on its perch again. It will be taken back to its cage in the school tomorrow.

POLL IN PARIS NAMES EDISON HEAD OF WORLD'S INVENTORS

Newspaper Conducts Voting Contest; Jacquard, Designer of Textile Loom, Is Second.

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, May 12.—Thomas A. Edison heads the list of the world's great inventors, in a voting contest conducted by a Paris newspaper. The American was the favorite because of the benefit of his works to humanity. The phonograph and the electric lamp are given as his principal achievements.

The next four inventors, in order, are Jacquard, inventor of the textile loom; Ampere, father of the electromagnet, because that led to the perfection of the telegraph and telephone; Ader, given credit for getting off the ground in the first heavier-than-air flying machine, and Branly, whose work contributed much to practical wireless.

LOUIS E. MILLER OUT FOR OFFICE OF CIRCUIT ATTORNEY

Lawyer, 29, Who Worked Way at Two Universities by Odd Jobs, Announces He Will Seek Nomination

STATEMENT ASSAILS RECORD OF SIDENER

Third Republican Candidate to Declare Says Crisis Is at Hand, Citing Corruption and Crime.

Louis E. Miller, 29-year-old lawyer who worked his way through Kentucky and St. Louis Universities by firing furnaces, waiting on tables and serving as a librarian, enlivened the local political situation yesterday by announcing he would file for the Republican nomination for Circuit Attorney.

Former service man and American Legion member, Miller promised a vigorous campaign "with plenty of socking." He says he is frankly out to attack Circuit Attorney Howard Sidener, who has filed for re-election. Miller is the third Republican candidate to declare, the first being Edward Rudolph, former Assistant Circuit Attorney.

While the newest arrival in the race for the Circuit Attorneyship on the Republican side has not at this time lined up any tangible political support, he has been active in G. O. P. organization politics. He has made political speeches in support of Former Mayor Kiel and for Louis P. Aloe when the latter ran for Mayor. Miller has offices in the Chemical building with Circuit Judge Granville Hogan, and the Kiel-Aloe faction in the city politics is friendly to him.

Raps Sidener's Record.

Miller, in his announcement, took a sharp rap at Circuit Attorney Sidener's record.

"Great and powerful organizations devoted entirely to a course of crime have been permitted to prosper and prey upon the lives and property of the citizens of this city," Miller said. "The public streets have become the private battleground of contending gangsters; businesses have been wrecked, the accumulated savings of innocent and industrious investors have been wiped out, men in positions of power have misappropriated thousands of dollars without the penalty of one day's atonement.

"It is a pathetic commentary on the enforcement of criminal laws in St. Louis. And this has transpired beneath the nose of the incumbent, either through official neglect or his admitted inability to cope with conditions. There can never be a compromise with crime. Murder is too malicious and human life certainly too precious to be appraised in money. Any prosecutor who will permit a price to be placed upon human life not only prostitutes the office he fills, but betrays the people, and by so doing should forfeit whatever claim he may have had to the public's approval.

Says Crisis Is at Hand.

"A crisis is at hand. The Republican party will be called to account for the conduct of the office of Circuit Attorney in St. Louis unless it unequivocally repudiates a record that can neither be defended by reason nor justified by apology. The office demands at this time action instead of age; a vigorous prosecutor instead of a political patriarch, and repeated convictions instead of inexcusable acquittals."

In conclusion Miller pledged himself, if elected, to "enforce the criminal laws fairly, faithfully and fearlessly."

Miller is a native of Washington County, Ky., and was educated in the public schools there. After a course at the University of Kentucky he entered St. Louis University, working his way through. He graduated in 1921 at the top of his class and was admitted to the bar. He has practiced law here since that time. He resides at 5069 Lindenwood avenue and is unmarried.

Coolidge Pardons Dry Law Violator

By the Associated Press.

WINONA, Minn., May 12.—A. L. Lennon, State Senator from Minneapolis, convicted of conspiracy to violate the prohibition law, was released from jail here today after being pardoned by President Coolidge. Lennon was sentenced in 1924 to one year in jail, and he began serving his time Oct. 26, 1927, after losing court appeals. He was an officer of an Eagles' lodge in Minneapolis when it was raided by Federal prohibition officers, who alleged a liquor bar was in operation in the lodge.

MEXICO ORDERS NINE NUNS AND TWO PRIESTS BANISHED

Church Workers, Arrested in Oaxaca, Are Accused of Violating State Religious Laws.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

MEXICO CITY, May 12. — The Mexican Ministry of Interior today ordered the banishment of nine nuns and two priests who were arrested at San Cristobal, Oaxaca, charged with violating the State religious regulations. It is understood they will be sent to Guatemala.

The Mexican Government's order for the banishment of nine nuns and two priests follows closely the encyclical of Pope Pius XI deploring the anti-church laws of certain countries. While the Pontiff did not specify any nations by name, it is believed he referred to Mexico and Soviet Russia.

There is a bitter conflict in progress in Mexico between the State and the Catholic church as the result of the religious regulations promulgated more than a year ago.

BILL PROPOSES TO DEPRIVE MISSOURI OF TWO ELECTORS

Reapportionment Measure Introduced in House by McLeod of Michigan.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, May 12.—A bill to apportion the electors of the Electoral College in accordance with the proposed reapportionment of congressional representation under the Fenn measure was introduced today by Representative McLeod (Rep.), Michigan.

Under his proposal, Connecticut, New Jersey, North Carolina, Texas and Washington would gain one elector each, Ohio and Michigan each would gain two, and California three. Missouri would lose two and Indiana, Iowa, Kansas, Kentucky, Louisiana, Maine, Rhode Island, Vermont, Mississippi and Nebraska one each.

ITALIA'S CREW FIGHTS STORM

Men Try to Keep Dirigible From Being Buried in Snow.

By the Associated Press.

ROME, May 13. (Sunday)—A violent snowstorm is raging in Kings Bay, Spitzbergen; says a late wireless dispatch from the base ship Citti Di Milan. Crews of both the ship and the dirigible Italia were reported to be working unceasingly to prevent the dirigible from being snowed in. Gen. Nobile, leader of the expedition, has assumed personal charge of the clearing operations.

Official dispatches last night said the motor of the Italia, which was damaged on landing Friday, had been repaired.

TAKOJI AND BRIDE IN FRANCE

Ex-Maharajah of Indore and Wife Retire to St. Germain Chateau.

By the Associated Press.

ST. GERMAIN, France, May 12.—Sir Tukoji Rao, former Maharajah of Indore, and his third wife, the former Nancy Ann Miller of Seattle, Wash., took up their residence in the newly purchased Chateau Aigremont today with the apparent determination to live the retired life of country landlords.

Neither has spoken a word for publication since their landing at Marseilles yesterday. Their extensive retinue of servants and aids also appears to have been stricken dumb on landing in France. Photographers and reporters today got no farther than the walls inclosing the beautiful estate.

STREET CAR MEN ACCEPT MAYOR'S CALL FOR PARLEY

Workers Say They Are Willing to Meet Officers of Company and Discuss Dispute Over Wages.

EMPLOYERS STILL SILENT ON COURSE

Stanley Clarke, Executive Vice President, Says He Has Not Seen Miller's Letter Asking for Conference

Officers of the street car men's union announced they would accept the Mayor's invitation, issued yesterday, to meet officers of the Public Service Co. in the Mayor's office Wednesday at 10:30 a. m. for discussion of their wage dispute.

Stanley Clarke, executive vice president of the company, declined to say what the company would reply. The Mayor's invitation was not sent to Clarke, who is the ranking operating officer of the company, but to A. L. Shapleigh, president, who is not active in operation and is out of the city.

Clarke said he had not seen the Mayor's letter and added that he would not announce the company's reply until it was in the hands of the Mayor. Murray Douglas, president of the union, said that its officers were "ready and willing to meet the company's officers at any time."

As is known, the men are asking for an increase of 5 cents an hour for trainmen and from 5 to 10 cents an hour for shop and maintenance men. The company has countered with a proposal to reduce wages of all employes, 3500 union man and 1200 men not in any union, 8.42 per cent. The union men and 1200 men not in officers to call a strike on June 2 if the company makes effective its proposed cut.

The Mayor's letter to Shapleigh said that the city contemplated the possibility of a general street car strike with "grave apprehension." Urging that every reasonable effort be made to avert a strike, the Mayor wrote Shapleigh: "I am relying on your well-known public spirit to help us reach a fair settlement of the present controversy."

The regular semi-monthly meeting of the union will be held tomorrow in two groups, morning and evening, at 4030 Chouteau avenue. Louis A. Graeser, secretary of the union, said that a possible strike would be discussed, but repeated that no strike before June 2 was likely unless the company precipitated by some act which the union regarded as overt, such as the assemblage of strike-breakers.

Last night the Executive Committee of the car men's union met at 8 o'clock for a three-hour session. Graeser said at the close of the meeting that it had been limited to a general discussion of the situation.

Public Service Body Arbitrated Pay Dispute in 1919.

SOON after Receiver Rolla Wells took charge of the United Railways in 1919, the employes made demands upon him for an increase in wages, calculated at 60 per cent.

At the time the wages of trainmen ranged from 36 to 48 cents an hour for a 9-hour day, which was to be completed in 10 to 15 hours.

The new demands were: An 8-hour day to be completed in nine hours; eight hours' pay for any time under eight hours; time and a half for overtime; a guarantee of $110 a month minimum for motormen and conductors on the extra list, instead of $70 then paid; wages of 55 cents an hour for the first three months of employment; 60 cents for the following nine months and 65 cents thereafter.

The Receiver told the men that full compliance with their demands would require an increase of 2 or 3 cents in the existing 6 cent carfare. He noted that the only authority to grant such an increase was the State Public Service Commission and suggested that, inasmuch as the commission under the law which created it was authorized to act as an arbitrator in any dispute affecting a utility, the dispute be referred to the commission.

Without much demurring, the men agreed, and almost immediately the commission came to St. Louis and sat as a Board of Arbitration. The taking of evidence required only two days and the company and the union united in asking for an early decision to

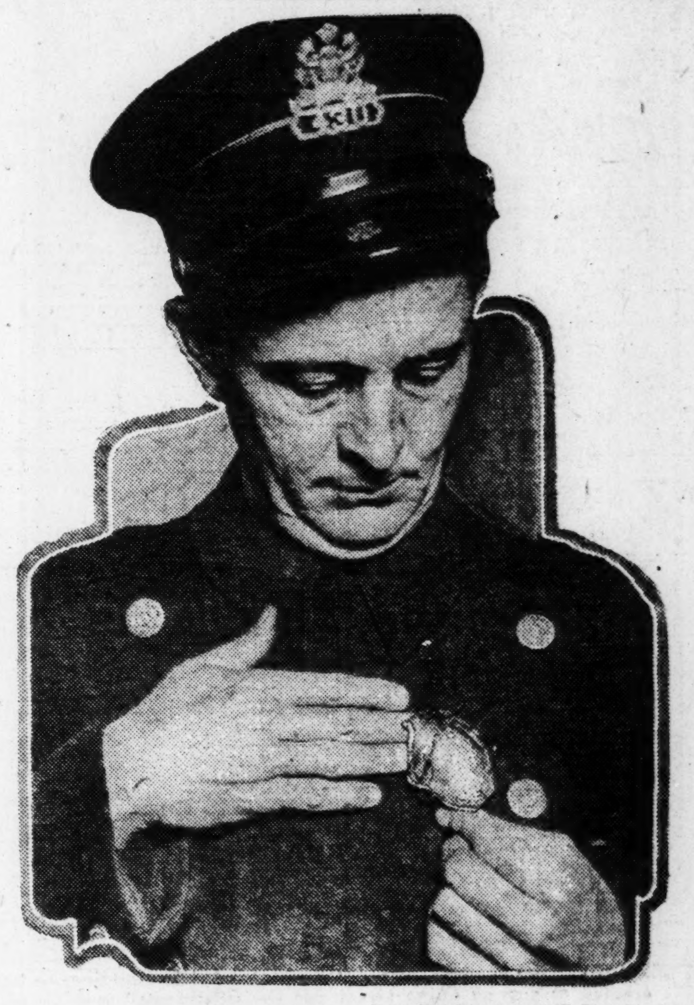
Police Badge Which Saved Owner's Life



—By a Post-Dispatch Staff Photographer.

PATROLMAN ROBERT E. DALTON
Pointing to indentation of his police badge, which deflected a robber's bullet.

ROBBER'S BULLET HITS POLICEMAN'S BADGE

Robert E. Dalton's Life Saved by Shield— Captures Suspect.

Police badge No. 430 was retired from active service yesterday. It has a deep dent in the lower right corner. Yesterday morning this badge reposed on the breast of Patrolman Robert E. Dalton when a robber fired point blank at the policeman's heart. The badge stopped the bullet and saved Patrolman Dalton's life.

Patrolman Dalton was given a new badge, No. 1035, accepted the congratulations of brother officers on his luck and pluck, and returned to duty. The police report states that, after being knocked flat on his back by the force of the bullet, Patrolman Dalton pursued the two young robbers who figured in the affair and captured one of them.

The set-to with the robbers occurred in a cigar store at 4478 Easton avenue at 9:45 o'clock. When surprised by Patrolman Dalton, the robbers had held up Eugene LeGuerrier, proprietor, and Thomas Keeshen of 4708 Page boulevard, a customer, and had taken from them $57 and a watch.

Follows Robbers Into Store.

Dalton related the occurrence to a Post-Dispatch reporter as follows:

"I saw two young fellows enter the cigar store and they didn't look good to me so I moseyed in behind them. I walked toward a curtained partition half way back. One of the robbers rushed toward me. He gave it to me and I fell flat on my back beside the cigar counter. His pal followed him. He had a pistol, too. He pointed it at me and I thought he was going to shoot, but he didn't. I guess he thought his pal had done for me. I picked myself up and followed the robbers.

"When I got out the door I fired one shot at them and missed. A man got in my way and I could not shoot any more. I got in a passing automobile and chased the robbers. At Newstead and Finney I saw a young man standing on the corner, apparently waiting for a car.

Suspect Denies Shooting.

"I said, 'I believe that's the fellow.' I got out and covered him with my revolver. I said, 'You're the guy that gave it to me.' He denied it. He was all out of breath and his hands were cut. In the yard of the David Ranken Jr. Trades School nearby we found a pistol. It had two loaded and one discharged cartridge."

The young man arrested by Patrolman Dalton gave his name as David Murphy, 28 years old, of 1508A North Grand boulevard. Police report he was identified as one of the robbers by Keeshen, a former policeman, and two women whose names are withheld. No weapon or money was found in Murphy's pockets.

Dalton is 47 years old and resides at 2550A University street. He has been in the department 21 years.

'JURY' RULES ITALIAN PAIR MUST FIGHT DUFL

Editor's Letter to Former Fascist Officer Demands Challenge, It Is Decided.

By the Associated Press.

ROME, May 12.—A "jury of honor" decided today that a duel is the only way that Roberto Farinacci, former secretary of the Fascist party, and Editor Settimelli of the Impero satisfactorily could settle their dispute.

A jury found that the editor had written a letter to Farinacci couched in excessive and unjustified terms, and regretted that the dispute between the pair which had hitherto "been maintained within the usual journalistic bounds, could have had such an epilogue."

Consequently the jury decided the difference should be followed up by the methods "normally imposed by chivalrous custom. Farinacci has named as his seconds Umberto Guglielmotti, secretary of the Rome Fascists, and Mino Mori, while the editor has selected his co-workers, Mario Carli and Mario Dessy.

The fiery Roberto Farinacci has been in one violent dispute after another since aiding the triumphant growth of fascism. In September, 1924, he was reported to have been wounded in a duel by Prince Pignatelli. In the last two years he has received three other challenges, although the duels later were called off. At least two attempts have been made to assassinate him. His ungovernable tongue finally led him into a clash with his chief, Mussolini, which was promptly followed by his resigning from his post in the party.

SENATE VOTES FOR INQUIRY INTO CHAIN STORE SYSTEM

Purpose Is to Learn if Anti-Trust Law Is Violated or Regulation Is Required.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, May 12.—The Senate today adopted the Brookhart resolution directing the Federal Trade Commission to inquire into the chain store system of merchandising.

The investigation is to cover "the chain store system of marketing and distribution as conducted by manufacturing, wholesaling, retailing or other types of chain stores."

The commission is instructed to report to the Senate its findings concerning the possible extent to which such consolidations have been effected in violation of the anti-trust laws, their possible susceptibility to regulation by present laws and "what legislation, if any, should be enacted for the purpose of regulating and controlling chain-store distribution."

HOOVER CLOSEST TO STANDARD SET FOR CANDIDATE, SAYS MELLON

At Caucus He Urges Pennsylvanians, However, Not to Pledge Their Votes to Anybody.

CHOSEN CHAIRMAN OF DELEGATION

Treasury Head Advises It to Keep Free for "Fullest Liberty of Choice" at Kansas City.

By the Associated Press.

PHILADELPHIA, May 12.—Accepting the chairmanship of the Pennsylvania delegation to the Republican National convention today, Secretary of the Treasury Mellon told the delegates that of all the candidates for the presidency, Herbert Hoover "seems to come closest to the standard that we set for this high office," but added: "However, between now and the convention I recommend that we hold ourselves unpledged and uncommitted to any particular candidate, so that when we meet in caucus in Kansas City before the convention we will have the fullest liberty of choice to do as is best for Pennsylvania and the nation."

Committee Reorganized.

Mellon was unanimously elected chairman by the caucus of delegates who also completed their organization for the convention.

Before the caucus the Republican State Committee held its biennial reorganization meeting in preparation for the coming presidential and State campaign.

Gen. W. W. Atterbury, president of the Pennsylvania Railroad System, was unanimously elected the Pennsylvania member of the National Committee, and Gen. Edward Martin, Auditor-General and candidate for State Treasurer, was elected chairman of the State Committee. Atterbury succeeds former Senator George Wharton Pepper, and Martin takes the place of William L. Mellon, nephew of the Secretary of the Treasury. Neither of the retiring officers was a candidate for re-election.

Mellon's Speech.

Following is the text of Mellon's speech to the delegates:

"I thank you for the honor you have done me in selecting me as your chairman. It is a very real honor, for ours is a very real responsibility. The man selected by the Republican convention as the nominee of our party will in all human probability be the next President of the United States. At Kansas City, therefore, we will not merely be nominating a candidate, but selecting a President.

"Under the leadership of President Coolidge the record of the Republican party has been such to entitle it to the confidence of the nation.

"It enjoys that confidence. The people unquestionably give us a new grant of power if they are satisfied that the policies, principles and wise administrative practices which have given economic and efficiency in government and brought prosperity and contentment to the people are to be continued.

Mentions Hoover's Name.

"Our platform must furnish a definite pledge that they will. But more important than the platform is the nominee. His views, character and record must be such as to furnish a guarantee that Republican principles will be upheld, that no backward steps will be taken and that the policies so successfully inaugurated and followed by our great President will be carried forward.

"We hear much talk of the various candidates and of their policies. Among them all Mr. Hoover seems to come closes to the standard that we set for this high office.

"Between now and the convention, however, I recommend that we hold ourselves unpledged and uncommitted to any particular candidate so that when we meet in caucus in Kansas City before the convention we will have the fullest liberty of choice to do as is best for Pennsylvania and the nation."

"Anything Might Happen."

After the caucus Mellon good-humoredly answered questions put to him by a group of newspaper men. He said he felt that earnest consideration should be given to the qualifications of all candidates. If one commits oneself, he said, it is always difficult to get out of, in the event of a changed situation,

$1,500,000 FOR 20-STORY BUILDING AT 3611-17 OLIVE

Continental Life Insurance Co. and Grand National Bank to Occupy Part of It.

EXPECT TO BE IN NEW HOME NEXT YEAR

Structure Will Be 250 Feet High, With a Front of White Limestone, Top Stories Forming a Tower.

Construction of a $1,500,000 skyscraper home for the Continental Life Insurance Co. and Grand National Bank on a 100-foot lot at 3611-17 Olive street will begin soon, and it is planned to occupy the structure early next year.

The building will be 20 stories or 250 feet high, which is the limit for it under the zoning law, and the same height as the Railway Exchange Building, thus becoming one of the tallest five buildings in town. Standing on high ground near Grand boulevard and Olive street, it will dominate the skyline of the uptown amusement and commercial center. Many other notable structures have risen in this vicinity in the last few years.

White Indiana limestone will be used for the front wall. The exterior design is in the new American skyscraper style, accenting vertical lines. There will be a slight recession of the front wall above the second story and a setback all around above the fifteenth floor, the upper five floors producing a tower effect. William B. Ittner is the architect.

The bank will occupy the two lower floors and Continental Life about six or seven of the upper stories, while the rest of the space will be rented. The banking section will extend the full 152-foot depth of the lot to an alley, while the upper part will be only 56 feet deep. Provision will be made for eventual addition of about eight or nine more floors in the rear. The structure will be known as the Continental Life Building.

The lot adjoins Hotel Beers, which 's on the Grand boulevard corner. It cost $240,000, which is included in the total estimate of the expense of the project. Forty-eight years ago, the late Gustavus A. Scruggs, merchant, paid $10,000 for the same land, when development of the West End had just begun. The recent sale was for his estate.

At present the Grand National Bank is at 507 North Grand boulevard and Continental Life in a small office building at Tenth and Olive streets, where its lease will expire March 1 next. These concerns are controlled by the same interests, Ed Mays being president of both.

3 INDICTED FOR BANK CRASH

Nine True Bills Returned in Westline, Mo., Case.

By the Associated Press.

HARRISONVILLE, Mo., May 12. Nine indictments were returned today by a grand jury investigating the affairs of the Bank of Westline, Mo., which failed March 19.

Seven of the bills were returned against M. N. Stark, former cashier of the bank and charge falsifying records of a moneyed corporation, making excessive loans, embezzlement and receiving deposits when he knew the bank was insolvent. Indictments charging falsifying records were returned against Jacob Weisser, a Cass County oil inspector, and C. U. Canfield, an insurance agent.

HOOVER CLOSEST TO STANDARD SET FOR CANDIDATE, SAYS MELLON

Anything might happen at a political convention, and it was best for the delegates to move cautiously.

Asked whether there was a possibility that President Coolidge might be renominated, Mellon replied: "You know as much about that as I do."

Referring to Hoover, Mellon said that the candidacy of the Secretary of Commerce "had covered the widest area and made the greatest progress" of all those in the field.

Mellon said he was not a candidate, when asked whether he would permit the Pennsylvania delegation to vote for him.

W. S. Vare, Philadelphia leader, elected to the Senate in 1926 and not yet permitted to take his seat, was appointed to the convention committee on resolutions.

avert a strike. That was Aug. 6. The arbitrators made their award Aug. 16, equivalent to a 45 per cent increase in pay, in substance as follows: 50 cents an hour for trainmen in their first year; 55 cents in their second and third years and 60 cents an hour thereafter; a minimum 8-hour day was established to be completed in from 9 to 14 hours; overtime was to be at time and a half if required by the company, but if volunteered, at straight wages.

The new schedules were made retroactive to the extent of awarding the men $684,000. The commission estimated that the increase would add $2,740,000 to operating expenses. The Receiver asked for a 10-cent fare. The City replied that the company, by economies, could exist on the 6-cent fare. Sept. 20 the commission established an 8-cent cash fare with two token for 15 cents. The fare produced so adequately for the company that the commission, in April, 1920, reduced it to 7 cents.

The men obtained another increase in pay in 1923 by negotiation with the receiver, when they entered into the contract which the new company now is abrogating. Under that contract the men receive: 50 cents an hour the first year, 55 cents the second year, 62 cents the third and 67 cents the fourth and thereafter. The men now are asking for an increase of five cents an hour in each of those classes of trainmen and are asking that a majority of runs be made straight 8-hour runs, with time and a half for overtime. Increase of from five to 10 cents in the present scale of 45 to 81 cents an hour is asked for shop and maintenance men.

CHICAGO PARADES IN HONOR OF THREE BREMEN FLYERS

Thousands Crowd Michigan Avenue to See Koehl, Von Huenefeld and Fitzmaurice.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, May 12.—Chicago today gave mighty acclaim to Maj. Fitzmaurice, Capt. Koehl and Baron von Huenefeld of Bremen trans-Atlantic fame.

Preceded by shouts of "hochs!" and "Erin go bragh!" the crew of the Bremen headed a parade along Michigan avenue in an automobile through cheering thousands that packed the avenue to the curb.

The second car contained the wives of Capt. Koehl and Maj. Fitzmaurice. In the third car rode Gov. Small. Floats depicting the advance of aviation were in succeeding places in the procession, many of them being huge airplanes made of flowers.

So dense were the cheering crowds that at times the police were forced to clear the way for the parade—the first function of the city's formal reception to the German-Irish airmen.

Ford Buys Engine Used 86 Years.

By the Associated Press.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., May 12.—A steam power plant which was built in 1842 is being dismantled here for shipment to Henry Ford's museum at Dearborn, Mich., for preservation as an example of early American machinery. The engine has been in use for 86 years in a jewelry manufacturing plant.

CHURCH RESTS CASE AGAINST BISHOP BAST

Defense Begins Testimony in Ecclestiastical Trial at Methodist Conference.

By the Associated Press.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., May 12.—Church evidence is all in, and defense evidence now is being submitted in the ecclestastical trial of Anton Bast, Methodist Episcopal bishop of Copenhagen, Denmark, it was announced tonight. A verdict is expected within a week.

Bishop Bast is charged with imprudent conduct and strives to gain reinstatement from the suspension under which he was placed at a church tribunal meeting at The Hague in 1926. The suspension followed conviction on charges of misuse of charity funds. He served three months in jail.

Procedure before the court of 17 ministers is similar to a jury trial in Civil Court. Bishop Francis J. McConnell of Pittsburg, Pa., is acting as Judge.

Bishop McConnell received a unanimous vote of confidence from the conference today when a complaint against him of "maladministration and immorality" was ordered expunged as wholly without foundation.

Bishop McConnell strongly protested against the use by the Rev. George A. Cooke of Wilmington, Del., of the word "immorality" in charging him with certifying to incomplete reports of the Wilmington annual conference in March, 1927, and in giving approval to the teachings of evolution.

Cooke was excoriated by implication by Bishop McConnell, who said in his appeal: "It may be that I can assume that the apparent lack of concern on the part of the general conference on the complaint indicates that it is not taking these charges more seriously than annual conferences have been taking similar charges issuing from the same source against Methodist officials during the past 25 years, but such assumption does not relieve me of the embarrassing position in which I have been placed."

The Bishop asked action so that he could make definite replies to many "sincerely disturbed Methodists" who were writing him from all over the country.

The conference condemned "the utterly false and mischievous use" of the questionable word, and ordered the whole complaint dismissed.

Horned Toad Laid in Corner Stone.

By the Associated Press.

EASTLAND, Tex., May 12.—When the corner stone of the new courthouse was laid today a Texas horned toad was entombed in it. Three months ago, when the old courthouse was torn down, a horned toad was removed from the corner stone alive after 31 years, according to witnesses. Several thousand persons witnessed today's ceremonies.

STATE SUPREME COURT UNABLE TO DECIDE CASE

Deadlock Arose When One of the Seven Jurists Disqualified Himself in the Matter.

By the Jefferson City Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, May 12.—The State Supreme Court en banc is deadlocked on decision of a case involving constitutionality of a Sunday-closing ordinance for theaters in Springfield, which has been before the court for a year, and today instructed the attorneys to select a special Judge to sit with the court on a reargument of the case, in an effort to break the tie. The case will be reargued at the October term.

The court enbanc is composed of seven judges, but one judge, whose name was not disclosed, disqualified himself. The remainder of the court stands 3 to 3, but the individual votes of judges do not appear, under the rules, until a decision is given. The judge who disqualified himself is supposed to be Judge John Turner White, who is a resident of Springfield, and whose son Judge Warren L. White of the Greene County Criminal Court, rendered the decision holding the Springfield Sunday theater closing ordinance unconstitutional. From this decision the city took the appeal, now before the court.

This method of selecting a special Judge to sit with the court when a deadlock occurs, is provided for by law. This is the first time it has been necessary in several years. The special Judge selected by the attorneys for both sides must be approved by the court, and in the event the attorneys fail to agree the selection is made by the court.

The Springfield Sunday-closing ordinance for theaters was adopted by voters of Springfield in a referendum and two attempts to repeal it through the initiative were defeated in special elections. W. W. Smith, a theater owner, instituted a test case in September, 1926, and was convicted in Police Court of violating the ordinance. The case reached the Supreme Court in January, 1927, and was argued and submitted to the court en banc on May 6, 1927.

FOUR KILLED, 21 HURT, WHEN LAUNDRY MACHINE EXPLODES

Drum of Plant Weighing Four Tons Blown Through Roof; Building Destroyed.

KOKOMO, Ind., May 12. — The explosion of a steam mangling machine in the Fridlin Laundry today caused the death of four women, resulted in serious injury to six others, and about 15 other employes suffered bruises and cuts.

The building was destroyed and windows in business establishments for two blocks were shattered as a result of the explosion.

The dead: Miss Anna Black, 21 years old; Mrs. Emma Ford, sister of Anna; Miss Rosella Courtney, 17; Miss Thelma May Garriot.

The drum of the mangling machine, weighing approximately four tons, tore a great hole in the roof of the building. The front wall of the structure also was torn out.

ROUTE OF TUESDAY'S PARADE IN HONOR OF THREE OCEAN FLYERS

BEGINNING at 10 a. m. Tuesday, at Union boulevard and Lindell drive, the parade of the Bremen crew will follow the following route:

East over Lindell and Locust boulevards to Twentieth street, north to Washington avenue, where the column will be joined by the Sixth Infantry band and escort and a mounted police detail, east to Broadway, south to Olive street, west to Twelfth boulevard, south to Market street and west to Fourteenth street, where the column will disband.

THREE WORDS THAT INSPIRE, 'JESUS,' 'HOME' AND 'MOTHER'

Senator Neely Makes Them the Theme of Annual Mother's Day Address.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, May 12. — The observation that for centuries the words, "Jesus," "Home," and "Mother," have been unfailing sources of inspiration to heroic efforts, great accomplishments and sublime achievements, was made in the Senate today by Senator Neely (Dem.), West Virginia, in delivering a mother's day address.

The first word, he said, inspired Charles Wesley to write the song, "Jesus Lover of My Soul," the second caused John Howard Payne to write, "Home, Sweet Home," and the third impelled Elizabeth Akers Allen to write the poem to mother beginning, "Backward, Turn Backward, O Time, in Your Flight."

The second Sunday in May was designated as mother's day by Congress 16 years ago, under a resolution introduced in the House by Representative Heflin, now Senator from Alabama, at the instance of Miss Annie M. Jarvis of Philadelphia. The measure was sponsored in the Senate by Senator Sheppard (Dem.), Texas.

MURDER AND TWO SUICIDES IN VICINITY OF PARMA, MO.

Farmer Kills Wife and Ends Life; Neighbor Shoots Self; Both Used Shotguns.

PARMA, Mo., May 12. — With a shotgun loaded with steel ball bearings, Joseph Harr, 38 years old, a farmer residing four miles northeast of here in Stoddard County, shot his wife to death and then ended his life about 10 o'clock last night.

The bodies were found in a bedroom of the Harr home by Mrs. William Tippens, a relative of Mrs. Harr, at 7 a. m. today. Both had been shot through the head. Neighbors reported hearing the shots but did not investigate at the time. Relatives said Mrs. Harr, who was 24, had accused her husband of having another wife from whom he was not divorced and had threatened to leave him.

Kelly Pointer, 25, another farmer living in the neighborhood, ended his life with a shotgun about 5 a. m. today. Mrs. Pointer, 19, was in an adjoining room at the time and witnessed the tragedy through an open door. She fled from the house carrying their two small children. She said Pointer had suffered from mental trouble for several weeks and frequently threatened to end his life.

BREMEN CREW TO LAND IN ST. LOUIS TOMORROW

Formal Welcome to Be Given Three Flyers at Forest Park Highlands.

Traveling in a sister ship to the trans-Atlantic monoplane Bremen, now icebound on Greenly Island, Baron von Huenefeld and his pilots, Maj. Fitzmaurice and Capt. Koehl, are scheduled to arrive at Lambert-St. Louis Field from Milwaukee at 3 p. m. tomorrow, for a two-day visit to St. Louis.

Immediately on their arrival, the flyers will be greeted informally by Maj. Albert Bond Lambert, dean of St. Louis flyers, and transferred to smaller planes, in which they will be taken to the landing field in Forest Park for a formal reception.

Approximately 800 soldiers, including regulars from Jefferson Barracks and Scott Field and members of the 138th Infantry and Naval Reserve, will police the Forest Park field, along with 400 policemen. The planes bearing the pilots are to land at 3:30 o'clock in Forest Park, where the flyers will be met by the Reception Committee, headed by Mayor Miller, and will be escorted to Forest Park Highlands.

Room for Crowd of 25,000.

There the flyers will be conducted to the bandstand, where they can be viewed by the crowd. More than 25,000 spectators can be accommodated in the amusement park. The wives of Maj. Fitzmaurice and Capt. Koehl, who were present at the Chicago reception last week, have announced that they will not be able to come to St. Louis for the ceremonies here.

After the reception, the flyers will be escorted to Hotel Jefferson. They will be guests at a private dinner tomorrow evening at the University Club at which Georg Ahrens, German Consul, will be the host.

Tuesday morning the flyers will leave the Jefferson at 9:30 o'clock for the parade through the city, scheduled to begin at Lindell drive and Union boulevard at 10 o'clock. There will be 11 automobiles in the procession, carrying city officials, representatives of civic organizations and army and navy officers.

The parade will traverse the route Lindbergh traveled on his triumphal return to St. Louis last summer. The parade will disband after the trip through the downtown district and the flyers will be formally welcomed in a reception at City Hall.

To Attend Ground-Breaking.

At 12:30 o'clock they are scheduled to participate in ground-breaking ceremonies for the new German House at 2345 Lafayette avenue. Mayor Miller and former Congressman Bartholdt will be the speakers. Souvenir gold watches, appropriately engraved, will be presented the flyers by German House, Inc.

For the remainder of the afternoon the flyers will be the guests of August A. Busch. The formalities of their visit will end Tuesday evening with a banquet at Hotel Chase for which tickets are on public sale at Chamber of Commerce, at $5 each. At the banquet a party of 30 German educators, on tour of the United States, also will be guests of honor.

The principal address will be made by Charles Nagel, former Secretary of Commerce and Labor. Other speakers will be Mayor Miller, Chairman Stanley Clarke of the Air Board, Assistant City Counselor Dolan, Harold M. Bixby, chairman of the Board of the Chamber of Commerce; Ben Weidle, president of the Board of Education, and Dr. Franz Hilker of the Central Institute of Berlin, one of the visiting Germans educators.

The flyers are scheduled to hop off for Detroit at 11 a. m. Wednesday. In the meantime their plane will have been serviced by mechanics at Lambert-St. Louis Field. The pilots chosen to carry the guests and their press representative from the field to Forest Park tomorrow are O. E. Scott, field manager, Dan Robertson of the Robertson Aircraft Corporation; Waldo Robey of the St. Louis Aircraft Corporation and Milt Girton of Von Hoffmann Aircraft Corporation.

WASHINGTON, May 12.—The Great Northern Telegraph Co. advises the Navy Department today that all communication with Tsinan, China, has been interrupted.. The message contained no further information.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, May 12. — Having cleared Tsinan of Chinese Nationalist troops, the Japanese Consul and commanders in the Tsinan zone have asked the Chinese Chamber of Commerce there to take complete control of the administration of the city, including the telegraphs, telephones, lighting and police services.

DUERER PRINTS SHOW AT CITY ART MUSEU

Collection of 69 Pictures by German Master on Display Today.

The City Art Museum is display ing today an important group 69 prints by the celebrated Germ master, Albrecht Duerer (147 1528). With two exceptions, entire exhibit is owned by the mu seum, the collection of which been augmented within the last days by the acquisition of Duerer's impressive portrait print of Ulrich Varnbueler and the complete set 37 engravings constituting the "Lit tle Passion" on wood.

Duerer, whose position as the greatest German artist is disputed only by Holbein, was born in Nu remberg, where his four hundredth anniversary is being celebrated this year by public processions and ex hibitions. A large part of his fame rests on the matchless woodcuts engravings and etchings which he produced.

The collection assembled by the museum and now displayed to gether for the first time presents a comprehensive survey of the mas ter's productions from 1504 to 1526, and exemplifies well the painstaking skill of his hand and the inexhaustible fertility of his imagination, qualities in which he has never been excelled.

Among the earlier engravings shown are the "Great Fortune" and the celebrated "Adam and Eve," both made about 1504. In them Duerer shows a sincere ef fort to depict the grace and beauty of the human figure, which Ger man art before his time had drawn in an uncouth and repulsive fash ion. The "Adam and Eve" was the first engraving to be carried out in masses of light and shade rather than lines, a treatment which resulted in a rich pictorial quality that was new to the art of engraving.

But it is in two great engravings of 1513 and 1514, "Knight, Death and the Devil," and "Melancholy," that Duerer reached both the greatest perfection of workmanship and the most profound spiritual expressiveness. Both these prints are included in the exhibit. The "Knight, Death and the Devil" probably is intended to symbolize human bravery by the armored warrior who rides fearless ly through a dark gorge haunted by grewsome figures of Death and the Devil, and the "Melancholy" is a subtle and fantastic personification of the human intellect.

The exhibit contains four of Duerer's superb portraits, those of Erasmus of Rotterdam, Philip Melanchthon, Ulrich Varnbueler and a self-portrait of the artist. The Erasmus engraving was made in 1526 from a drawing which the artist sketched during a visit to the Netherlands in 1520-21. The Ul rich Varnbueler, the largest wood cut made by Duerer, is a chiaro curo print in black, buff and brown, and is the only example in colors in the group.

NEW DOG TRACK OPENS IN COUNTY; 4000 SEE RACES

Prosecutor Says He Will Let Silver Heel Circuit Run Long Enough to Gather Evidence.

OWNERS FILE SUIT TO PROTECT INTEREST

With Admission Free, Betting Does Not Become Active Until Late Events on Card Take Place.

The new Silver Heel dog-racing rack, just north of Baden, at 9500 Bellefontaine road, opened last night with more than 4000 customers on hand—as good a crowd as its competing track in St. Louis County, the Ramona Kennel Club plant enjoyed on its opening night, just a week before.

The track is the third for St. Louis County. One of them, the Wellston Kennel Club plant, is idle, however, and will remain so as long as the Madison Kennel Club, an East Side establishment, backed by the same interests, is allowed by the authorities to run.

The backers of the Silver Heel track, in apparent fear that county authorities would try to close the ack on its first night of operaion, filed suit in Circuit Court at Clayton yesterday for an injunction to restrain the Attorney-General of Missouri and the Prosecuting Attorney of St. Louis County from interfering with them.

The suit was set for hearing in Circuit Court tomorrow, on the same docket with a suit filed by Prosecuting Attorney Mueller to enjoin operation of the Ramona Kennel Club track as a public nuisance.

Mueller said yesterday that he d not intend to bring a complaint against the Silver Heel track until it had gone into operation and declared he would let it run long enough to gain evidence for his suit.

There was no admission charge at the Silver Heel track last night. The crowd did not become active at the betting booths, or "contribution booths" as the sponsors of dog racing prefer to put it, until the later races on the nine-race card.

The track is much like the oters, except that the dummy rabbit sed to lure the dogs runs on a trolley over the oval, instead of the customary track. The track itself only three-sixteenths of a mile, compared with a quarter at ellston and Madison and five-sixenths at the Ramona track.

HOLDUP OF GROCERY MANAGER FRUSTRATED BY PATROLMAN

Brother of Kroger Employe Reaches for Revolver at Command of "Hands Up."

A man who attempted to hold up Harry Stary, manager of a Kroger grocery at 3134 Easton avenue at 9:45 o'clock last night, was routed by Stark's brother, Wilmer, a probationary patrolman, who had called at the store at closing time, in civilian clothes, to accompany the store manager to his home.

The brothers were just preparing to drive away when a man jumped on the running board of the policeman's car and ordered "Hands up." Wilmer Stark reached for his revolver. The holdup man fired one shot and fled. Patrolman Stark followed him to an alley, at Cardinal and Easton avenues, firing as he ran, but abandoned the chase when the man jumped into a waiting automobile and was driven away, apparently by an accomplice.

PARK AND COMPTON CARS WILL RESUME OLD DOWNTOWN ROUTE

o Go West in Washington and South in Eighteenth Street.

Starting tomorrow, westbound Park and Compton cars will resume their former route downtown, which had been changed about two years ago. They will go west in Washington avenue and south in Eighteenth street, instead of turning over Fourteenth street to Pine street and thence west to Eighteenth as they have been going.

The city desires to have car tracks eliminated from Fourteenth street, in connection with the Memorial Plaza project. The old route was abandoned because the curve at Eighteenth and Washington prevented cars from passing there, but the Public Service Co. has spent $40,000 on new curves to remedy this condition. The company said there had been complaints about the Pine street routing.

DINING ROOM OFFICIALLY SHUT

Scheduling of luncheons and other social events in the Chamber of Commerce dining room has ceased, and the dining room is considered as officially closed, though a few meetings, arranged for previously, are still to be held there.

The organization decided to eliminate all club features and proceed strictly as a business body. In the six years' use of the dining room, many prominent persons have been luncheon guests there.

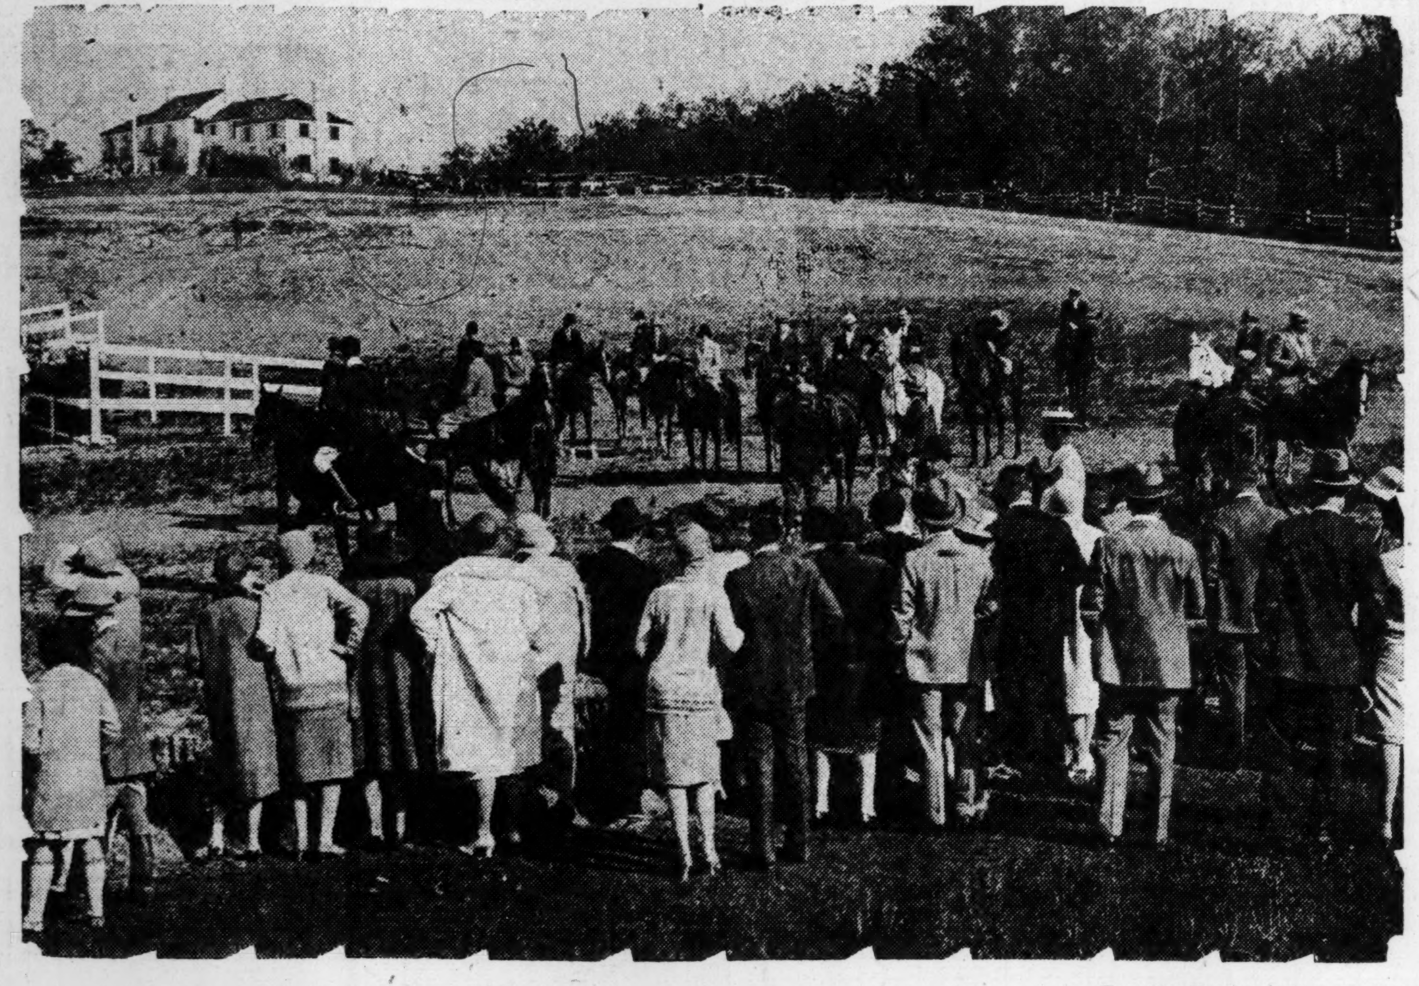
Gathering for the First Drag Hunt in St. Louis County



—By a Post-Dispatch Staff Photographer.

ST. LOUIS fox-hunters waiting for the first blast of the horn before a gallery of well-wishers at yesterday's foxless fox hunt, sponsored by the Bridle Spur Hunt Club, on the Denny road, north of the Manchester road. The clubhouse can be seen on the hilltop overlooking the field of huntsmen. Nearby are the $10,000 kennels housing a pack of blue-ribbon hounds brought from the Piedmont district of Virginia.

Scarlet Coats and Hounds In Cry at First Drag Hunt

Party of 23, Including Six Women, Initiates Sport at Bridle Spur Club, Without a Fox.

Scarlet hunting coats flashed in St. Louis County for the first time yesterday afternoon as 23 mounted hunters—six of them women—jumped fences and stone walls in a hunt held by the new Bridle Spur Hunt Club, on the Denny road west of the Manchester road.

A piece of gunny-sacking, on which a caged fox had made his bed for three weeks, substituted for Reynard. The sacking was dragged on a rope over the three-and-a-half-mile course between the Clayton road and the hilltop clubhouse, to "lay the scent."

Huntsman Arthur Preece, brought by the new club from the Piedmont district of Virginia—locale of one of the major American schools of fox hunting—blew his brass horn about 4:15 p. m., when the 18 Virginia hounds were unkenneled.

In the Hunting Party.

Among those who participated in this, the first "drag" hunt in St. Louis County, were August A. Busch Jr. (first whip), Roy Siegel (second whip), Adalbert von Gontard (master of hounds), Louis Hager Jr. (hunt secretary), Mr. and Mrs. Webster Tilton, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Pulitzer, the Baroness von Schilling, Mr. and Ted Bakewell, George Tiffany, Mrs. Harry F. Langenberg, Mrs. Louis Hager Jr., Ted Salorgne, Andrew Johnson, Bradford Shinkle Sr., Bradford Shingle Jr., Stuart McDonald and Master Alfred Orthwein.

Busch, Siegel and Von Gontard kept the restless dogs in pack until, near Clayton road, the loping foxers were thrown on the scent.

The pack began to run and the hunt leaders let out their mounts. Through a pasture, on a zigzag course and then over a fence. Through a plowed field. After the hunt leaders rode the hunters, two by two.

It was a hard day for the hounds. The ground was too dry. Clouds of dust rose from the course as hoofs pounded. The "drag" had been taken over the course too quickly and the dogs repeatedly lost the scent. Whips cracked to keep the frantic hounds on the trail.

Farmers Watch the Hunt.

County farmers issued from their houses to wave to the hunters. One clapped hands to his head in dismay when, posted in his pasture to watch a foxhunt, he beheld the massacre of a field of spring wheat. Louis Hager Jr., secretary of the hunt, talked over the unforeseen "break" of the hounds with him. A satisfactory arrangement was made.

There were several "spills." One woman rider, before the start of the hunt, was thrown when her mount stumbled in the dry, loose clay of the slope from the clubhouse to the new kennels. She jumped up quickly, caught her horse, and rode the course. Other hunters, flung from saddles in the field, retrieved their mounts and went on. No injuries were reported.

The "drag" hunt required about an hour's run. The hunt leaders were visible from the clubhouse lawn about 5:15 p. m. The quarry was buried in a hole in the hillside sloping from the swimming pool. From the field came the shouts of the whips and the master of hounds.

Master Calls His Hounds.

"Pack up there!"

"Co-Co-Coya hound!"

"Oosh! Ooshy boy!"

Huntsman Preece sounded his horn and the whips spurred to keep up with the panting dogs. The hunt leaders were four galloping horsemen trailing a speeding pack as they swept toward the pseudo-fox hole. Behind them the first hunters of the field were jumping the last course hurdles.

Speckled hounds—black and white hounds — brown-spotted hounds—dogs in varying color schemes made up the pack. Differing from the British hounds, that are bred for "points," the Virginia dogs are bred for voice, nose and speed. "Points"—a graceful trunk, a pair of perfect ears, a thoroughbred head—are waived in favor of talents valuable in the field.

Back of the hounds ran horses representative of many thoroughbred stocks. There were French thoroughbreds — Canadian, thoroughbreds, Kentucky strains, crossed with Arabian—all mounts accustomed to hurdles.

It was the club's first mustering of huntsmen for a sport new to St. Louis County. The time chosen for the hunt, said the sponsors, was without precedent in American fox-hunting, for the fox scent does not "lay" at this time of the year. It was considered wise, however, to hold several "drag" hunts before next September, when the first of the hunts after a living fox is to be held.

It is understood that later hunts will course through the wooded sections just west of the club grounds. The autumn and early winter form the usual fox-hunting season because crops are out of the way at that time and the farmers' fields are therefore not forbidden to huntsmen.

Fox hunts have been held in certain parts of Missouri for years, but the technique differs markedly from that followed in Virginia, and other Southern states, and on Long Island and in Massachusetts. Hundreds attend the downstate fox hunts, which are held at night.

"Listen In" on Hunts.

The "hunters" gather at a certain point and the dogs are loosed. The "hunters" at these affairs for the most part "hear" the hunt, rather than actively ruding in it. There is considerable betting on the dog leading the pack—the entered hounds being recognizable by their voices from a distance. "Hard-riding" has not heretofore been a part of the usual Missouri foxhunt as it is of the Virginia, the Long Island and the Massachusetts hunts.

Virginian foxhunting patterns the British sport in "hard riding" and jumping, but does not include the elaborate and arbitrary terminology followed by British hunters. "View Haloo," "Tallyho," "Away—Away"—those terms, and others, followed from time immemorial by English hunters, are not used by most American followers of the sport.

Foxhunting the Major Sport.

Foxhunting is destined to be a major sport at the new club. It is the theme of the interior decorations of the costly clubhouse. It is stressed by the kennels at the bottom of the hill below the clubhouse, and again on the very rafters of the dining room. There is to be a polo field, and the club is already preparing for a horse-show, according to Preece.

"Drag hunts" between now and the autumn, said Preece, will be largely practice, looking forward to the season when fast riders can turn back to the club with the "mask," the "pads" and the "brush" of a wily Ozark fox. These are the trophies of the foxhunters.

The officers of the Bridle Spur Hunt Club are August A. Busch Jr., president; Stewart McDonald, first vice president; Donald C. Bixby, second vice president; Edward Bakewell Jr., secretary-treasurer. There are in all 42 members.

BUSINESS MEN BACK FROM GOOD WILL TOUR

Return to Their Homes After Visiting 31 Cities and Towns in Kansas.

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JOPLIN, Mo., May 12.—Confident that they have paved the way for the improvement of business relations between Kansas and St. Louis, the 100 business men who left St. Louis a week ago on a 1700-mile trade extension tour under the auspices of the sales managers' bureau of the Chamber of Commerce, returned to their homes today. More than 3500 business men were visited by the good will delegates in the 31 towns and cities where stops were made, according to the estimate of Lionel Kalish, chairman of the tour.

"Through personal contacts the delegates have been enabled to study the problems of thousands of Kansas merchants and to offer solutions through the co-operative facilities of St. Louis industry," said John B. Edwards, speaker of the tour.

"Relationships with old customers have been strengthened by means of the friendly visits of executives of the St. Louis firms with whom they have been dealing. The advantages of St. Louis as a distributing center have been impressed on the business mind of one of the richest agricultural states in the Union.

"The results have been accomplished with speed and efficiency through the carefully arranged schedule of the special good will train. It only remains for St. Louis industries and the St. Louis Chamber of Commerce to cultivate the seed already sown."

After stopping yesterday at Chanute, Iola, Fort Scott and Pittsburg, the tourists were entertained last night by the Joplin Chamber of Commerce. Harry A. Richardson, president of the Chamber of Commerce, and Philip Cedren, editor of Joplin Globe, made addresses. St. Louis speakers were John B. Edwards, Jules Field, representing Mayor Miller, and Flint Garrison, editor of the Drygoodsman. S. R Kalish was toastmaster.

LAUGHS AT POLICE, HELD FOR FEDERAL AUTHORITIES

Jack Elliott, 54 years old, a notorious shoplifter, is held for the Federal authorities, all because he laughed at two city detectives in front of Union Station Friday night.

Detectives Klug and Schwartz were arresting a Negro, and their efforts caused Elliott considerable merriment. Angered by his actions, but not recognizing him, Klug and Schwartz took him to Police Headquarters.

He was identified yesterday, and admitted, according to police, having served four penitentiary sentences, the most recent for sale of drugs. Policemen searched his room in a Market street hotel and found 147 cubes of morphine and seven hypodermic needles. On this evidence he is held for the Government.

$225 HOLDUP AT AUTO PLANT BEFORE 25 WORKERS IN YARD

Two Armed Men Rob Officer of Firm; $125 Taken From Cash Register of Grocery.

Two men, both armed, took $225 from Benjamin S. Shantz, vice president of the Modern Auto Parts Co., 1728 Lafayette avenue, at 4:30 p. m., yesterday. Shantz and his brother, Miller, and 25 employes were in a junk yard at the rear of the place when the robbers appeared, and while one covered Miller Shantz and the workers, the other robber forced Benjamin to hand over the money. The robbers escaped in an automobile.

At 5:15 p. m. two armed men held up Alexander Caruso, a grocer at 1923 East Obear avenue, took $125 from a cash register and fled in an automobile.

HOSPITALS HONOR MEMORY OF FLORENCE NIGHTINGALE

St. Louis hospitals and the United States Veterans' Hospital at Jefferson Barracks kept open house yesterday in observance of National Hospital day. Special programs were arranged at St. John's, St. Luke's, Jewish and St. Louis Children's hospitals, and Missouri Baptist Sanitarium. A picture show was given at Alexian Brothers' Hospital.

Hospital day was instituted in memory of Florence Nightingale, who more than 70 years ago introduced organized nursing of the wounded in the Crimean War.

EDUCATOR HERE FROM INDIA

Prof. S. Griffith Thero, head of the commerce school at Christian College, Lucknow, India, who was graduated from Washington University in 1921, is visiting, with his wife and child, at the home of Mrs. Thero's parents, Mr. and Mrs. F. L. Stauder, 3838 Iowa avenue.

Prof. Thero, now on furlough, is on his way to Northwestern University at Evanston, Ill., where he will do graduate work. He went to India in 1922. The institution with which he is connected in Lucknow corresponds to an American junior college.

ELECTRIC RATES REDUCED IN 350 MISSOURI TOWNS

Cuts in Light and Power Price Filed in Last Eight Months Total $1,250,000 a Year.

By the Jefferson City Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, May 12.—Reductions in electric light and power rates affecting about 350 cities and towns in Missouri, which will cut approximately $1,250,000 a year from the bills of consumers, have been filed with the Missouri Public Service Commission within the last eight months, due either to investigations by the commission or voluntary action by the electric companies.

Of the estimated annual saving to consumers, $1,000,000 of the reductions resulted from investigations by the commission of the earnings of electric companies, based on their annual operating reports. The remainder represents voluntary reduction schedules by other companies.

Five of the rate reduction schedules filed with the commission within the last week account for $925,000 of the total reductions.

Other rate cuts by electric light and power companies are anticipated by the commission, based on the trend of this utility field in Missouri. At the same time rate experts of the commission are making a detailed analysis of the annual operating reports of all of the utility companies, to determine if their 1927 earnings exceeded the 7 per cent which the commission usually has held to be a fair return.

Result of Conferences.

None of the reductions in the total for the eight months was affected through full rate and valuation proceedings before the commission but were obtained through conferences between the commission and representatives of the utilities.

Several of the companies have filed voluntary reduction schedules without being called in by the commission for conferences on their earnings. Their officers have told the commission the rate cuts were designed to increase the volume of business, and thereby the revenues In several such instances the earnings of the companies in 1927 did not exceed the fair return.

The disposition of the companies to cut rates and increase the volume of business is due, according to statements to the commission, to improved equipment and establishment of central generating stations serving a number of towns by transmission lines, development of diversified business that spreads the plant loads over the entire day instead of centering in peak periods and other reductions in operating costs.

Reports on file with the commission show some of the companies are generating current for as low as four mills a kilowatt hour, the cost ranging higher for smaller plants. Generating costs for some of the smaller plants formerly ran as high as 5 and 6 cents a kilowatt hour.

Reductions in a Week.

Within the last week the reduction schedules filed were:

Union Electric Light and Power Co., of St. Louis, reductions for power and commercial consumers totaling $691,000. New rates for residence consumers, outside St. Louis, are to be filed, providing about $25,000 in reductions. This action followed an investigation by the commission and a call for a report by the company on its earnings and effect of existing rates.

Missouri Power and Light Co., voluntary reductions in 94 Missouri towns totaling $127,000 a year.

Missouri Public Service Co., and Arkansas-Missouri Power Co., both controlled by the Insull interests of Chicago, filed voluntary reductions for 92 towns in Missouri, estimated at $100,000 a year.

Maryville Electric and Power, controlled by Stone and Webster of Boston, 6 to 20 per cent voluntary reduction for Maryville, Mo., and minor reductions in 25 other Northwest Missouri towns served by the company. The saving annually was not estimated.

Last September the commission brought about a reduction of $250,000 a year in electric rates for consumers in Kansas City, through analysis of the earnings of the Kansas City Power and Light Co., and conferences with the company officers.

TOO MANY TURKS CALLED MUSTAPHA; MUST FIND NAMES

Latest Edict From Angora Starts Entire Population on Search.

By the Associated Press.

CONSTANTINOPLE, May 12.—Fourteen million Turks are on the hunt for names with which to endow themselves. Reports from Angora state that an act requiring the adoption of family names is nearing passage. The lack of these names has caused infinite confusion as thousands call themselves by the same name, generally Mustapha or Fatima.

Mustapha Kemal Pasha, Turkey's President, himself was born simply Mustapha. He gained the Kemal when a school teacher, impressed by his literary ability, added the name of Turkey's greatest writer, Namick Kemal.

The new edict will be another slap at the Koran. Its precept "Don't be proud of family; make your own name," is responsible for the Moslems' lack of family tags.

Mothers' day will be observed with special sermons, music and services in most St. Louis churches today.

Oldest and youngest grandmothers will receive flowers at the evening meeting at Haven Street Methodist Church. Services will be held at the Elks' Auditorium at 5:30 p. m.

AUTO HITS BOY AT ALLEY

William Settlemoir, 5, Critically Injured by Car.

William Settlemoir, 5-year-old son of Hyat Settlemoir, suffered critical internal injuries and injury to the skull when he was struck by an automobile as he crossed the alley in rear of the Settlemoir home at 4237 DeSoto avenue at 4 p. m. yesterday.

The machine was driven by Thomas Mann of 4222A Linton street.

HOOVER LEADER RAISES CAMPAIGN COST TO $300,000

J. W. Good, Before Senate Committee Revises His $250,000 Estimate—$241,274 Spent So Far.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, May 12.—Revising his figures on the basis of more complete information, James W. Good, former Representative from Iowa and leader of Herbert Hoover's presidential campaign, testified today before the Senate Campaign Funds Committee that expenditures reported to date totaled $241,274.

This total includes approximately $40,000, which Good said had been spent in the Ohio primary campaign, but does not take into account money that may have been spent in Northern California and in Florida, Maine, Missouri and New Hampshire.

Good promised to keep the committee advised on expenditures, saying that he would revise his figures upward before the end of the pre-convention campaign.

He said he thought he would have to set the total expenditure at $300,000 instead of the $250,000 estimated previously would cover all expenses.

As was the case during his first appearance, Good alternately argued with and declared before the committee and again was warned by the investigators that they did not care to hear campaign speeches.

He emphatically denied that he was the directing manager of the Hoover campaign, contending that there was no directing head of the Washington organization.

Reiterating that the expenditures on behalf of the Hoover candidacy had been "modest," Good declared this was the first time "in the history of the republic" that a candidate or his manager had appeared before a congressional committee and disclosed all expenditures by local committees over the country, insisting that the statement made by the campaign manager for Gov. Alfred E. Smith, leading candidate for the Democratic nomination, had not contained this information.

In this connection he referred to past expenditures on behalf of those seeking a presidential nomination, mentioning especially the evidence before the Senate Committee in 1920 showing that $414,987 had been spent on behalf of Frank O. Lowden, now runner-up to Hoover in the present fight for Republican delegates, and $1,773,330 on behalf of the late Gen. Leonard Wood, who was the chief contestant with Lowden in the 1920 pre-convention campaign.

$2800 TAKEN BY LONE ROBBER IN PAYROLL HOLDUP

Manager of Baking Company and Chauffeur Held Up as They Drive Away From Bank.

DIRECTS DRIVER TO NEARBY ALLEY

"Good-by," Polite Young Man Shouts to His Victims as He Takes Cash and Car.

A polite young robber who bade his victims good-by and heard one of them wish him good luck obtained a $2800 cash payroll in a holdup yesterday, begun outside the Jefferson Bank and completed in an alley several blocks away where the robber drove off with an automobile containing the money.

Those robbed were George F. Hammon, manager of the General Baking Co. plant at Jefferson avenue and Carr street, and his chauffeur and guard, John Hittler.

"We drove over from the plant to the Jefferson Bank at Jefferson and Franklin avenues shortly after 10 o'clock," Hammon told police. "I went in the bank and deposited some checks and drew the payroll money, which was placed in a locked bag. Then I got back in the coupe in which Hittler had remained at the wheel. I closed the door and was putting the bag on the floor when the door was suddenly yanked open and a young fellow about 20 years old poked a revolver at me and said: 'Sit over there.'

"There was only one thing to do and that was to be pleasant about it, as Hittler and myself were not armed.

"'All right, get in,' I told the man. He said: 'You fellows drive like I tell you to.' He sat down and slammed the door shut.

"Hittler drove as directed, north to Carr, east to Twenty-first, over Twenty-first to an alley between Carr and Biddle and east in the alley half way toward Twentieth. He made Hittler stop there and said: 'You fellows get out here and Ill take the car.' He drove off, shouting 'Good-by' and I replied, 'Good luck.'"

The payroll was insured. The leather bag which contained the money was lined with wire netting to prevent slashing and had a lock, the keys to which were at the bank and the baking plant.

There have been seven payroll holdups, in which a total of $8330 was taken, so far this year.

10 YEARS IN REFORMATORY FOR POCK-MARKED ROBBER

Same Sentence for Two Youths Who Aided Andrew Eigenbrod in Bank Holdup.

Andrew Eigenbrod, 20 years old, was sentenced to 10 years in the Boonville Reformatory by Circuit Judge Mulloy at Clayton yesterday on his plea of guilty to participation in the holdup of the Old Orchard State Bank of Webster Groves on Feb. 29 last, in which $775 was stolen by three men.

Witnesses to the holdup reported to Webster Groves police that one of the robbers was pock-marked. This clew led to the arrest of Eigenbrod, whose face is pock-marked, at his home, 221 West Rose Hill avenue ,Ferguson. He confessed and named Walter Byerly, 22 years old, and Gilbert Crews, 18, also of Ferguson, as his accomplice in the holdup. Both pleaded guilty, were sentenced to 10 years each in the reformatory and now are at Boonville.

SEEKS DIVORCE, CHARGING WIFE PLOTTED HIS DEATH

Alfred Gannon, 66, Says She Conspired With Man to Have Him Killed.

Alfred Gannon, 66 years old, a truck farmer, filed suit for divorce at Edwardsville yesterday on the ground that his wife, Dillie, 64, conspired with William D. Harris, 60 years old, to have him killed.

Gannon, who is partly paralyzed, states in his petition that he was fired on by Harris while walking through a field on his farm near East Alton on Jan. 10, last. Several pellets from a shotgun struck him on the head, Gannon states. He charges that the attempt to take his life resulted from a conspiracy between his wife and Harris, both of whom were employed at the Western Cartridge Co.

Mrs. Gannon and Harris who were indicted several months ago on a charge of assault to kill, are at liberty on bond.

Negro Courtroom Janitor Dies.

Andrew "King" Cannon, 58 years old, a Negro employed as court room janitor by Circuit Judge Robert Hall for 10 years, died suddenly at Fourteenth street and Clark avenue at 6:30 a. m. yesterday. He resided at 4340 Cote Brilliante and had been under treatment for heart disease. It is presumed that he was on his way to the Municipal Courts Building when stricken.

DRIVER OF BUS THAT KILLED MAN IN CRASH HELD

Frank Thomas Was in Charge of Vehicle That Struck Auto and Fatally Hurt W. R. Judd.

Frank Thomas, 28 years old, of 2620A North Twenty-first street, a shop foreman for the Purple Swan Bus Co., was held by a Coroner's jury yesterday in the case of W. R. Judd, 23, who was killed when his automobile collided with a bus driven by Thomas on St. Charles road at Wise avenue, at 1 a. m. Friday.

Judd, an employe of the Polar Ice and Fuel Co., residing at 2234 Spring avenue, St. Louis County, was driving east and the bus was headed west on St. Charles road when the accident occurred. Thomas testified Judd's machine brushed against the bus, the bumper catching in the left front wheel of the bus and causing the larger conveyance to swerve to the wrong side of the road, where it was found.

Thomas was bound over for preliminary hearing before Justice of the Peace Stecker Tuesday. Judd's body was sent to Cookville, Tenn., his former home, for burial.

"Celebrating our Anniversary we build the Tire of Tires"

THE TIREMASTER

P. W. Litchfield, President of The Goodyear Tire & Rubber Company, Inc.; President, Chairman, or Advisory Board Member of twenty-four affiliated or subsidiary corporations. Under Mr. Litchfield's direct charge, Goodyear has made more than 115,000,000 tires, and now crowns that unequaled record with the Goodyear Double Eagle Tire

WE ARE building at Goodyear now a new tire—the equal of which the world has literally never seen.

It is intended to honor the thirtieth anniversary of the founding of this business in 1898.

Commercially this tire will never rival our major lines; we are purposely making it extravagantly good.

No man concerned in its development, for example, has worked under the limitation of a cost specification of any kind!

We are calling this new tire the GOODYEAR DOUBLE EAGLE.

It embodies the mature experience and the youthful aspiration that instruct and energize the largest rubber company in the world.

It costs a good deal more to buy than does any other tire.

We expect it to have a very limited production, because it is confessedly a much better tire than the average person needs.

AS for the tire itself, it is a perfectly balanced, moderate pressure type—the handsomest, strongest, finest tire that money can buy.

Its massive, deep-cut, tractive All-Weather Tread is virtually double-thick.

The compound used in this tread is the toughest and longest-wearing that Goodyear has ever developed.

Not even standard truck tire compounds present a stouter resistance to abrasion and wear.

The body of the Goodyear Double Eagle Tire is likewise special throughout.

It is built of extra-heavy SUPERTWIST cord fabric, to a new oversize dimension both in cross-section and overall diameter.

There are more plies, more rubber between the plies; even a lining of an extra layer of rubber to prevent moisture reaching the cords.

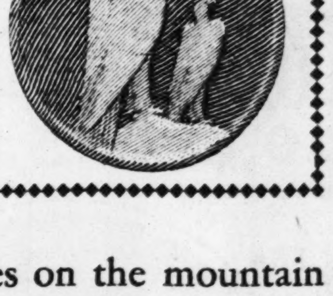
Supplementing the lavish use of the finest materials, the tire gains strength and life from a special low temperature cure.

DO not confuse the new Goodyear Double Eagle Tire with any so-called "heavy duty" tire—it is much more than that.

It is definitely non-competitive, by design and intention, frankly a super-tire—in the highest meaning of the term.

You ought never to have a puncture with it, because of its great thickness of tread and body.

THE MASTER TIRE



IDENTIFICATION:

On the sidewall of this tire you will find in silver silhouette the Double Eagle: world-mark of superfine quality and value, symbol of that Goodyear union of seasoned experience and youthful progress which has produced the tire of tires

You ought never to experience a blowout or any similar trouble—the chances against it should be about 1000 to 1.

FOR months, now, we have been running tests on the Goodyear Double Eagle before offering it to the public.

On high-speed dashes from Akron to the Pacific Coast and return, on 800-miles-a-day schedules on the mountain roads of New Mexico and Arizona, it has proved to be everything we hoped.

So we offer it through our Goodyear Dealers to those who want the best the world affords, in full confidence of its matchless merit.

We tell you in advance that under anything like normal conditions it will last as long as you keep your car.

Goodyear has made for the Double Eagle Tire an equally superior and enduring inner tube—and calls this distinguished buff-color tube also the Double Eagle

PARTIAL MARKET ST. REPORT OVERRULED

Judge Frey Rejects Effort Made by City to Speed Up Widening Project.

An effort by the city to speed up the Market street widening, a bond issue project, was defeated yesterday, when Circuit Judge Frey overruled the city's motion to have the commissioners, appointed to assess damages and benefits on property owners, make a partial report now.

The city especially wanted a partial report now on Market street between Eleventh and Fourteenth streets, part of the Memorial Plaza. Transcription of the full report is under way at city hall, but may not be completed before October or November, City Counselor Muench informed the Court. Meanwhile the actual widening will be held up, as it cannot be started until a report is made in court.

The three commissioners appointed in the city's condemnation proceedings opposed the move for a partial report. They are E. E. Pearcy, an attorney; William E. Caulfield, real estate dealer, and Edward E. Butler, now Judge of the Court of Criminal Correction.

Pearcy told Judge Frey the commissioners had completed their work and turned their figures over to the City Counselor's office to be written up, and he could see no occasion for writing a partial report. A partial report, he said, would be unfair to property owners not included in it, as it would affect their property and make it hard to rent, lease or sell. The city ordinance which permits partial reports did not contemplate such a situation as the Market street project, Pearcy argued.

In disapproving of a partial report, Judge Frey said no necessity for one had been shown. He said the commissioners had done their full duty. He agreed with Pearcy that a partial report would be unfair.

DR. W. W. MATHEWS ELECTED BISHOP OF A. M. E. CHURCH

Dr. W. W. Matthews of Washington was elected a Bishop at the quadriennial African Methodist Zion Conference at the Coliseum Friday. He is secretary of foreign missions for the conference. Another Bishop will be elected later.

About 1000 delegates are attending the sessions of the conference, which represents 500,000 Negroes in North and South America and Africa.

8,445,355 TONS FOR BARGES ON MISSOURI RIVER

That Is Potential Tonnage Available When Proposed Line Can Give Adequate Service.

Potential tonnage available when the proposed barge line on the Missouri River can give adequate service is computed at 8,445,355 tons a year in a report given out yesterday by T. L. Gaukel, head of the local office of the Department of Commerce, in the Liberty Central Building.

Hundreds of shippers from St. Louis to Yankton, S. D., were interviewed in a two months' survey. The local offices of the department, here and in Kansas City, were the headquarters. The work was done by four agents of the transportation division, under direction of Norman F. Titus, who directed similar surveys on the Mississippi and Warrior rivers. Another survey has been ordered on the Ohio to determine the tonnage now available between Pittsburg and New Orleans.

Potential Missouri River tonnage is shown in the report as more than 1,000,000 tons a year higher than the estimate for the Upper and Lower Mississippi. This bears out the contention of advocates of a barge line for the Missouri, and the views of some practical river men, who have declared that the Missouri might be made the most profitable link of the great Mississippi Valley river system.

Kansas City, with 2,869,815 tons a year, shows the greatest potential tonnage, followed by Omaha with 2,021,455 tons; Sioux City with 1,281,214 tons and St. Joseph with 1,045,664. St. Louis is fifth, with a potential offering of 656,594 tons a year.

Coal and Coke for the Missouri River district is by far the greatest single possibility at St. Louis, accounting for 500,000 tons of the annual 656,594. Both Kansas City and Omaha, however, offer slightly more of these commodities, which are second in a list of 40, with total coal and coke potential estimated at 2,303,044 tons a year.

Grain and grain products head the list of commodities, with a total offering of 3,465,222 tons a year. St. Louis, naturally, offers only 50,000 tons of this item annually, while the great agricultural district about Kansas City offers 1,259,750 tons a year and the section above Kansas City offers 2,117,987.

Iron and steel is the third commodity, with total offerings of 739,917 tons a year, of which St. Louis offers 54,025 tons a year while Kansas City offers 10 times as much. As indicated, grain and coal and coke lead the 40 items by a very wide margin.

The survey shows more tonnage for the upper section than for the lower—4,715,918 tons a year for the section above Kansas City, as compared to 3,729,437 tons a year for the section below Kansas City. This is significant in view of the well-organized movement to extend the deep channel all the way to Yankton.

WOMAN AND DRIVER INJURED WHEN SPEEDING AUTO UPSETS

Machine Overturns After Grazing Another Car; Both of Victims Taken to Hospital.

After grazing another machine at Texas avenue and Miami street, an automobile traveling at a high rate of speed, overturned at 7 o'clock last night, injuring Mrs. Thelma Patterson, of 3862A Folsom avenue and the driver, Charles Conklin, of 2366 Sulphur avenue, a foreman in the City Street Department.

Harley Patterson, a mechanic, who was following in another automobile, took his wife from the upset machine and carried her to City Hospital. She suffered head injuries and bruises of the body.

The driver was taken to Lutheran Hospital, suffering from shock and internal injuries.

The machine he hit was driven by Charles J. Decker Jr., of 3354 Pennsylvania avenue. Decker's car was damaged slightly, but he escaped injury.

12 MEN AND FOUR WOMEN ARRESTED IN RAID ON FLAT

Clink of Glasses and Sounds of Revelry Lead Police to 3 South Euclid Avenue.

The clink of glasses and sounds of revelry audible above the jazz music of a radio caused Police Sergeant McCormack of the Newstead Station to make closer investigation of a first floor flat at 3 South Euclid avenue late last night. What he saw there moved him to call for aid.

When the reserves arrived, they entered the flat, arrested 12 men and four women seated at tables and seized in the basement, he reported, 15 cases of home brew beer. Seven of the men arrested said they were students. They were held at the Newstead Station as suspected of liquor law violations.

Girl Injured by Street Car.

Miss Hortense Bess, 16 years old, of 3845 Lee avenue, alighted from a westbound Market street car and stepped in front of an eastbound car in front of Forest Park Highlands on Oakland avenue at 7:30 o'clock last night. At city hospital she was said to have suffered a skull injury.

10 YEARS FOR NEGRO SLAYER

Earl C. Harris, Sentenced for Killing Common-Law Wife.

Earl C. Harris, 26-year-old Negro, was sentenced to 10 years in the penitentiary by Circuit Judge Rosskopf yesterday on his plea of guilty of manslaughter in connection with the killing of his common-law wife, Callie Edgerton, July 4, 1926. Mrs. Edgerton's body was found four days later in their home at 817 North Tenth street with the throat cut.

Harris had left town the day after the offense, according to his written confession introd the State, and was arres March in Detroit. He said his wife after she had cut a hatchet and razor, follo quarrel.

All "In Tune"!
Spring has come—and with it come Brides—Buds—and Birds—making Nature all-harmonious.
City folks are turning their thoughts vacationward—and many a youth and maid getting their first glimpse of farm animals will wonder which is the sheep.
But, oh! The joy—the benefits this outdoor life will bring to many pent-up souls—as their conception of life is broadened by Nature's moving picture show!
We can each add to the joy of some individual less fortunate than we—during this God-given season.
LET'S DO IT!

Watch Gray Go! $1.19 Reg. $1.50

Why use dyes that leave hair dull and 'dead' when a clean, colorless liquid will gently and gradually make hair the color it used to be? Kolor-Bak is tonic also—removes dandruff and leaves hair lustrous. Is sold under a positive money-back guarantee.

FOUR SCOTT FIELD OFFICERS TO MAN ARMY RACE BALLOONS

The United States Army's two balloons in the national race from Pittsburg, May 30, will be manned by four Scott Field officers, chosen by the War Department on the basis of experience and ability. Capt. William E. Kepner and Lieut. W. A. Erickson will handle one craft while in the other will be Capt. W. E. Hill and Lieut. H. G. Fisher.

Capt. H. E. Honeywell, a veteran St. Louis civilian balloonist, also will be an entrant, backed by a local automobile factory, the Lighter-Than-Air Club and Stanley Clarke, chairman of the Air Board. Winners of the national race will participate in the annual international balloon race, usually held in Europe, but to start from Detroit this year on June 30.

$1,980,000 REPORTED NEEDED FOR SEWERS

Estimate Given to Board of Public Service—Bond Issue Being Considered.

A bond issue of $1,980,00 for additional sewers is needed by the city, it was reported to the president of the Board of Public Service yesterday by City Sewer Engineer Horner.

The administration is considering a proposal to submit a new bond issue at the November election, to take care of vital improvements for which sums available from the $87,372,500 issue of 1923 were insufficient, or which were not included in that program. Among other items which may be included are $2,000,000 for enlargement and development of the municipal airport, $4,000,000 for completion of the electric street lighting system and $3,500,000 for added hospital and institutional facilities.

About half of the sewer work provided for by an $8,000,000 item of the 1923 issue (apart from the $11,000,000 River des Peres project) has been completed, Horner reported, and, because of savings, it will be possible to do with that fund about $500,000 more work than had been contemplated. The additional sewer money is needed for other necessary work.

Proposed Distribution of Fund.

Projects for which Horner wants the new fund are:

Maline Creek valley from Hall's Ferry road and Goodfellow avenue to the Mississippi near Chain of Rocks; open channel instead of closed sewer east of Riverview drive; cost $660,000.

Drainage for the low area extending north from Blendon place and Glades avenue, near the city limits, where sink holes serve as sewers now; city share of cost, $100,000, but Richmond Heights property owners would have to join in the project.

Sewer under Rosedale avenue and Skinker road, between Olive Street road and River des Peres; cost $120,000.

Relief sewer facilities in the vicinity of Kingshighway and Westminster place, where heavy rains often flood the streets; cost $120,000.

Sewer under O'Fallon street, between Thirteenth street and the river, to relieve the Biddle street line, the oldest in the city; cost $400,000.

Relief facilities in the section between Mullanphy and Hebert streets, near Fifteenth street; cost $200,000.

Miscellaneous relief sewers to cost $200,000.

Sewer Blocks Other Work.

It will be impossible to complete Kingshighway Northwest to Riverview drive and Broadway until the Maline Creek sewer is constructed, Horner said, or to finish the improvement of Skinker road northward from Delmar boulevard until the sewer there is built.

Horner also is city paving engineer. He reported that the 1923 bond issue provided funds for the city's share of street improvements up to 1933, after which provision of about $500,000 annually must be made.

FIVE HURT WHEN AUTO UPSETS IN COLLISION WITH SECOND CAR

Five occupants of an automobile were injured at 7:30 o'clock last night when it was struck by another machine and overturned at Leffingwell and Cass avenues. The second machine also upset, and the driver, a Negro, climbed out, unhurt, and fled.

The injured were: Elmer Gaertner, 26 years old, of 3205 Woodson road, St. Louis County; his wife, Mrs. Norrine Gaertner; his mother-in-law, Mrs. Helen Alsop; his niece, Helen Jones, 5 years old, also of the Woodson avenue address, and Edward Winter, 23, of 2218 Benton street. They all suffered head injuries and cuts and bruises on the body. Gaertner was driving.

The license of the second machine had been issued to David Beard, Negro, 2625 Walnut street, who told police he had lent his car to Roy Duffy, 2703 Walnut street. Duffy was arrested in Beard's home and admitted later, police reported, that he had been the driver of the abandoned automobile. Examined at city hospital, Duffy was said to have been drinking, but was not drunk.

TRIBUTE TO JUDGE SANBORN

Department of Justice Offices Here Close in Honor of Late Jurist.

All local offices of the Department of Justice, including the two divisions of the Federal District Court and offices of the District Attorney, United States Marshal, Investigation Bureau and United States Commissioner, were closed yesterday in deference to the memory of United States Circuit Judge Walter H. Sanborn, who died at his home in St. Paul Thursday and who was buried yesterday.

Judge Sanborn, who was 83 years old, had been a member of the Federal judiciary for 36 years and presiding Judge of the Circuit Court of Appeals since 1903.

THREE PLANES CROSSING U. S.

Fokkers for West Coast Take Off at New York on Separate Routes.

MITCHEL FIELD, L. I., May 12.—Three tri-motored Fokker monoplanes, destined for commercial service in California, took off at 12:40 p. m. today on an itinerant flight to the West coast. The three planes, each of which is following a different route, will visit 40 cities on a six-day cross country trip.

One plane started over a central route with Philadelphia as the first stop; another headed over a southern route with Baltimore as the first stop, and the third followed a northern route, stopping at Boston, then going to Albany and Buffalo. The planes, piloted by Norman Cotter, Lieut. B. Curtiss Moffat and Silas Morehouse, carried officers of the California Chamber of Commerce, which is sponsoring the trip, California residents and newspapermen.

A Message To Young Home Makers

Realize Your Cherished Dreams In the Happy Years of Youth

While you are both still young

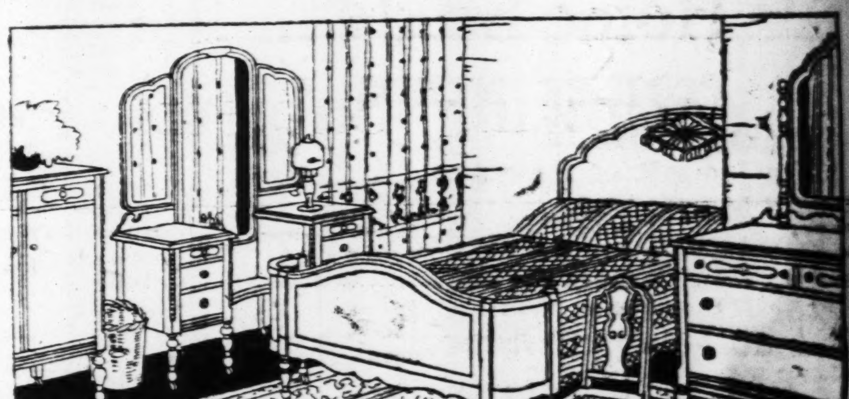
THIS Home Beautiful may be yours. Yours to possess, to live in and enjoy many years of wedded life together—many years before you've saved enough to pay for it in one cash payment.

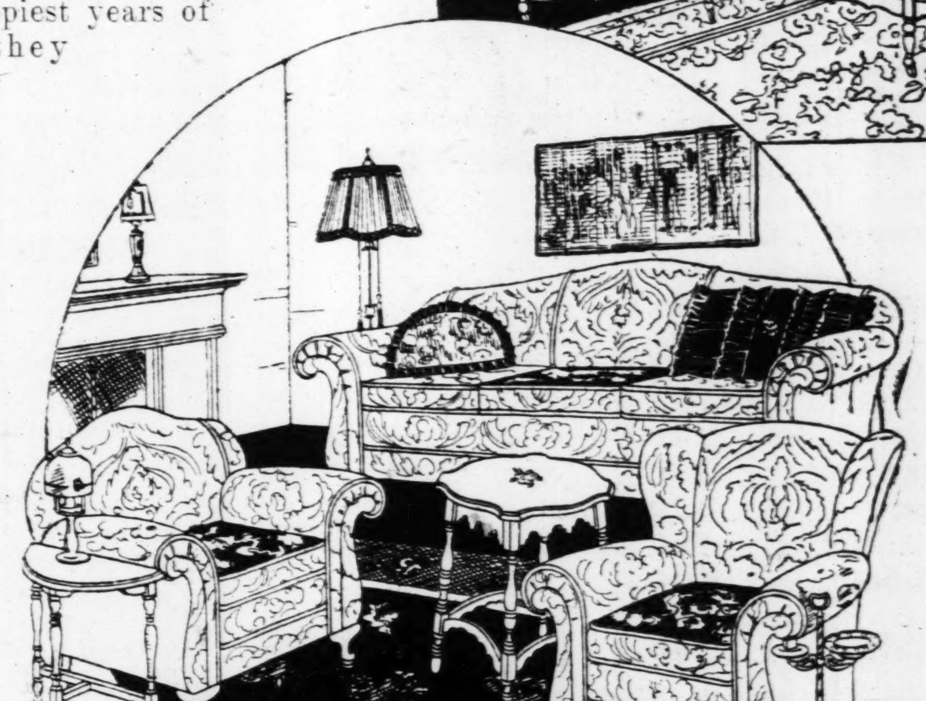
How many a bride-to-be is waiting—waiting until "HE" has saved enough to pay for it all at once—wasting the happiest years of life — youth — that they could and should be spending together. And it needn't be.

¶ Since the year 1887, happy homes have been furnished on our budget payment plan. Paying from your income in installments that you can conveniently meet each month.

For 40 Years We've Proved Our Slogan:

"You Get the Girl We'll Do the Rest"

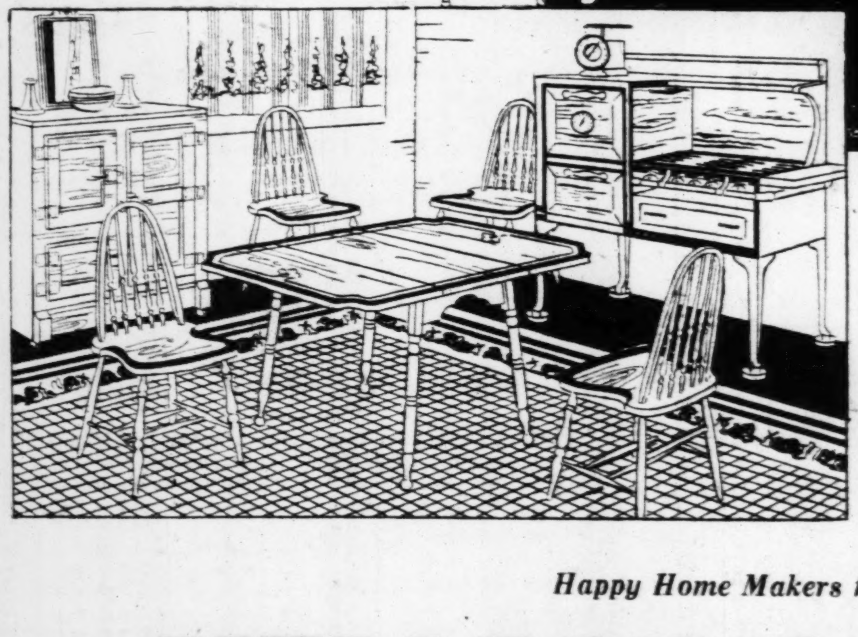




3 Rooms Complete $575

Three Complete Rooms, Equipped With Every Needed Furnishing

In the living room you choose between a three-piece overstufed suite or a two-piece davenport suite. There is an end table, occasional table, table lamps, smoking stand, 24x36 tapestry, two fancy pillows, bridge lamp, two candelabra lamps and an Axminster rug.



The bedroom consists of a four-piece Suite finished in walnut over gumwood. A spring, mattress, two pillows, bedspread and bed lamp, as well as a tapestry Brussels rug, boudoir basket and two boudoir lamps complete the furnishings.

In the kitchen is an all-enamel gas range, five-piece breakfast set and a 75-lb. refrigerator, all matching in a grained enamel finish. A room-size Congoleum rug, a console and fruit dish, mirror, curtains and a family scale complete the kitchen.

SSIA BARS LANDING Y ARCTIC EXPEDITION

McCracken Party, Search- for Mongolian Mummies, sks for New Ruling.

Associated Press.

INNIPEG, Man., May 12.—les H. Stoll of New York City, of the Stoll-McCracken ex- ition to the Siberian Arctic, disclosed in an interview today that the Russian Government had refused the expedition permission to land on territory under jurisdiction of the Soviet Government.

Accompanied by his wife, he is on the way to False Pass, Alaska, to join the exploring party. He said officials in Moscow had notified him before he left New York that the steamer Morrissey, with members of the expedition aboard, would not be allowed to touch at the Soviet port of Kanshatka.

Stoll said he had appealed to Moscow for a reversal of the ruling. Through the friendly intervention of Russian importers in New York. The Morrissey sailed several days ago from Prince Rupert, B. C., and present plans are for the party to enter Bering Strait about July 1. The vessel is equipped for an 18-month cruise, and Stoll hoped to put in at Kanshatka for several weeks during the summer.

He said a month would be spent in Alaska searching for game. The course will then lie through the Aleutian Islands in quest of Mongolian mummies, which, he says, are reputed to be older than Egyptian.

GRADUATED TAX FOR CORPORATIONS OF SMALL INCOME

Democrats, Aided by Two Republicans in Senate, Vote in a Scale of Lower Rates.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, May 12.—Senate Republicans held the main plank of their $200,000,000 tax reduction scheme in the revenue bill today in obtaining a 12½ per cent corporation tax but only after Democrats had upset their program earlier by voting into the bill a graduated scale of lower rates on corporations with small incomes.

As on previous votes in the tax contest, the divisions today were on party lines. The 12½ per cent corporation rate was put into the bill over the 11½ per cent figure approved by the House by a vote of 40 to 34. The present corporation levy is 13½ per cent.

Each 1 per cent reduction in the corporation tax involves $82,000,000, and if the Democrats had been successful today in their fight for retention of the 11½ per cent rate, they would have virtually won their fight to increase the proposed $200,000,000 reduction to $325,000,000.

Democrats Line Up Solidly.

As it was, $24,000,000 was added to the $200,000,000 reduction provided by the Republican bill when the Senate accepted the graduated scale of rates on corporations with incomes of $15,000 and less. Lining up solidly for this proposal, advanced by Senator Simmons (Dem.), North Carolina, Democrats received the support of two Republicans—Norbeck and McMaster of South Dakota—and won by a vote of 40 to 38.

Surprised by the first break in his ranks, Senator Root of Utah, in charge of the Republican fight, announced he would ask for another roll call on the graduated scale of corporation rates, which was fostered in the House by Representative Garner (Dem.), Texas.

The Garner rate schedules which were restored to the bill provide for a tax of 5 per cent on corporations with incomes of $7000 and less; 7 per cent on incomes between $7000 and $12,000; and 9 per cent on incomes between $12,000 and $15,000. The regular flat rate would apply on incomes above that amount.

Provision for Pro-Rating.

New provisions were added in the Senate to this tax proposal, however, which would take care of incomes just above each of the arbitrary limits so as not to make a corporation with an income of $7001 pay as much as a corporation with an income of $12,000. The provision would pro-rate on such margins as that.

Disposition of the corporation tax fights left only one other important change in the bill proposed by the Republicans to be decided upon—downward revision of the surtax rates applying on intermediate incomes. Here again the Democrats will seek a greater reduction than proposed by the Republican majority.

HEAD OF AMERICAN COLLEGE IN BEIRUT VISITS ST. LOUIS

Dr. Bayard Dodge Will Be Heard in Several Speeches During Visit to City.

Dr. Bayard Dodge, president of the American University of Beirut, Syria, is in St. Louis for a brief visit, representing his institution and five other colleges in Turkey, Bulgaria and Greece. He will speak this morning at Pilgrim Congregational Church. At 3:30 o'clock tomorrow afternoon he will be the guest of the St. Louis Women's Club, 4600 Lindell boulevard. Tomorrow evening, he will be the guest of Hector M. E. Pasmezoglu, Greek Consul here.

At 9:30 a. m. Tuesday he will address Washington University Students and Tuesday noon a luncheon will be given in his honor at the University Club. A graduate of Princeton, Dr. Dodge served the university in Beirut as a professor for 10 years and became president in 1923. Leaders of the various countries around the eastern end of the Mediterranean have been trained there for two generations. It has a notable department of archeology, due to the proximity of ruins of early civilization.

SURVEY OF INDUSTRIAL SITES

Inspection to Be Made on Special Mo. Pac. Train May 22.

Members of the South St. Louis Business Men's Association will make an inspection of industrial sites in south and southwest St. Louis and county on May 22 from a special train over the Missouri Pacific Railroad.

The train will leave Tower Grove Station at 1 p. m. and will follow a route through Maplewood, Carondelet and the Ivory Transfer and Oak Hill sections. The trip is for the purpose of stressing the industrial importance of St. Louis and to point out the number of industrial sites still available. Charles W. Spiess, former president of the association, is chairman of the tour committee.

LOOK LOOK

Your tongue is the best barometer of your physical condition. Look at it every morning before breakfast. If it is coated with white, yellow or brown coloring, and does not have a clean red appearance you are constipated and not well.

Heed Its Warning

Constipation causes more ailments than all other diseases, and is the result of not having a daily bowel movement. Sick-headache, indigestion, biliousness and sallow complexion follow. Ask your druggist for a 25c red paper package of CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS "Safe Laxative". Take a dose to-night and continue one pill after each meal. Don't stop—until your tongue is clean. You will be surprised at the tonic effect this doctor's formula will have on you.

paging Mr. Smith

Which Mr. Smith? We are not sure—and we really don't particularly care, but he is one of those who have not yet made the personal acquaintance of GLEN ADDIE WOOLENS.

It looks as if Smith would be a pretty well-known name this year and prevalent on the first pages of newspapers, so we are anxious to stand well with the whole family. And nothing could make us so strong with them as to have them suited in GLEN ADDIES.

30 patterns to choose from — all-weather weight. Buy 'em for Spring and wear 'em with comfort right through the year. Colorings from snappy to sedate — and honest Scotch wool and weaving in every one $60 —fine value for thrifty buyers. (Others $50 to $70).

ARCHITECTS TO MEET IN ST. LOUIS THIS WEEK

American Institute Will Hold Sixty-first Convention at Hotel Chase.

Many of the nation's most distinguished architects will be in St. Louis this week for the sixty-first annual convention of the American Institute of Architects, the leading professional organization. About 200 delegates are expected from all over the country, and numerous other members.

The gathering, to be held at Hotel Chase, will last from Wednesday until Friday. The board of directors started executive business sessions at the hotel yesterday, and will continue until Tuesday.

Late Wednesday afternoon the visitors will be taken for an automobile drive of the more interesting parts of the city, from the architectural viewpoint, as guests of the St. Louis chapter of the institute, after which there will be an informal dinner at Hotel Coronado. L. Baylor Pendleton, president of the chapter, heads the Convention Committee, which includes Louis La Beaume, William B. Ittner and James P. Jamieson.

To Discuss Other Crafts.

A general theme of this convention will be collaboration in the arts of design—what might be called, it is announced, "mobilization of the forces which make for better architecture." The relationship to architects of artistic craftsmen, such as stained glass workers, wood carvers, ornamental iron smiths and the like, will be discussed.

Among those who will attend are: Milton B. Medary of Philadelphia, president of the institute, member of the firm which designed the notable new art museums in Fairmount Park, Philadelphia, and in Detroit; William Emerson, professor of architecture at Massachusetts Institute of Technology; George H. Edgell, professor of architecture at Harvard University; Warren P. Laird, professor of architecture at the University of Pennsylvania; Alfred Granger of Chicago, designer of the Chicago & Northwestern Station there; Charles D. McGinnis of Boston, noted church designer; Robert D. Kohn of New York, specialist in commercial structures, such as department stores; George C. Nimmons of Chicago, architect for Sears-Roebuck, including the new stores being erected here; Richard E. Schmidt of Chicago, hospital architect, and Abram Garfield of Cleveland, a son of President Garfield.

Three Candidates in Field.

Three candidates for the presidency of the institute, subject to election by the delegates, have been mentioned. They are: Garfield, C. Herrick Hammond of Chicago and William L. Steele of Omaha, Neb.

UNITED PRESBYTERIANS TO MEET MAY 23 TO 30

National General Assembly to Be Held in St. Louis for First Time in 40 Years.

The seventieth national General Assembly of the United Presbyterian Church of North America will be held in St. Louis May 23 to 30, with a pre-assembly evangelistic conference May 22 and 23. Meetings will be held at the First United Presbyterian Church, Washington boulevard and Adelaide avenue, and at Xenia Seminary, 6854 Washington boulevard.

It is the first time in 40 years that this church has held an assembly in St. Louis. The sermon at the opening session will be delivered by the Rev. Dr. Robert M. Kerr, vice president of Xenia Seminary, who will be acting moderator at the opening sessions in the absence of Dr. M. G. Kyle, moderator, who is in Palestine at the head of an archaelogical party.

Jacob M. Lashly, president of the St. Louis Bar Association, is general chairman of the St. Louis committee in charge of preparations for the assembly. The Rev. Dr. John M. Vander Muelen, president of the Louisville Presbyterian Seminary, and the Rev. Dr. A. T. Robertson, professor of new testament interpretation in the Southern Baptist Theological Seminary, will speak at the Evangelistic Conference. The Rev. Dr. Jesse M. Bader of St. Louis, secretary of Evangelism of the United Christian Missionary Society, will lead a round table program at the conference.

CONCLUDING CONFERENCES ON RESERVE MILITARY OFFICERS

Headquarters Tomorrow to Be at St. Louis U. Medical School.

The seventh and concluding conference on military affairs for reserve officers in St. Louis and vicinity will be held tomorrow, with headquarters at St. Louis University Medical School, 1402 South Grand boulevard. There also will be meetings at the 138th Infantry Armory and at the American Annex Hotel.

The subjects under discussion will be the Mesopotomia Campaign, in motion picture, and the Palestine Campaign, illustrated by maps and slides. Col. O. W. Bell of the United States Army will conduct the lectures.

Officers who wish to attend the meetings are asked to communicate with Capt. R. A. Byers, Chief of Staff of the 102d Division, with offices in the Old Customs House of this city.

ARCHITECTS TO MEET IN ST. LOUIS THIS WEEK

are on the program. There will be a formal gathering Friday night at the City Art Museum, when the institute's medals for craftsmanship and fine arts will be awarded, fellowships will be announced and results of the election made known. This will be followed by a reception to the architects by the Board of Control of the museum, in the museum galleries.

OPPOSITION TO SMITH AND HOOVER TRYING TO UNITE

New Yorker Claims 553 of Needed 734; Commerce Secretary 446 of Required 545.

CONTESTS LIKELY AT KANSAS CITY

Many Piling Up to Plague Californian's Supporters —Lowden Workers Especially Active.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, May 12.—Political rivalries, growing in intensity as the June national conventions draw near, are bringing to the surface in rapidly multiplying numbers conflicting and confusing claims as to the strength of the various candidates for the Republican and Democratic nominations. At the same time, they are furnishing the driving power for new alignments that may have far-reaching effects when balloting actually begins.

Herbert Hoover, Secretary of Commerce and Gov. Smith of New York are bearing the brunt of the grand offensives that will culminte at Kansas City and Houston. Hoover particularly is challenged by a well-organized opposition.

While Hoover's managers do not claim enough delegates to win, they contend that all signs point to victory for him. His opponents, however, insist they will have the votes in convention to block his nomination.

As for Smith, in one way he has a harder row to hoe, but his supporters claim a big advantage in that his opposition appears to be scattered. The two-thirds nominating rule to which the Democrats adhere makes it necessary for the winner at Houston to capture at least 734 of the 1100 delegates. At Kansas City, only a bare majority, 545 votes, is needed to nominate.

Opposition Building Up.

With the opposition to the New York Governor concentrating on an effort to build up a block of votes large enough to head off his nomination, Republicans lined up against Hoover are overlooking no opportunities to do damage to his cause.

An increasing number of Republican delegates particularly in Southern states is being selected to contest the right of Hoover supporters to sit in the Kansas City convention, and it is a certainty that the Republican National Committee, when it comes to sifting these claims, will have as much work on its hands as it did in 1920 just before the Chicago convention. The Lowden forces, in particular, are challenging Hoover's efforts at every turn, and there is increasing evidence of activity in behalf of the former Illinois Governor on all political battle fronts.

G. O. P. Meets in Four Weeks.

The Republican convention will get under way four weeks from Tuesday. The Democrats will assemble at Houston two weeks later.

Of the 870 Republican delegates actually selected to date Hoover's managers lay claim to 446, of whom 184 are in dispute. A total of 252 is claimed for Lowden, with 68 disputed.

In the Democratic camp, the claims in behalf of Smith to date total 553½, slightly more than half the delegate convention strength, of this total, however, his claims to 79 1-2 are challenged. Reed is runner-up, on the basis of the 774 delegates chosen thus far, with a claimed strength of 117, of whom 81 are in dispute.

Hoover Claims Within 99, Smith Within 181 of Needed Majority

WASHINGTON, May 12.

OF the 1089 delegates to the Republican National convention, 870 have been selected, leaving 219 still to be chosen. A majority, 545, is needed to nominate. Of the 1100 Democratic convention delegates, 774 have been designated and 326 remain to be selected. A two-thirds majority, 734, is required to nominate.

The total after each candidate's name in the following table represents delegates already selected who are instructed, pledged or claimed for him, and not the number conceded to him by opponents. In several states claims overlap, two or more candidates claiming the same delegates, and the total of their claims in some instances exceeds the size of the entire delegation.

Republicans:

HOOVER—446, of whom 184 are in dispute.

Arizona, 4; Arkansas, 6; California, 29; Colorado, 14; Delaware, 4; Florida, 10; Georgia, 16; Iowa, 2; Kentucky, 29; Louisiana, 12; Maine, 15; Massachusetts, 37; Michigan, 33; Minnesota, 7; Mississippi, 12; Missouri, 10; Nebraska, 7; Nevada, 8; New Hampshire, 11; New Mexico, 7; New York, 47; North Carolina, 10; Ohio, 1; Rhode Island, 12; Tennessee, 19; Utah, 11; Virginia, 15; Washington, 17; Wisconsin, 7; Hawaii, 2; Philippines, 2.

Hoover's claim to the following 184 delegates is disputed by opponents: Arizona, 4; Arkansas, 4; Colorado, 7; Delaware, 4; Florida, 10; Georgia, 15; Kentucky, 2; Louisiana, 12; Massachusetts, 26; Minnesota, 1; Mississippi, 12; Missouri, 4; Nebraska, 4; Nevada, 3; New Mexico, 6; New York, 20; North Carolina, 5; Tennessee, 13, Utah, 11; Virginia, 15; Wisconsin, 6.

LOWDEN—252, of whom 68 are in dispute.

Arizona, 9; Arkansas, 7; Colorado, 3; Illinois, 55; Iowa, 27; Minnesota, 21; Missouri, 29; Nebraska, 16; Nevada, 3; New Mexico, 4; North Carolina, 13; North Dakota, 13; Ohio, 20; Oklahoma, 18; South Carolina, 11; Wisconsin, 2; Alaska, 2.

Lowden's claim to the following 68 delegates is disputed by opponents: Arizona, 4; Arkansas, 2; Colorado, 2; Minnesota, 1; Missouri, 4; Nebraska, 4; Nevada, 1; New Mexico, 3; North Carolina, 3; Ohio, 20; Oklahoma, 18; South Carolina, 4; Alaska, 2.

CURTIS—46, of whom 22 are in dispute.

Kansas, 23; Oklahoma, 20; Rhode Island, 1; Alaska, 2.

Curtis' claim to the following delegates is disputed by opponents: Oklahoma, 20; Alaska, 2.

NORRIS—33, of whom 16 are in dispute.

Nebraska, 16; Wisconsin, 17. The 16 Nebraska votes are claimed also for Lowden and four of them for Hoover.

BORAH—11.

Idaho, 11.

The following 158 Republican delegates already selected are not claimed at present by any of the candidates: Connecticut, 17; Delaware, 5; Illinois, 6; Massachusetts, 2; Missouri, 4; New York, 43; Pennsylvania, 79; District of Columbia, 2.

The foregoing table does not include the 33 Indiana delegates who will be instructed for Watson and the 19 delegates from Maryland, who will be instructed for Hoover as a result of the preferential primary results in those States. They have not yet been selected. Conflicting claims in Florida, Georgia, Louisiana, Mississippi and South Carolina revolve largely around contesting delegates.

Democrats:

SMITH—553½, of whom 79½ are in dispute.

Arizona, 6; California, 26; Connecticut, 14; Delaware, 6; Idaho, 8; Illinois, 57; Iowa, 26; Louisiana, 20; Maine, 12; Massachusetts, 36; Michigan, 30; Minnesota, 24; Nevada, 6; New Hampshire, 8; New York, 90; North Dakota, 10; Ohio, 1; Oklahoma, 20; Pennsylvania, 69½; Rhode Island, 10; Utah, 8; Washington, 14; Wisconsin, 26; Alaska, 6; Hawaii, 6; Philippines, 6; Porto Rico, 6; Virgin Islands, 2.

Smith's claim to the following 79½ delegates is disputed by opponents: Illinois, 11; Louisiana, 20; Oklahoma, 20; Pennsylvania, 19½; Utah, 3; Porto Rico, 6.

REED—117, of whom 81 are in dispute.

Illinois, 12; Kansas, 20; Missouri, 36; Oklahoma, 20; Pennsylvania, 26; Utah, 3.

Reed's claim to all but his 36 instructed Missouri delegates is disputed by opponents.

POMERENE—47.

Ohio, 47.

GEORGE—28.

Georgia, 28.

HULL—24.

Tennessee, 24.

AYRES—20, claimed also by Reed's managers.

Kansas, 20.

HITCHCOCK—16.

Nebraska, 16.

The 24 delegates from Alabama and the 18 from Arkansas, all uninstructed, are not claimed definitely for any candidate. This table does not include the 30 Indiana delegates still to be selected, who will be instructed for Woollen as a result of the Indiana preferential primary vote.

"CONFESSION" OF MURDERS DOUBTED BY AUTHORITIES

Sanity of J. W. Huff, Who Told of Poisoning Girl and Youth, to Be Tested.

By the Associated Press.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., May 12.—The confessions of James William Huff that he murdered a girl in Indiana and a youth here, were discounted by investigating officials late today as delusions resulting from shell shock and five wounds suffered in the World War.

Huff's confessions were denied in detail this afternoon by his wife, who said Huff was insane, and Sheriff's deputies said that Huff made a confession a month ago which differed materially from his latest.

Friday night Huff, who is 27 years old, serving a short term for petty larceny, told the county jailer he had fatally poisoned 17-year-old Ruth Little, his sister-in-law, at Summitville, Ind., in 1919, and that three years ago he had poisoned James L. Carroll, his 18-year-old brother-in-law, here. The latter crime, Huff declared, was committed with the aid of his wife, Emma Carroll Huff, to obtain $2500 insurance on Carroll's life which later was found to have lapsed.

Huff will be placed under observation to determine his sanity.

GIVES $500,0000 TO CHURCH

By the Associated Press.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., May 12.—Gift of $500,000 by Ellis Phillips, public utilities magnate of Long Island, toward completion of the Broadway Tabernacle of the Methodist Episcopal Church in New York City was announced here late today by Arthur J. Baldwin, railroad attorney of Newark, N. J., one of the officers of the Tabernacle Corporation.

The money was given by Phillips on condition that the directors of the tabernacle raise $250,000 by July 1, and that $750,000 additional be raised by Dec. 1. The tabernacle, he said, already had cost $2,700,000 and an added $2,800,000 would be necessary to finish it.

DEAN WILLIAMS HONORED

COLUMBIA, Mo., May 12. — A resolution of commendation for his 20 years' service as head of the oldest school of journalism was adopted and a silver vase was presented to Dean Walter Williams today by the Missouri Press Association, which was instrumental in founding the University of Missouri school of journalism in 1908.

The vase was presented by George B. Dealey, president of the Dallas, Tex., News. It bears the inscription, "The reward of a thing well done is to have done it."

SMITH WOULD IGNORE OR TREAT DRY ISSUE LIGHTLY

Governor, if Nominated, Advisor Says, Will Not Give Serious Consideration to Prohibition.

By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, May 12.—Gov. Smith, if nominated for the presidency, will not make prohibition one of the more articulate issues of the impending campaign, it was clearly indicated today by one of his closest friends and advisers. On the contrary, it was said, he will tend to ignore the question, if possible, and what comment he may make on it, if any, will be more in the nature of casual jesting than an impassioned analysis of its values.

This phase of the Democratic strategy, which ostensibly follows along anticipated lines, is expected to find emulation among the Republican candidates. For that matter, Herbert Hoover, outstanding Republican candidate for the presidential nomination, is expected to make no appeal for the "noble experiment," according to his friends.

More than merely a desire to escape self-identification with this issue, it was explained, this attitude toward the prohibition question is born of political wisdom, according to this Democratic authority, there has been too much synthetic emotionalism over the matter. It is now believed that, in the interest of public opinion, it would be politically wiser to let the whole question alone for the moment.

Senator Pittman's Letter.

As an example of the changing public attitude toward prohibition, there was cited, at Gov. Smith's headquarters today, a letter which Senator Key Pittman of Nevada, a nationally prominent Democrat, recently sent to D. J. Fitzgerald, also of that State, who recently was elected a delegate to the Democratic national convention.

"The overwhelming demand for the nomination of Gov. Alfred Smith," Senator Pittman wrote, "and the analysis of his vote, discloses clearly the issues upon which he was to be elected.

"Arizona is a dry State, and yet Arizona went to Gov. Smith. Idaho is a dry State, and yet Idaho went to Gov. Smith. Arkansas is a dry State, and yet the Arkansas delegation is for Gov. Smith. (Arkansas' delegates are uninstructed). So it must appear that the prohibition question is not a national issue in these states."

Man Behind the Platforms.

Senator Pittman has been the man behind the recent Democratic platforms. It was indicated that he probably would be in this position this year, although not a delegate to the convention. It was indicated further that this idea he enunciates will find its way into the finished platform.

President's Physician to Be Colonel

WASHINGTON, May 12. — A Senate bill to grant the rank, pay and allowances of a Colonel in the Medical Corps of the Army to the officer assigned to duty as the President's personal physician, was passed today by the House and sent to the President. The rank would be held during the physician's service in that post. Maj. James F. Coupal now is assigned to duty as the President's personal physician.

WORK HORSES GET DAY OFF AND WIN PRIZES IN PARADE

Crowd Sees Dappled Grays and Others March on West Pine, Past Hospitals to Park.

Yesterday was a great day for St. Louis work horses, particularly for dappled grays and, of all dappled grays, for Hepp, Gene and Teddy.

The occasion was the annual horse parade of the Humane Society. All the favorites of the teamsters were there, curried until they fairly shone, and drawing wagons freshly painted. The three dappled grays mentioned won the three sweepstakes prizes, and Gene won the silver cup for the finest entry of all.

West Pine boulevard from Grand boulevard to Spring avenue was crowded with horses, riders, drivers and admirers at 2 p. m. In the lead were the blue-coated mounted police and khaki-clad soldiers from Jefferson Barracks. Somewhere in the line was a young man clad in mail to represent St. Louis, and carrying a department store advertisement in the form of a shield. There was the Sixth Infantry band, in a motor bus, a long line of field artillery, and nine kinds of wagons.

They marched out West Pine to Kingshighway and south to Clayton road, past the group of hospitals where many patients watched from the windows, past street corners thronged with groups which gathered minutes in advance of the parade, and through Forest Park to the Mounted Police Station, where the judges began their two-hour task.

Ribbons were awarded in 29 classes, and in one class every entry got a ribbon. That was the class for veterans, which was topped by 29-year-old Minnie, which J. Bumberry drove in a buggy team with another horse 24 years old.

Gene, driven by J. W. Busse of 2125 Stansbury street, won the class championship for middleweight horses, the cup for the grand championship, and was one of the gray team which won the blue for express horses. Hepp, driven by Frank Weiss of 3680 Clark avenue, was adjudged champion of horses under 1400 pounds, and Hepp and his teammate were adjudged best of the meat and provision concerns' teams. Teddy, driven by William Koob of 4139 Taft avenue, was named champion of those over 1700 pounds, and was one of the first prize winners among feed, hay and grain teams.

PASSES WEST POINT EXAMS

Frank H. Britton, 5096 Waterman avenue, son of Robert F. Britton, was notified yesterday that he had passed the mental and physical examinations for entrance to West Point and ordered to report July 1.

Britton, a former Soldan High School student, was appointed to the military academy by Senator Hawes.

Radium Is Restoring Health To Thousands

The wonderful curative power of Radium has been known for years. However, the benefits of this precious health-giving substance have in the past been only within the means of persons of wealth.

Since the invention of Degnen's Radio-Active Solar Pad, any man or woman, poor or rich, can afford this treatment which offers so much relief from suffering and disease.

Degnen's Radio-Active Solar Pad is worn next to the body day and night. It pours a constant stream of radio-active energy into the system while you work, play or sleep, helping to build up weakened nerves and tissues to a strong, healthy condition. It creates a vigorous circulation of blood, thus removing congestion, which is the real cause of most diseases.

To prove just what this remarkable treatment can do for you, we will send our appliance on trial with the understanding that we will not charge you a cent if it fails to give satisfactory results. This offer is open to any person who has pain of any kind, nerve weakness, high blood pressure, stomach, kidney or liver complaint, bladder trouble or disease of the lungs or heart.

No matter what your ailment or how long you have had it, we will gladly let you try the appliance at our risk. Write today for free literature giving complete information. Radium Appliance Co., 1442 Bradbury Bldg., Los Angeles, Calif.

OFFICER OF UNION DENIES HE TOOK PART IN BOMBINGS

Harry J. Hagen Asserts He Hasn't "Done a Thing" Since He Tried to Blow Up Building in 1927.

Harry J. Hagen, business agent for the International Union of Wood, Wire and Metal Lathers, was arrested yesterday and held three hours for questioning about the series of bombings of buildings. He was released on $1000 bond pending further investigation.

Hagen denied participation in any vandalism since a year ago, when he was arrested while placing dynamite at Hotel May, 2840 Olive street, on which he asserted non-union lathers had been employed. Details of the capture of Hagen at the hotel and his confession were published in the Post-Dispatch at that time. When the building owner, Frank Yawitz, refused to prosecute, Hagen was discharged.

Damage approximating $80,000 has been caused by 40 bomb explosions in St. Louis, St. Louis County, St. Clair County and Madison County in the last 18 months. Non-union workmen were employed on many of the buildings bombed. Most of the buildings were unoccupied when dynamited, but some lives were endangered.

Arrested on Chief's Order.

Under orders from Chief of Detectives Kaiser, police went yesterday morning to the home of Hagen at 4217 Page boulevard and took him in custody. Hagen described himself as business agent for lathers' locals in St. Louis, East St. Louis, Granite City and Staunton, Ill.

Oscar E. Wells, union lather of Webster Groves, who was visiting Hagen, was arrested when a pair of brass "knuckles" was found in his possession. He explained he carried the metal weapon for protection against a former employer with whom he had trouble. He had called on Hagen, he said, to borrow $10.

An automatic pistol was seized in a drawer at Hagen's home, but Miss Florence Weigle, Assistant Circuit Attorney, rejected an application for a warrant against Hagen on that point.

Denies Share in Bombing.

Questioned by Chief Kaiser, Hagen said he had been ill for several months and had not been active in union affairs. As to bombing:

"Chief, I haven't done a thing since the May Hotel affair. I'm living with my mother and behaving myself.

"Personally, I don't believe the unions are to blame for these bombings. A lot of scab contractors blow up their own buildings to get the insurance. Why, a fellow told me that a contractor in North St. Louis blew up a flat and collected insurance, and blamed it on the union."

May 7, 1927, city detectives, as was told in the Post-Dispatch at that time, arrested Hagen and his brother-in-law, Harold Hale, a lather, in an alley in the rear of Hotel May as Hagen was pushing in a rear door of the building, then nearing completion and since opened for business. Hagen had percussion caps, "canned heat" and a flashlight. Hale was laying down a bundle of 10 sticks of dynamite tied with black tape. He also had a 16-foot fuse and a pair of pliers.

Chicago Union Organizer Held.

In a room at a downtown hotel, on information given by Hagen, police arrested Louis P. Toale, a union organizer from Chicago. A can of "canned heat" was found in his coat.

Hale and Toale were released when warrants against them were refused. The Prosecuting Attorney issued a warrant charging Hagen with malicious destruction of property, but dismissed the warrant in Court of Criminal Correction when Yawitz, the hotel owner, wrote that he did not care to continue the prosecution.

In a statement which he insisted upon typewriting himself, Hagen said he had negotiated with Yawitz for three months about non-union workmen being employed on the hotel.

"Being unsuccessful in my efforts," Hagen confessed, "I made up my mind that I would take a little drastic action in order to try and scare Mr. Yawitz."

Bought Dynamite for $20.

Hagen related how he bought the dynamite in East St. Louis for $20 from a friend who directed him as to its use; and how he and Hale went to the hotel with the dynamite and other supplies and were caught red-handed. Hale denied knowing how the dynamite was to be used.

Yawitz, a real estate dealer, said he was favorable to union labor and employed union men on his projects, but became involved in a quarrel with a union officer over an emergency painting job on which a non-union man was employed for a short time. Yawitz said he was cursed and threatened by union men, and the attempted bombing of his hotel followed. Accompanied by a bodyguard, Yawitz went before the Building Trades Council to explain his position, he said, and subsequently dropped his prosecution of Hagen by request.

FIVE IN ST. LOUIS JEWELRY FRAUD ARE SENTENCED

Morris Singer Sent to Prison for Year and Day — Two Others Get Jail Terms Two Fined.

By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, May 12.—Five St. Louis jewelers were sentenced in Federal Court today for aiding and abetting Jacob U. Ufland, former president of the bankrupt Milton Watch Co., Inc., in the concealment of $250,000 assets of that concern. They pleaded guilty.

Morris Singer was sentenced to a year and a day in Atlanta Penitentiary; Herman Rosenthal and Jack Trauss were given 30-day jail sentences; Sol Trauss, Jack's brother, was fined $250, and Herman Willer was fined $500. Singer, Rosenthal and Jack Trauss will begin serving their sentences immediately.

Ufland was sentenced to a year in Atlanta prison in September, 1926, after giving incriminating evidence against the others.

Four of the St. Louis jewelers sentenced at New York yesterday on their admission that they helped Jacob Underwood Ufland conceal $250,000 worth of assets of the National Jewelry Co. of St. Louis and the Milton Watch Co. of New York, at first said they were victims of Ufland's persuasiveness and charged him with wrecking their respective concerns.

Ufland fled to Germany in the fall of 1924, leaving his wife, who later divorced him, and baby here and more than $600,000 in unpaid merchandise accounts. Against his debts Federal trustees realized about $40,000 for creditors. Ufland's departure was followed shortly by the failure of Morris Singer's diamond brokerage business, 503 Pine street; Herman Rosenthal's three stores at 17,113 and 121 North Broadway; and the Trauss Bros. Jewelry Co. in the Commercial Building.

Singer, who did a "sidewalk" brokerage business, failed for $105,000; Rosenthal listed debts of $100,000, and Trauss Bros. Co. owed $75,000. Singer's only assets consisted of office furniture, which he claimed as exempt. Rosenthal's creditors divided $5000, and creditors of Trauss Bros. received 4 per cent on their claims.

At hearings before Referee in Bankruptcy Coles, the jewelers stated their troubles resulted from signing "accommodation" paper for Ufland and through "lending" him merchandise, which he failed to replace. Singer was the largest signer of accommodation paper, affixing his name to $60,000 worth of notes, which Ufland discounted. Singer admitted to Referee Coles that his signature was "less than worthless" at the time of signing the notes.

Ufland's former wife is the daughter of Jacob Bulova, millionaire watch manufacturer of New York. His connection with Bulova helped in obtaining credit from Eastern manufacturers.

SUES TO BAR FILLING STATION BEING ERECTED NEAR SCHOOL

Robert F. Miller, Attorney, Seeks to Prevent Construction at 3100 Ivanhoe Avenue.

A temporary restraining order was issued yesterday by Circuit Judge Mix to prevent the Puritan Oil Corporation from erecting a filling station at 3100 Ivanhoe avenue.

It is alleged by Attorney Robert F. Miller, plaintiff in the action, that the station is too close to the Longfellow public school, in violation of a city ordinance. He also alleges that when the permit was granted, he filed a protest with the Board of Public Service, but was informed by one of the members, Director of Public Safety Brod, that the permit would not be revoked. Miller is a neighboring property owner.

Mrs. Margaret Gallagher, owner of the property, and D. H. Cohn, who applied for the permit, are named as co-defendants with the oil company. A court hearing was set for Tuesday.

ROULETTE PALACE DOES GOOD BUSINESS IN SHANGHAI

Authorities of International Settlement Object to It But have Failed to Suppress it.

By the Associated Press.

SHANGHAI, May 12. — Shanghai's lively and cosmopolitan night life resorts have a new and elegant competitor in the shape of a roulette palace, which the authorities of the International Settlement deplore, but which so far they have found no way of suppressing.

It is called "The Wheel" and is located in an apartment building in the heart of the Settlement. Nightly until daybreak it is crowded with patrons, mostly from the rapidly changing foreign population.

The police have tried to raid it, but are confronted with the difficulty that Settlement residents are governed by laws of their native land. "The Wheel" is variously reported to be owned by Spaniards, Mexicans and Portuguese.

ACTIVITIES

TWO SCOUT CAMPS WILL OPEN MAY 25

Outing for Leaders and Families to Be Innovation This Year.

Two Boy Scout camps, one of an entirely new type, will be held at the Irondale Reservation, the official camp of the St. Louis Council, the week-end of May 25, 26 and 27. One is to be a merit badge camp for first and second class scouts. The other, put into effect for the first time this year, will be a family camp for scout leaders and their families.

The family camp was planned to make amends for the fact that leaders attending the scoutmasters' week-end camp last Saturday and Sunday were not permitted to take their families with them, as has been the custom in past.

The scoutmasters' week-end is to be a camping and outdoor activity training course, in which the leaders may learn the best ways of teaching such phases of scouting to their troops. With their families in camp, however, it sometimes developed that not enough time was spent on scouting subjects, and too much on recreation.

Families in Special Week-End.

The present experiment was therefore tried, of having the leaders go alone to the training camp, while a separate period was set aside for the groups. The family division will occupy the cabins ni the main camp.

The merit badge workers at the same time will occupy the Adirondack shacks at the Ranger Camp, the two groups being entirely independent of each other. Badges in outdoor subjects, such as the various nature badges, pioneering, tracking, camping and parts of other badges that are difficult to pass in the city, will be stressed at the camp, although any badge may be passed.

It is not intended to make it necessary for any certain badge to be completed fully; the boy will merely be given opportunity to work on and pass those parts of badges for which the city offers little opportunity. It has several times happened, however, that a scout has completed two or three badges at the camp.

To Go on Special Train.

Both groups will leave Union Station on a special Missouri Pacific train Friday evening, returning to St. Louis Sunday evening. Except for the train ride, however, the two will be kept separate.

Irondale this week-end is occupied by about 200 scouts and their fathers, in the annual Fathers' and Sons' camp, the idea of which is to bring the father more in sympathy and understanding with the scout movement, and to bring the boy and man closer together personally.

No scouts will be at the reservation next week-end, as it then will be turned over to the public school teachers of the city and county. Last year about 150 girls and women attended the school teachers' camp, and it is expected about the same number will go next week. The teachers will occupy the main camp cabins and also will go and return by special train.

A social to raise funds for troop equipment will be held by Troop 105, of the Assumption School, May 23. The scouts worked to complete their plans at the last meeting.

Not One Drink In Thirty Years!

Former Heavy Drinker—Now Successful Business Man—Saved from Ruin by Dr. Keeley's Famous Treatment.

"Yes, sir, I am proud to say I haven't taken a single drink in thirty years. And I used to drink to excess every day before I took the Keeley Treatment," says a former patient. Thousands of others, men and women formerly hopelessly afflicted with the disease of drunkenness, today point with pride to records of many years of total abstinence. To The Keeley Treatment alone they owe their present happiness and freedom from the greatest curse of all time—liquor and drugs. If you know anyone suffering from these vicious diseases—write us today. Let us tell you how The Keeley Treatment obtains permanent results in the treatment of liquor and drug addicts. Keeley's record dates back over a period of more than fifty years. The success of The Keeley Treatment is proved by its record in thousands upon thousands of cases. Don't delay. Investigate today. Troop Notes

West District.

Organization of a new Scout troop was completed Monday night at Masonic Temple in University City, under Scoutmaster Meagher, Assistant Scoutmaster Armstrong, and Troop Committeemen Dr. Mars, Eberle and Ebert. The troop will be sponsored by the Temple.

Thirty-two scouts of Troop 30 of the Y. M. H. A., hiked to the Lions' Den Reservation last week-end. Senior Patrol Leader Frank Gollub was in charge of the scouting activities. Scout Morris Gollub took charge of the meals, and Scut Paul Goudon conducted the council fire program. The boys played games and studied the stars, Saturday evening, and practiced pitching tents and other scouting activities, Sunday. Several of the best signallers practiced long-range signaling, with field glasses.

The drum and bugle corps of Troop 9, of the Eden Immanuel Evangelical Church, held their first rehersal since the circus at the last meeting of the troop. The "Yell," the official troop publication, was also distributed at the meeting.

A hike to the Meramec Quarry was taken by Troop 78, of the Hodiamont Improvement Association, last Sunday, several scouts passing first and second-class tests while on the trip. A Mothers' day program and a Tenderfoot Investiture Ceremony was held by the troop, Friday. Assistant Scoutmaster R. K. Jones attended the Scoutmasters' Camp at Irondale last week.

North District.

A dinner was given by the congregation for 35 scouts of Troop 42 of Zion Church, Monday evening. Scouts Jaeger and Bauer gave talks on Camp Irondale. The troop is working for the Camparall.

Scout James Duerbusch passed his tenderfoot tests at the last meeting of Troop 3 of the Grace Holy Cross Church. Committeeman Herzog, who spoke, and Committeeman Selaii, who helped the boys with signaling and knots, were visitors. Instruction in hiking, trail blazing and tracking also was given. The troop has again taken charge of raising and lowering the flag at the church. They will reregister in another week.

Troop 58 of the Holy Name Society visited radio station KMOX recently. A one-day hike was taken by the troop last week. The motion picture "Simba" was discussed at the last meeting.

The scouts of Troop 83 divided into separate groups to study scouting at the last meeting of the troop at the St. Paul's Presbyterian Church. Several tests were also passed. Four patrol leaders from this troop attended the patrol leaders' camp at Irondale. Plans are being made for an overnight camp to be held soon.

Assistant Scoutmaster John Stumpf of Troop 88 of the Salem Church, attended the scoutmasters' week-end camp last week at Irondale. E. Sanders is acting as temporary scoutmaster. Forty-six boys reregistered for the coming year at the last meeting, which also was attended by six committeemen. Scout Ralph Beals is troop reporter.

As Scoutmaster Kripplaben and Assistant Scoutmaster Collins of Troop 161 were attending the scoutmasters' week-end camp at the time the regular meeting of the troop was scheduled last week, Mrs. Kripplaben gave a party to the scouts that evening. Scribe James Odell has been promoted to Junior Assistant Scoutmaster, and a new scribe is to be chosen. Scout Harold Seabourn is the troop reporter.

Scouts Edward Morris, Ralph Meyer, Harold Emstail and Edward Knollman of Troop 206 of the Ames School, went on a hike last Sunday to pass their 14-mile hike and map-making tests. All four were successful.

South District.

Thirty-four scouts, two troop committeemen and two visitors of Troop 77, of the Tyler Place Presbyterian Church took an overnight hike to the Lions' Den last week-end. The camp opened with a flag-raising ceremony, followed by instructions on the Camparall. Some of the scouts went on a reptile hunt, and added several snakes, lizards and a tortoise to their museum. A game of capture the flag and a campfire concluded the day. Arising at 5:30 o'clock the next morning, those who did not prepare for breakfast went on a bird hike. Several new birds were identified. Some of the fathers came out during the morning.

A hike to the Chain of Rocks was taken by Troop 118 of the Chouteau School, last Sunday. Two scouts, Jerome Koehler and George Welch, passed tracking on the hike. Deputy Commissioner L. A. Lang was present at the last meeting and introduced several new games.

The four patrol leaders, Lawrence Gross, Franklin Partney, Frank Brandhorst and Edward Brewer, of Troop 248, of the Long School, attended the recent patrol leaders' camp at Irondale, and gave a complete report of the trip to the troop at the last meeting. Deputy commissioner Lang presented the troop with a charter, and spoke on the observance of the oath and laws. Scouts Brandhorst and Breuer have passed their first class-tests, and Russell Trais, Walter Brehear and Lawrence Gross have passed their second class tests. Scout Elmer Brandhorst was elected senior patrol leader recently, and Scout Edward Breuer, scribe. The troop is planning a hike in the near fueure.

Suburban District.

Suburban District patrols took both first and second places at the recent Patrol Leaders' Week End Camp at Irondale, tabulation of the scores from the various events revealed. The patrol winning out over all others was led by Scout Stephen Douglas of Kirkwood 2, while that taking second place was headed by Scout Bill Puffer of Webster Groves 7.

Scout "Family Barbecue" Off.

A "family barbecue" for scoutmasters, assistant scoutmasters, troop committeemen and their families, scheduled to be held at the Irondale Reservation Memorial day, has been called off, local Boy Scout headquarters announced Friday. Conflict with the Camparall, or general camping contest, to be participated in by all troops of the council, was given as the reason. A large number of scout leaders had indicated they could not attend the barbecue, as they wished to spend all their spare time at that period working with their troops on Camparall projects. The Camparall is to be held the first week in June.

SCOUT EXAMINATIONS SET FOR THIS WEEK

Preparation for Award of Merit Badges at Court of Honor.

Boy Scout Boards of Review, to examine all applicants for the rank of First Class Scout, and for merit badges for camping, athletics, pioneering, and bird study, will be held in each of the four districts this week, in preparation for the District Courts of Honor which will award these ranks week after next. All applications in these subjects dated by examiners since the last Court of Honor, held April 16, must be reviewed before the badge will be awarded.

The South District Board will meet tomorrow evening at the Rose Fanning School; the North District Tuesday evening at the Farragut School; the Suburban District Wednesday evening at the Webster Groves High School; and the West District Thursday evening at the Clark School. A special board for Suburban District troops in the Overland area, or for troops nearer Overland than Webster, will be held at the Overland School Thursday evening.

Filing Applications.

It will not be necessary for scouts to file applications for review at Scout Headquarters before taking the examination, according to Earle W. Beckman, local Scout executive. Applications may be filed directly with the boards. It shall be necessary, however, for candidates for the first-class rank to have with them their bank books, map, 14-mile hike account, and materials required to meet the construction requirements. If the materials are too bulky to carry a written description of them by the scoutmaster will be accepted.

"There is at present on file at headquarters a considerable number of applications in first aid, personal health, public health, firemanship, and camping that were expected to be reviewed at previous boards, but on which the applicants did not appear," said Beckman. "These applications therefore are held up and cannot be awarded until they have been reviewed. Unfortunately, the Court of Honor has taken the stand that any application filed in scout headquarters must be presented for review before two courts of honor periods have elapsed. In other words, if a scout fails to appear for review, or if he does so, but allows two courts of honor to pass, his badges or applications become lapsed, and he must repass the examinations.

Dates for Courts of Honor.

The District Courts of Honor are scheduled for the week of May 20 as follows: West District, Monday evening, at the Ben Blewett Junior High School; Suburban District, Tuesday, Webster Groves High School; North District, Wednesday evening, Yeatman High School; South District, Thursday evening, Missouri School for the Blind.

The South District Court was at first announced to be held at the McKinley Junior High School, but the change to the Blind School was arranged later.

Makes Fat People Slim

New York Physician Perfects Simple and Easy Method of Reducing Weight

Dr. R. Newman, a licensed practicing physician, of 286 Fifth Avenue, New York, announces that he has perfected a treatment which has quickly rid fat people of excess weight. What is more remarkable is the Doctor's statement that he has successfully treated thousands of patients for fat reduction without unnecessary change of diet or burdensome exercise. He also says that fat people who suffer from chronic rheumatism, gout, asthma, and high blood pressure obtain great relief from the reduction of their superfluous flesh. Realizing that this sounds almost too good to be true, the Doctor has offered to send without charge to anyone who will write him, a free trial treatment to prove his claims, as well as his "Pay-when-reduced" plan. If you want to rid yourself of superfluous fat, write him today, addressing Dr. R. Newman, 286 Fifth Avenue, New York City, Dept. R.

New Goitre Remedy

Great interest attaches to reports of a remarkable method for treating goitre recently demonstrated at the W. T. B. Laboratory, 819 Sanborn Bldg., Battle Creek, Mich. It is used by the patient herself in her own home and it is said that the largest and most hideous goitres begin to recede almost in a day. They gradually get smaller until in three or four weeks they are often gone entirely. The treatment is perfectly safe for anyone to use and many believe it will prove the long sought specific for all goitres. A little book issued by the laboratory explains the method fully and will be mailed free for the asking to anyone interested.

Diabetics

If you have the slightest symptoms of Diabetes—such as excessive thirst, inordinate hunger, with loss of weight in spite of keen appetite, with nervousness, irritability, restlessness, anxiety over trifles and loss of strength—lose no time in reading one of the most remarkable books of the day, "Is Diabetes Curable?"

It will be mailed free to anyone who will send merely name and address to Sanborn Laboratories, 942 Sanborn Building, Battle Creek, Michigan. It describes the Sanborn home treatment and relates the experiences of men and women of national prominence who restored themselves to perfect health after other treatments had failed.

The book has 78 pages bound in board covers and is a mine of authentic information for those who are suffering from Diabetes.

ROP ESTIMATE ERROR REPORTED, WHEAT OFF

inter Wheat Crop Estimate Is Enlarged by 7,000,000 Bushels.

ST. LOUIS MERCHANTS' EXCHANGE, y 12.—Wheat futures closed several lower at the week-end session, fol- ing early upturn. Corn was influenced wheat and closed at a decline. The sharp reaction followed report of official revision of the Government crop report. The latter raised the ate of 1928 domestic winter wheat duction, and made the forecast 486,-000 bushels as compared with 479,-000 bushels given out at Washing- earlier in week.

the cash grain market Saturday soft wheat was off 5 cents. Demand was and limited to the better classes of ive milling wheat. Ordinary No. 3 red, grades and Western varieties, had no and there is still a substantial accumu- of Western white and Western red at on the market. Hard wheat was 1 to 3 cents, with deals at the full late. Shippers took hold in a fair and offerings were pretty well cleaned There were track sales on a basis over the Chicago July price for No. including some Nebraska wheat 11.09 to 11.25 per cent protein. was ¼c to 1½c lower. Part of the ings were carried over as the demand fair was not large. Local trade, and shippers bought corn. Oats were dy to 1c off. Offerings showed a con- able range in quality, which was re- in the prices paid. Local trade mills were the buyers of best samples. After opening more than cent higher, wheat reacted some. Comment was on the weather situation in north- and temperature in winter wheat Liverpool wheat came ¾d up on ½d on July and 1⅛d on October. ipeg early was ⅝c lower on May ½c up on July. Corn for July deliverey both under and over previous close. July wheat opened at $1.53, September $1.53½. July corn $1.10.

Local wheat receipts, which were 124,- bushels, compared with 79,800 a ago and 68,600 a year ago, included cars local and 28 through. Corn re- ipts, which were 100,800 bushels, com- with 110,600 a week ago and 103,- a year ago, included 54 cars local and through. Oats receipts, which were 000 bushels, compared with 58,000 a ago and 50,000 a year ago, included cars local and 13 through. Hay re- were five cars local and five ough.

The three Northwestern markets com- had 820 cars of wheat, compared 373 a week ago and 646 a year ago, eapolis receiving 187 cars, Duluth 88 Winnipeg 545.

WEEK'S METAL MARKET REVIEW

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, May 12.—Withdrawals against contracts in the steel market were again large during the past week, but only a moderate volume of new business was reported. Railroads continued to place moderate orders for equipment. Bookings of structural steel by mills in the Eastern territory were smaller, but large individual contracts were reported pending in the street. The daily rate of ingot production for April was the highest on record, and the output for the first quarter of the year also was the largest in the history of the steel industry. Pig iron was unchanged.

Increased demand for both domestic and foreign account developed in the copper market. Most business was confined to nearby delivery and in some instances producers were asking a premium for May shipment. So far this month, domestic sales are estimated at 25,000 tons and exports at 17,000 tons. Producers were holding steady at 14⅛ for electrolytic delivered in Connecticut valley.

Demand for tin improved slightly with an advance at London, consuming interest was fair for May-June shipment.

Lead was steady. Demand was confined principally to single carloads for prompt and May.

Zinc continued firm. Smelters were not offerings to any extent with report intimating another advance in ore probable. Stocks increased slightly during April.

Antimony advanced further owing to the unsettled conditions in the Far East and the higher Chinese exchange.

Dry Goods Market Review.

NEW YORK, May 12.—Cotton goods steady. Print cloths active. Fine goods firmer. Raw silk steady and quiet. Burlaps slightly firmer. Clothing and garment manufacturers ordering fall piece goods moderately.

Foreign Exchange

NEW YORK, May 12.—The Evening Post, in its copyrighted weekly foreign exchange market review, says:

"The foreign exchange market was without general tendency during the week, various groups moving in different directions at the same time. European exchanges were directly influenced by the expectation that the bank rate in this city would be increased on Thursday and sterling and some of the leading continental rates were in supply for a time. When the bank rate remained unchanged at 4 per cent, however, buying came in in all those documents.

"Sterling, which had sold as low as $4.88 for cables, rose to $4.88¾ and Dutch exchange had a sharp advance to 40.45½ for guilders from a low of 40.33 earlier in the week.

"Italian exchange was without variation, cables holding at 5.27. Spanish again moved over a wide range, first dropping to 16.68 and then rallying to 16.86. Scandinavian exchanges were in steady demand, Norway making a new high record yesterday, when crown checks sold at 26.79. Denmark was also strong and held on an even level with Sweden during the greater part of the week.

"Most speculative interests were attached to the movement in exchange on Japan, which was directed by the conflict in China. Heavy offerings of Japanese exchange carried yen down from 46.75 to 45.58, but the market quickly turned and nearly all that loss was recovered later in the week. Chinese exchange had a violent advance in the middle of the week, but reacted from the high levels.

"Canadian exchange was in large supply, changing from a premium of 1-64 to a discount of 1-16. Havana exchange holding at a premium of 1-16 early in the week was at a discount later in the week."

NEW YORK, May 12.—Foreign exchange quotations were as follows:

ENGLAND—Sterling, demand $4.87 13-16; cables $4.88 3-16; 60-day bills on banks $4.84 5-16.

NEW YORK, May 12.—Rubber spot, smoked ribbed, 18¾c.

New York Sugar.

NEW YORK, May 12.—The raw sugar market was quiet today and prices were unchanged. The only sale reported was about 25,000 bags of Cuban to an outport refiner for June shipment at 4.52c delivered, with additional quantities available at the same price. Local refiners were showing no interest and it was believed that bids of fractionally below this would probably be accepted on some nearby duty frees.

Reflecting the inactivity in the spot market, there was only a small turnover in raw sugar futures, with price movements narrow. The undertone was a little easier under liquidation for over the week-end and some selling believed to be for Cuban or European account, with final prices showing net declines of 1 to 2 points. May closed 2.60c, July 2.71c, September 2.82c, December 2.90c, January 2.82c, March 2.78c.

The refined sugar market was quiet and unchanged at 5.05c to 6c for fine granulated.

ABNORMAL ACTIVITY IN LONDON STOCKS

Special to the Post-Dispatch and New York Evening Post.

By ARTHUR W. KIDDY.

LONDON, May 12.—The abnormal activity existing in stocks and new capital issues continues and with the public speculative appetite aroused it is difficult to say when the movement will stop. Most people anticipate more sober conditions for the second half of the year.

Unless the situation changes it is believed that the New York rate must rise and there is some talk now that it might go straight to 5 per cent. What with the traders clamoring for cheap money and speculators clamoring for capital appreciation through a rise in the price of shares the task of the central banks on both sides of the Atlantic is difficult.

Moreover, although the point may seem small and sentimental, it is impossible to overlook the fact that stock exchange booms and quickly amassed fortunes usually have an awkward rebound on domestic politics. Wild expenditures on new luxuries generally give a direct stimulus to socialistic activities.

The currency and bank note bill according to general belief may become a law next week. Even if the bill is passed, however, the actual fusion of the two systems will probably not occur for six months owing to preparations necessary for the printing of the notes, and also on account of waiting until £6,000,000 treasury notes now used as currency in Ireland will return for cancellation, by reason of the Irish Free State currency bill becoming effective later in this year.

Probably the change will be effected on Jan. 1, 1929. The chief features of the bill are the powers given the bank to issue one and ten shilling notes, making the same legal tender. The issue and banking departments are still to be kept separate. The proportion of notes to gold in the issue department will automatically drop from about 90 to 40 per cent, but it must be remembered that the gold currency no longer applies internally, as the bank is called upon to cash notes only in terms of bullion and for a minimum amount of roughly £2000.

The chief interest in the new system, however, centers in the clauses affecting the fiduciary issue limits and the banks' new powers acquire gold. Concerning the former point, the fiduciary limit is fixed at £260,000,000, which is approximately equal to the bank's fiduciary limit of £19,750,000 plus the Treasury note limit of £244,935,128. The apparent discrepancy is explained by the impending return of the Irish notes already referred to above. The bill, however, also contains clauses whereby the fiduciary limit, if urgently required by the bank, by either expanded or contracted with the Treasury's consent, expanion being allowed, however, only for a period of six months.

It is important in this connection to note that the initiative for expansion or contraction must come from the Bank of England, thus removing all apprehension of the Government's control over note issues.

All profits on the note issue go to the state. An important provision of the bill is the following clause: "Any person owning gold coin or bullion to an amount exceeding £10,000 in value shall on being required to do so by notice in writing from the bank, forthwith furnish to the bank in writing particulars of the gold coin and bullion owned by that person and shall, if so required by the bank, sell to the bank, the whole or any part of said coin or bullion other than any part thereof of which is bona fide held for immediate export or which is bona fide required for industrial purposes, on payment therefor by the bank, in the case of coin of the nominal value thereof, and in the case of bullion, at the rate fixed in section four of the bank charter act of 1844."

These gold clauses are being criticised in the money market as interfering with the liberty in gold dealing and together with clauses about expansion and contraction of the fiduciary limits have produced a feeling that the passage of the bill should be regarded as temporary in character with a probable overhauling of the bank act some few years later after an investigation by a special committee.

New York Coffee.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, May 12.—The market for coffee futures was irregular today. Prices showed a tendency to ease off under further realizing or liquidation, accompanied by talk of a slightly easier tone in the cost and freight situation. Rio contracts opened 4 points lower to 5 points higher. September sold off to 15.22c, but closed at 15.28c, with the market closing net 10 points lower to 5 points higher. Santos contracts closed net unchanged to 11 points lower. Sales estimated, Rio 17,000, Santos 21,000.

Closing quotations: Rio, May, 15c; July, 15.23c; September, 15.28c; December, 15.18c; January, 15.13c; March, 15.13c; May (1929), 15.10c. Santos—May, 22.65c; July, 22.45c; September, 22.20c; December, 21.85c; January, 21.80c; March, 21.60c; May (1929), 21.46c.

Spot coffee quiet; Rio 7s, 15¾c; Santos 4s, 23½c to 23¾c. The few cost and freight offers reported were about unchanged to 10 points lower.

Rio exchange on London and dollar buying rate unchanged. Rio market 50 to 75 reis higher; Santos 25 to 100 reis lower. Brazilian port receipts, 38,000; Jundiahy receipts, 16,000.

Steel Market.

NEW YORK, May 12.—Steel unchanged.

COTTON FUTURES LOWER AT WEEK'S LAST SESSION

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, May 12.—The cotton market was lower today under week-end liquidation and some trade or commission house selling, evidently inspired by reports of rains in Texas. July sold off to 21.05c and closed at that figure, with the general market closing steady at net declines of 25 to 34 points.

The opening was steady at declines of five to 11 points, with active months soon showing net losses of 26 to 30 points, on the Texas rain reports and the failure of Liverpool fully to meet yesterday's local advance. This decline brought in considerable covering, some trade calling and a renewal of commission house demand. Prices steadied in consequence, showing rallies of 10 or 15 points during the middle of the morning, but reports of rains in the Southwest continued to come in and the market weakened in late trading under renewed selling. May sold off to 21.32c, and October to 21.02c late in the morning, and the close was within a point or so of the lowest.

Trading was fairly active at the start, but became comparatively quiet during the middle of the morning. There was another spurt toward the close, probably on liquidation by early buyers.

The opinion was generally expressed that the rains in the Southwest would be beneficial, although there appeared to be some doubt as to how much relief they might have afforded in the drouth sections. The amount of cotton on shipboard at the end of the week awaiting clearance was estimated at 94,556 bales against 118,675 last year and 91,162 two years ago.

Spot quiet; middling, 21.85c.

Private cables said there had been continental buying and trade calling in the Liverpool market, which had been supplied by realizing, and that there was only a limited business in cotton cloths. The selling here was supposed to include orders from the Southwest, but the bulk of it was attributed to realizing or liquidation of long accounts. It was reported that moderate warm rains were wanted in some central belt sections to bring up replanted cotton, but a possibility that the western belt rains might work eastward by Monday morning may have caused some covering.

RATE RAISES HOLD FUNDS IN INTERIOR

Move by Reserve System Accomplishes What Was Intended, Review Says Out-of-Town Banks Draw Down New York Balances for Use in Market.

NEW YORK, May 12.—The Evening Post in its copyrighted weekly financial review, says:

"Whatever the fortunes of 1928 business turn out to be the country has implicit faith in the future, and is betting all the money it can lay its hands on that stocks will be swept by world prosperity to levels still higher than any yet seen. From every hamlet and from every important country orders for stock are pouring into New York. An office bootblack walked into a prominent Wall street house this week and bought 100 shares of a stock that a customer of his had tipped over the telephone to a friend. Until recently the country's bond investments represented a market value unmistakably greater than stocks but in the last year the value of listed stocks has left that of bonds far behind.

Bad News Ignored.

"In such a state of speculative fever the market finds it easy to ignore the bad news and to benefit from the good. Consequently, when the Steel Corporation's report this week revealed a sharp drop in new business, call money rose to the highest level for this season in five years, brokers' loans mounted for the tenth consecutive week to a new high, and fresh evidence came of a determination to restrict credit by the reserve system, these unfavorable market influences were all swept aside as unimportant. That an increase in brokers' loans of a round billion dollars in the last five months, and of $665,000,000 in the last 10 weeks, represents a pace abnormally fast, nobody doubts, but offsetting that bearish force has been a confidence on the part of the public that nothing could daunt.

Reserve Banks Accomplish End.

"Failing to comprehend exactly what had taken place, commentators in instances this week interpreted the rise of nearly $100,000,000 in brokers' loans for the account of out-of-town banks as a sure sign that the reserve system has been unable to check the flow of funds to New York. It was to choke off the movement of money from interior points that the reserve banks outside of New York raised their discount rates. Opinion to the contrary notwithstanding, this move by the reserve system accomplished what was intended. It almost immediately checked the movement of funds from the interior to New York. This week's large increase in loans for the account of out-of-town banks did not represent an actual movement of funds here from the interior. It showed simply that out-of-town banks had been drawing down their New York balances for use in the market. Since reduction in out-of-town balances cuts down what is available for loans by New York banks, the operation represents no net gain.

Quarterly Earnings Better.

"Meanwhile reports from industry indicate that possibly business is better than might be judged from press comments. Net earnings during the first quarter of this year ran substantially ahead of those for the same period a year ago, and that, despite the fact 1927's recession did not start until the second or third quarter. What this means is that although business was at its best in the initial period last year, profits for the opening quarter of 1928 were larger than then. If the present pace can be maintained comparison with a year ago in subsequent 1928 quarters should be favorable. Improving agricultural prices give the farmer hope for real profit notwithstanding early indications that some of the leading crops will not equal last year's volume. In industry itself opportunities to grind out larger profits through introduction of new methods still abound.

TRANSACTIONS ON NEW YORK BOND MARKET

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, May 12.—Following is a list of closing prices on bonds traded in on the New York Stock Exchange Friday (last trading day of the week), together with closing on same list of bonds the previous week:

Quotations on all Liberty Bonds are in dollars and thirty-seconds of a dollar; that is, for instance, a sale printed 99—24 means $99 and twenty-four thirty-seconds of a dollar and not $99.24.

aHeadley entry.

Jock, racing in his best form, was kept restrained for half a mile, moved up with a rush when called on, drew out in stretch to win with much in reserve. Cartago, well up most of the way, finished gamely. Flat Iron was tiring, but managed to outstay Genial Host. Latter had to race wide last quarter. Bonivan tired. Helen's Babe was done when reaching stretch. Mike Hall was given a bad ride and taken back repeatedly when he suffered interference. Rolled Stocking quit.

$2 mutuels paid: Jock, win $8.82, place $4.82, show $3.86; Cartago, place $19.82, show $9.66; Flatiron, show $5.56.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., May 12.—Jock, owned by E. B. McLean, came from the outside after the three-quarter mark at Churchill Downs today to win the Clark Handicap, $10,000 added.

R. E. Leichleiter's Cartago, nominated for the Kentucky Derby, moved up from the field in the stretch to take second place. Flatiron, owned by Stuyvessant Peabody of Chicago, was third.

The handicap, over a mile and one-sixteenth, was run by Jock in 1:45.

Bonivan, another Derby candidate, owned by A. A. Kaizer, set the pace to the half, but was distanced. Jock ran third in last year's derby.

Helen's Babe, winner of the Clark last year, failed to place.

Jock paid $8.82 to win, $4.82 to place and $3.86 to show on each $2 ticket.

Cartago paid $19.82 to place and $9.66 to show.

Flatiron $5.56 to show.

Jockey C. Meyer Is Thrown.

The first race for 3-year-olds and up, was won by King Basil in a close finish with Banter second and Scotland third.

King Basil raced close to the leaders to the stretch, where he moved up determiningly to win by a head with Banter taking the place by a neck. Scotland got up in the last few strides to get the show by a nose. The race was marred by C. Meyer being thrown by Algol, after the field had passed the finish. Meyer attempting to pull up his mount, the horse swerved throwing him to the ground.

The second event for maiden colts and geldings, 2-year-olds, at four and one-half furlongs, went to Disturb, grouped in the field paying $34.48 to win. Silverdale was second and Roy third.

Disturb raced close to the pace maker, Silverdale until reaching the stretch where he came on to win by a head, with the latter taking the place by a neck from Roy. The time for the distance was :54 4-5.

Patrica Marian, following the pace maker Stormy Port, came with a rush in the stretch to win by a nose in the third event. George DeMar outlasted Stormy Port to take the place by a length and a half. The latter was third by four lengths.

Mrs. Hertz Wins a Purse.

The fourth race, went to Mrs John D. Hertz's Protection in easy fashion, over Veneita M and Classy. Protection broke fast and made every post a winning one, to win by two lengths. Veneita M lasted long enough to get the place by half a length from Classy, who got the show by the same distance. The colt paid $16.88 to win.

Anita Peabody Likely to Start

ANITA PEABODY, star 3-year-old daughter of Luke McLuke, regarded as a doubtful starter in the Kentucky Derby, has been reinstated and is now quoted at 6 to 1. Late reports from Louisville have it that the filly will start in the classic at Churchill Downs.

Reigh Count, Anita Peabody's stablemate, is favorite in the future book, at 4 to 1 to win, 5 to 2 to place and 3 to 2 to show. Other short priced horses are Victorian, Misstep and Nassak.

VICTORIAN NOW "DOUBTFUL" AS DERBY STARTER

Victorian, winner of the $60,000 Preakness stakes, is classed as a "doubtful" starter in Tom Kearney's Kentucky Derby quotations today, and Anita Peabody, once considered as practically certain not to start, is now classed as "sure to go" in the Churchill Downs classic.

These surprising developments were learned last night, following the receipt by Kearney of authoritative reports from stable connections of both Victorian and Anita Peabody.

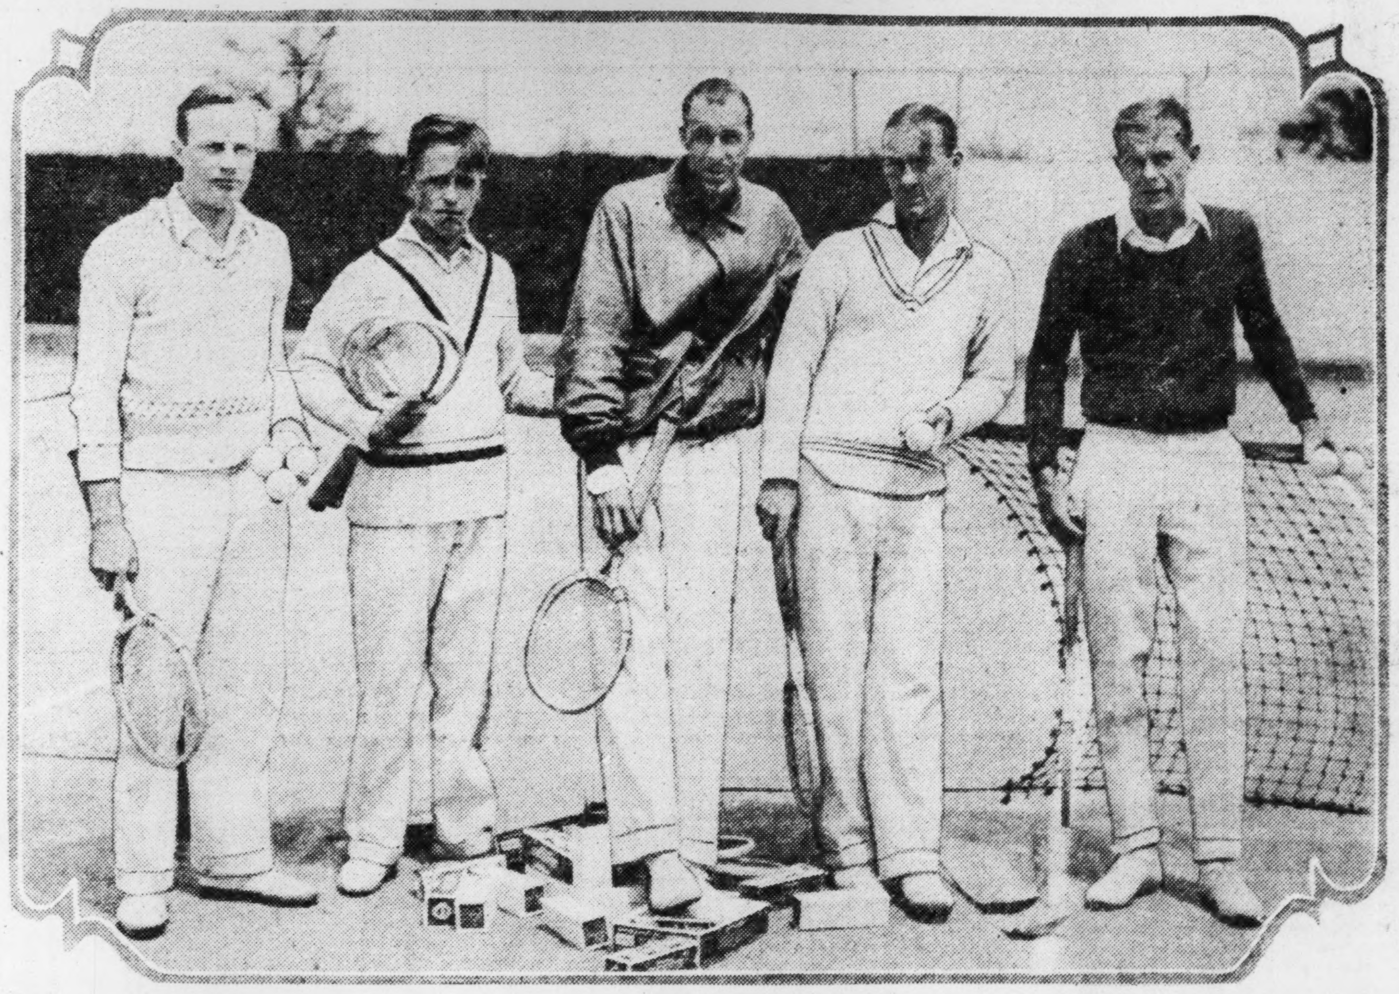
Kearney said that Victorian had suffered some minor accident that would prevent him from being shipped, according to his reports

His faith in the news that Anita Peabody would accompany his stablemate to the post in the Derby was reflected in the odds on the big race. The filly's price, which had soared up to 30 to 1, took a sudden drop to 6 to 1, the second choice for the race.

Today the future prices show Reigh Count favorite at 4 to 1, with Anita Peaody next at 6 to 1. On two occasions the stable owners, Mr. and Mrs. J. G. Hertz, have announced that Anita Peabody would not be sent to the Derby unless something happened to Reigh Count.

No quotation is posted against Vitcorian in Kearney's list. Martle Flynn, which won his third successive race yesterday, was cut to 20 to 1.

Davis Cup Players Here for Trial Matches



—By a Post-Dispatch Staff Photographer.

Davis Cup Aspirants to Open Practice for Trials Tomorrow

By Davison Obear.

The seven candidates for the United States Davis Cup tennis team will begin formal practive tomorrow in preparation for the trial matches which will commence Wednesday afternoon and continue through next Sunday. Both the practice sessions and the trial matches will be held on the courts of the Triple A Club in Forest Park. On the basis of the test matches four men will be selected to represent United States against China in a second round American Zone contest at Kansas City, May 25 to 27.

For the past three days Capt. Bill Tilden, George Lott, Arnold Jones and Wray Brown have been trying out the courts while Junior Coen, 16-year-old Kansas City youth, arrived yesterday morning for practice. The remaining members of the squad, John Hennessey and Wilmer Allison, are expected to reach the city today.

Selection Probably Final.

All of the players present appear to be in good condition and with three more days of practice should be in excellent shape for the trials. All of the players look upon the matches here as the most important of any Davis Cup contests, as the men selected will probably be sent to Europe, providing the team wins the remaining two American Zone matches.

Coen Puts in Busy Day.

Yesterday afternoon, in a series of impromptu tests, Tilden, Coen and Brown entertained about 100 casual spectators. Tilden took four sets from Coen in the morning.

Record Broken For 400 Meters

By the Associated Press.

PALO ALTO, Cal., May 12.—Emerson Spencer, brilliant Stamford sprinter, broke the world's record in the 400-meter race here today when he sped over the distance in 47 seconds flat, four-tenths of a second better than the time made by Ted Meredith in 1916. The event was one of the P. A. A. Olympic games tryouts.

Another world's record was equaled when "Swede" Leistner, San Francisco, Olympic Club, raced over the 100-meter high hurdles in 14 4-5 seconds, tying the mark made in 1920 by E. J. Thompson.

BUSHY GRAHAM KAYOES PETE ZIVIC

NEW YORK, May 12.—Bushy Graham, crack Utica, N. Y., bantamweight, knocked out Pete Zivic of Pittsburg in the fourth round of a 10-round bout at the Olympia A. C., here tonight.

Zivic was down three times for counts of nine before he went to the floor for the full count. Graham weighed 120½ and Zivic 121½ pounds.

Layton Defeats Hoppe, 600 to 536

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, May 12.—Avenging a defeat in a similar match at Chicago, Johnny Layton, three-cushion billiards champion, defeated Willie Hoppe of New York by 64 points in their special 600-point match here, which ended tonight.

Layton took both of the last two 50-point blocks played today.

In the afternoon, the champion ran off his 50 points in 33 innings, while Hoppe was making 46. Each had a high run of eight.

Tonight Layton flashed sensational billiards to win, 50 to 41, in 30 innings. The champion had a high run of 15. Hoppe's best was seven.

The 600 points, played in 12 blocks of 50 each, were run off in 536 innings. Layton moved far in front in the early blocks and Hoppe never could catch up to him.

The champion had bowed to Hoppe at Chicago, 600 to 531, in a match that ended April 28, a few days after Layton had won the three-cushion crown.

TWO GOLFERS MAKE HOLES-IN-1 AT COUNTRY CLUB

TWO holes-in-one were made on the St. Louis County Club course yesterday afternoon in tournament play. This is the first time, according to veteran players, that two holes-in-one were made the same day on a local course. Charles M. Polk and Ley P. Rexford were the players who negotiated the holes at which they were shooting in a single stroke.

Polk sank his hole-in-one on No. 3, a distance of 165 yards. In the foursome in which he was playing were George Conant, C. H. Morrell and Sam Plant.

Rexford's hole-in-one was on the 180-yard No. 16 hole. He was accompanied by Dr. H. W. Soper, Harold Maxwell and W. C. D'Arcy.

HELEN WILLS IN TOP FORM WINS FROM HOLLANDER

By the Associated Press.

THE HAGUE, May 12.—Helen Wills thrilled a crowd of from 3000 to 4000 spectators today in winning a whirlwind match from Kea Bowman, who was able to annex but three games in two sets. The American girl seemed in top form, driving with overpowering speed and placing with almost unerring accuracy. The match was over in 30 minutes.

Rollin Coquerque, the Dutch woman's champion, won from Penelope Anderson in straight sets, the Dutch girl's steadiness proving the decisive factor.

The Dutch won the series of matches, 3 to 2. Miss Wills defeated both Miss Couquerque and Miss Bowman, while Miss Anderson lost both her matches and the Dutch team won the doubles.

Will Hold Shoot Today.

The East St. Louis Municipal Gun Club will hold its regular shoot at Jones Park this afternoon. Fifty singles are on the program.

TUNNEY IN CAMP TO BEGIN WORK FOR HEENEY GO

By the Associated Press.

SPECULATOR, N. Y., May 12.—Gene Tunney, heavyweight champion and man of letters, came back today to the Adirondack hills where he once builded his body from that of a light heavyweight to the 200 pounds of bone and muscle that now rules the ring.

Back in this village of fewer than a thousand citizens, on the shore of Lake Pleasant, Tunney, will train until a few days before the gong in the Yankee Stadium calls him to defend his title against Tom Heeney, in a 15-round battle, probably July 26.

Tunney drove his car into town unheralded. Once in his quarters he doned heavy clothing. In half an hour he was about the premises clad in the familiar blue shirt, gray trousers and battered red sweater of training days. Gene will start light work Monday. No sparring partners are in camp.

BEARS BEAT TIGERS IN TENNIS MATCH

By the Associated Press.

COLUMBIA, Mo., May 12.—Washington University made a clean sweep of four singles matches and divided honors in the doubles events to defeat the Missouri University net men in a dual meet here today.

Andrews and Landes scored the only Tiger win by taking the two final sets after dropping the first to Pollack and Murphy of the Bear team. The results:

Singles: H. Wiese, Washington, defeated Andrews, Missouri, 2—6, 6—2, 6—3; E. Wiese, Washington, defeated Johnson, 7—5, 6—1; Pollack, Washington, defeated Grand, 6—0, 7—5; Murphy, Washington, defeated Landes, 6—2, 8—6.

Doubles: E. Wiese and H. Wiese, Washington, defeated Grant and Johnson, 6—1, 6—1; Andrews and Landes, Missouri, defeated Pollack and Murphy, 3—6, 6—4, 12—10.

By J. Roy Stockton.

Rogers Hornsby and the hustling Braves of Jack Slattery were unable to stop the winning streak of the Cardinals, and with George Harper, late of the Giants, in right field, and Jimmy Wilson, late of the Phils, behind the bat, Bill McKechnie's warriors scored their sixth straight victory yesterday, beating the Boston club, 5 to 3.

Charles Flint Rhem pitched in excellent form for the Cardinals, and he was assisted by excellent support. On the other hand, Ed Brandt, who started for the Braves, lost his control after retiring the first two batters in the opening inning, and before Charlie Robertson could get the third man out, the Cardinals had four runs, and enough to win, with Rhem working so effectively.

The Big First Inning.

Frisch started the first inning rally with a blow that caromed off the extended hand of a pavilion fan for two bases, and the wallop so startled Brandt, the southpaw, that he walked Bottomley and Hafey to fill the bases. Then Ray Blades was hit by a pitched ball, forcing Frisch across the plate, and before Manager Slattery decided that Brandt was impossible, the southpaw walked Wilson, to force in another run.

Charley Robertson, who once gained fame by pitching a perfect no-hit game for the White Sox, then went to the slab. He made Thevenow look foolish on two strikes, but Tommy stayed in there trying and pumped a single to right to send Hafey and Blades over the plate.

Hornsby Knocks Homer.

Hornsby's home run in the first inning produced the Braves' first tally, and they added two in the fifth on three singles and a walk. Burrus opened this inning with a single to center and after Taylor had flied out, Robertson drew a pass. An infield out advanced the runners, and Moore scored them both with a single to left. Moore stole second, and Hornsby had a chances to drive in the tying run, but he tapped a slow roller to High, and, while Rogers beat it out for a single, it merely advanced Moore to third, where he was left, Hafey going back for Brown's long fly.

Harper Scores Bottomley.

The Cardinals added their fifth run in the seventh inning when Jim Bottompley doubled to right and scored on Harper's single to center.

The Braves played a brilliant game in the field and four double plays that they executed helped to hold down the Cardinals' scoring. McKechnie's men gathered 11 hits, ten off Robertson, but they were able to score only one run off the right-hander, so brilliantly did the Braves support him.

In the third inning Bottomley led off with a double, but Robertson lunged for a glove-hand catch of Hafly's pop bunt and intended sacrifice and Bottomley was doubled off second.

Bell Grabs Hot Line Drive.

Rhem walked in the fourth inning, with nobody out and went to third on Douthit's single to center, but Lester Bell then grabbed a line drive off High's bat and

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., May 12.—Reigh Count and Misstep, Western candidates for the 54th renewal of the Kentucky Derby, to be run at Churchill Downs next Saturday are practically ready for the race of their careers. Reigh Count has many good moves to his credit while Misstep has shown great speed for a mile and has made several good moves over the full Derby route. Reigh Count is owned by Mrs. John D. Hertz, of Chicago, and Misstep carries the silks of Leo J. Marks, owner of the Lemar Stock Farm.

Reigh Count will make his first public appearance of the season tomorrow in the Mammoth Cave Purse, at one mile and one-sixteenth, at Churchill Downs. The son of Sun Reigh is assigned 118 pounds and will compete with a band of Derby eligibles. He is coupled with Reigh Olga as the Hertz-O. Lehman entry.

Misstep Beat Derby Hopes.

Misstep qualified for the Derby by defeating a band of Derby candidate in the Prospect Purse, at seven furlongs, a few days ago. Misstep showed great courage in defeating Lawley, a Derby hope, by a neck in a gruelling stretch duel. Misstep turned the seven furlongs in the good time of 1:24 4-5.

Reigh Count's best trial of the season was over the Derby route. He carried 126 pounds with Chick Lang in the saddle, and was clocked in 2:08. He turned the mile and an eighth in 1:53 4-5. Misstep's best efforts have been over a distance of one mile. A few days ago Misstep went a mile in 1:39., the fastest time of any Derby colt in training at Churchill Downs. He galloped an additional eighth in 1:56.

Other candidates for the Kentucky Derby showing well in their training are Martie Flynn, Bonivan, Lawley and Jack Higgins. The first named won his first start this year, running a mile in 1:37 4-5 to win the Inaugural Handicap at Churchill. Dawley did a mile and one-quarter in 2:09 3-5, while Bonivan has a mile in 1:43 2-5, handily, to his credit.

Also-Rans Are Eliminated.

A number of horses which performed poorly in the Preakness Stakes at Pimlico Friday will not be shipped here for the Derby and as a result only about 25 horses are being considered as starters in the $50,000 mile and one-quarter classic.

The East's outstanding candidates for the Derby are Harry Payne Whitney's Preakness winner, Victorian, Admiral Cary T. Grayson's Strolling Player and Rancoas Stable's Nassak. Victorian has been heavily backed by the Whitney Stable while Nassak will carry much of the Rancocas Stable's money.

The West's hopes center around Reigh Count, Anita Peabody, Misstep, Lawley and Martie Flynn. Ther Mertz establishment is backing Reigh Count to win the Kentucky classic while Lawley has received strong play in the future books around here and St. Louis.

Victorian, Reigh Count, Misstep and Nassak will probably carry most of the public's money Derby day. Victorian's good race in the Preakness earned him many supporters while Reigh Count and Misstep will be supported by local race fans. Nassak, although he disappointed his backers in the Preakness, is sure to give a good account of himself in the Derby, and will be heavily played.

The Probable Field.

From present indications the field will consist of: Reigh Count, Anita Peabody, Nassak, Victorian, Strolling Player, Knapsack, Dodgson, Bobashela, Misstep, Brooms, Petee-Wrack, Blackwood, Sortie, Typhoon, Toro, Jack Higgins, Irish Pal, Lawley, Lucky Hit, Martie Flynn, Bonivan and probably Dark Eagle, Col. Bob, Dowagiac, Whiskarm, Vito or Cartago.

With 20 starters the Kentucky Derby will be worth $54,900 to the winner, $6000 to the second horse, $3000 to the third and $1000 to the fourth. In addition to first money the winner will receive a gold trophy.

If 20 start a new record for first money will be set. In 1920, the year Morvich won, Benjamin Block collected $53,775. Last year Whiskery earned $51,000 for Whitney.

Should Victorian win the Derby the Whitney Stable will take down first money for the third time. It will also be the first time brothers have won the classic. Victorian is a full brother to Whiskery, both horses being by Whisk Broom II out of Prudery by Peter Pan. Prudery ran third to Behave Yourself and Black Servant in the 1921 Derby.

Favorite to Win the $60,000 Kentucky Derby

REIGH COUNT, champion two-year old of last season, is favored to win the $50,000 added Kentucky Derby, at 4 to 1.

Reigh Count is far advanced in his training for the Derby, and will be seen in action in a race for Derby "hopes" at Churchill Downs, this week.

Rhem Holds Braves and Cards Win Sixth in Row

stepped on third to double Rhem off the bag.

Farrell started a double-play in the seventh to hold the Cardinals to one run in the inning and in the eighth, Thevenow led off with a two-bagger, only to be doubled at the plate trying to score from third on Douthit's fly to Moore.

If the play of the Braves in the first game is an indication of what they can do day in and day out, the team will not tarry down there near the cellar long. With Hornsby as an inspiration the team showed the same hustle that characterized the play of the Cardinals when he was made their chief.

The team shows possibilities of having a fine attack with Moore, Hornsby, Brown, Bell, Farrell and Burrus likely to furnish the big punch.

New Cardinals Shine.

George Harper, obtained from the Giants for Bob O'Farrell, and Jimmy Wilson, captain of the Phillies until Friday, played a big part in the Cardinal victory.

Harper had a perfect day at bat after relieving Ray Blades in right field. He hit two singles and drew a pass and drove in one of the St. Louis runs.

Wilson singled twice and drew a pass, the walk forcing a run over the plate.

Bill Sherdel, who went to the hospital with an infected foot after pitching the first game of the Cincinnati series, may pitch this afternoon in the second game of the series with the Braves. If the lefthander is not yet ready, Frankhouse or Johnson will draw the assignment, Manager McKechnie said yesterday.

Kent Greenfield may be the Boston pitcher, though Manager Slattery was noncommittal as to the probable hurler.

Jimmy Wilson, made his bow in Cardinal uniform against the Braves. He walked on his first trip to the plate, forcing in a run and in the third inning he singled to center.

After Charley Robertson had relieved Southpaw Brandt, George Harper, obtained from the Giants in the trade that sent Bob O'Farrell to New York, replaced Ray Blades in right field. It was his first appearance in the Cardinal battlefront. He will be used against right-handed pitchers, with Roettger or Blades playing right when the enemy uses a southpaw.

A Cheer and a Home Run.

When Rogers Hornsby went to bat in the first inning a round of applause greeted him and the usual scattering of boohs was missing. Rogers showed his best plate manners, lining a home run into the pavilion in right center.

It was too chilly for comfort in the stands, but the attendance was approximately 8000.

Frisch's double in the first inning was about to hit the pavilion wall near the top when a cash customer reached out and touched the ball. It fell to the ground and Umpire Jorda ruled it a double.

After Bottomley and Hafey had gone out in the fifth, Harper singled to left for his first hit as a Cardinal, and Wilson banked his second hit to center, sending Harper to third. However, the rally ended there, as Thevenow popped to Farrell.

Moore stole second easily in the fifth inning, but Farrell and Burrus tested Wilson's arm in the sixth and Jimmy threw them out easily.

Haines on Sick List.

Jess Haines, one of the Cardinal pitching mainstays, joined the squad of sick and injured yesterday. Jess is suffering from an attack of influenza and may be on the inactive list for several days.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

STILLWATER, Ok., May 12.—Oklahoma A. and M. College defeated Washington University here this afternoon, 80 to 51, in a Missori Valley Conference dual track and field meet.

Middle distance strength of the Oklahoma Aggies proved too much for the Bears, the A. and M. runners taking all but eight points in all events from the quarter mile to the relay. Capt. Leo Best of the Oklahoma Aggies was the leading individuaal scorer of the meet with 11 points scored by victories in the low hurdles and 220-yard dash and a third in the hundred.

Freund and Falzone, Washington sprinters, captured first and second in the century, but the Oklahomans, Best and Martin, pulled away from the Bear dash stars in the furlong.

Faulkner, Aggie middle distance ace, won both half and mile and was second high scorer of the meet. Poos, Washington jumper, and Glazer, Bear weight man, totaled eight points each for third honors.

No records were broken.

The summaries:

100-YARD DASH—Freund, Washington, first; Falzone, Washington, second; Best, Aggies, third. Time—10.2 seconds.

200-YARD DASH—Best, Aggies, first; Martin, Aggies, second; Freund, Washington, third. Time—21.8 seconds.

440-YARD DASH—Roy, Aggies, first; Kingham, Aggies, second; Millard, Washington, third. Time—51.9 seconds.

880-YARD RUN—Faulkner, Aggies, first; Lohrding, Washington, second; Adair, Aggies, third. Time—2 minutes, 8-10 second.

MILE RUN—Faulkner, Aggies, first; Lohrding, Washington, second; Hastings, Aggies, third. Time—4 minutes, 33.2 seconds.

TWO-MILE RUN—Calhoon and Williams, Aggies, tied for first; Sloan, Washington, third. Time—10 minutes, 33.8 seconds.

LOW HURDLES—Best, Aggies, first; Martin, Aggies, second; Bradley, Washington, third. Time—24.2 seconds.

HIGH HURDLES—Bradley, Washington, first; Sheen, Aggies, second; Kincannon, Aggies, third. Time—16.1 seconds.

POLE VAULT—Miller, Washington, first; Powell, Aggies, second; Corbin, Aggies, third. Height—11 feet, 9 inches.

DISCUS—Bickle, Washington, first; Glazer, Washington, second; Swartz, Aggies, third. Distance—132 feet, 8 inches.

SHOT—Glazer, Washington, first; Swartz, Aggies, second; Bickle, Washington, third. Distance—43 feet, 5¾ inches.

JAVELIN—Cloud, Aggies, first; McCoy, Aggies, second; Kurz, Washington, third. Distance—160 feet, 3¼ inches.

BROAD JUMP—Poos, Washington, first; Fleming, Aggies, second; Kirch, Aggies, third. Distance—22 feet, 7¾ inches.

HIGH JUMP—Kirch, Aggies, first; Poos, Washington, second; Sheen, Aggies, third. Height—6 feet, 1 inch.

MILE RELAY—Forfeited by Washington.

Bobby Jones Says--

Why Balls Are Marked.

LAST week I received two inquiries, one by telephone and one by letter, asking about the purpose of the marking, mesh, dimple, etc., on golf balls. It was strange, I thought, to have that question brought up twice in a week when I had not heard it discussed for so long.

"The marking on the ball, making angles and corners on its surface, must increase the wind effect upon the ball. Why then would not a ball with a smooth surface travel farther?" That was the general import of the queries.

The behavior of a smooth golf ball can be best described by drawing an analogy with the famous spit-ball of the baseball pitcher. The moistening of the ball at the places where the fingers grip it cause it to leave the hand of the pitcher without spin. It comes up to the batter floating and with no rotation. When the air pressure in front of the ball has been built up to a certain extent, it can proceed no longer on its course, but ducks suddenly this way or that.

A Grip on the Air.

NOW a perfectly smooth golf ball would behave in similar fashion. Nearly every stroke of a golf club imparts some spin to the ball, but a smooth ball spinning is in effect the same as the baseball which is not spinning, and with its greater velocity, it will duck this way and that, and remain entirely beyond any control.

The marking on the ball gives a grip on the air and steadies it in its flight. The nearest approach to the action of a smooth ball is obtained when an iron shot is played from a lie in clover or grass prevents a clean contact between club and ball so that very litle spin is imparted to the latter. Every golfer has noted the wavering uncertain flight of a ball played from that kind of lie.

The story—whether authentic or not—of how a marking came to be applied to the surface of the golf ball, is an interesting one. The first gutta percha balls were molded smooth. As the smooth balls were played and discarded, the caddies picked them up and backed them about for a while. It was noted that, as a ball became scarred and cut with much topping, its flight became considerably longer and much straighter.

Some genius then conceived the idea of marking the balls with a special punch, and later molds were constructed to mold the marking on the ball.

Dimple and Mesh Superior.

RECENT research of the golf ball manufacturers has proven the recessed markings—dimple and mesh—to be superior to the old bramble style and the latter has been virtually discarded. It was found, I think, that the bramble marking produced a cover thicker and hence harder to compress, and at the same time the marking offered less frictional resistance to the air. These were two very palpable disadvantages.

One ball manufacturer makes two balls alike in every respect save in the marking—one having a dimpled surface, the other meshed. I am told that the meshed ball has been proven to be of a few yards greater flight, solely because of the marking. Despite that fact the leading professionals seem inclined to favor the dimple, on considerations of controlability around the greens.

But whatever marking is used, some is necessary, and we may be assured that the system employed has been carefully checked and tested.

O'FARRELL HITS IN PINCH BUT GIANTS LOSE 4-2

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, May 12.—Pat Malone had the better of Larry Benton in a pitching battle here today, and the Cubs won the first game of the series from the Giants, 4 to 2, to chalk up their seventh straight success. One big inning sufficed—the sixth, in which the Cubs scored three times on Malone's walk, Maguire's single, Webb's triple and Wilson's sacrifice fly.

Malone held the Giants to six hits, three of which were credited to Melvin Ott. Bill Terry returned to the game today. Bob O'Farrell, obtained by the Giants from the Cards in trade for Harper, got a single as pinch hitter in his New York debut.

RUTH AND GEHRIG HIT HOMERS AS YANKS BEAT TIGERS

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, May 12.—The big bats of the Yankee home run twins functioned simultaneously today and enabled New York to nose out the Detroit Tigers, 8 to 7, in the ninth inning of a hectic game. Lou Gehrig registered his fifth circuit blow of the season in the third with Owen Carroll pitching, and Babe Ruth sent one of Lil Stoner's shoots spinning in the sixth for the eighth Ruthian round-trip of the season. The bases were empty on each occasion.

The Tigers battered the veteran Stanley Coveleskie from the mound in the third after having touched him for four runs in the second. Johnson was sent into retirement in the sixth, and Al Shealy, who got credit for yesterday's victory over Cleveland, entered the game just in time to take his second decision in two days.

BOSTON, Mass., May 12.—Everything that was ancient and horrible happened to the St. Louis Browns in the third inning today when the Red Sox made 11 runs and set the stage for a Boston victory, 15-2, in the first game of the year between the clans of Carrigan and Howley.

A high wind, which raised havoc with Boston fly balls, was just a side issue of that high pressure third inning. Other features were the manner in which the Red Sox leaned into the deliveries of three Missouri flingers, Stewart, Coffman and Beck, in that order.

The Unkindest Cut of All.

Yet another outstanding thing about the romp was that the former Browns, Walter Gerber and Ken Williams, were very busy workers for their new employers. A pass to Gerber his first time up in the frame forced in a run and marked the end of Stewart. Ken Williams, his first time up in the furious frame, scored the first run on a sacrifice fly and then up for the second time in the same round, lifted one of his famous right field homers into the bleachers off the delivery of the unfortunate Beck. One Bostonian was on base.

Errors by Manush and McNeely were incidents of the inning which also hurt. There were nine hits made in the stanza, but at least four of them were semi-its and were bad bounds off the anatomy of the Browns, or queer side hops or skids.

Ken Williams was responsible for three of the 11 runs. Phil Todt and Buddy Myer both were up twice in the frame and singled each time. The game was fairly respectable, at one all,, when the last of the third came along. And after the smoke had blown away there was very little further carnage. It was a romp, of course, for Pitcher Jack Russell of the Red Sox, and a crowd of 12,000 spent the balance of the afternoon poking fun at the Browns and at some of the players who seemed absolutely incapable of doing anything successfully.

Gerber Plays Star Game.

It was a big afternoon for Gerber, and not so soft for Kress, the fine looking athlete who is now playing short for the Browns. Gerber slammed in the first run for the Sox in the second inning. Regan had doubled to the right field corner, a ball which McNeely slightly misjudged, went to third on Taitt's infield out and scored on Gerber's slashing single to left. In the first of the third the Browns tied it. Schang opened with a single, but Stewart banged into a fast double play. With two gone, McNeely doubled to the left field wall, where Ken Williams played the ball a bit clumsily, and Melillo's arching single to short right sent in McNeely with the tying run.

That 1-1 deadlock looked familiar. The Red Sox have been playing a lot of tight games here since the advent of Gerber. It looked as if this was to be another, but the lid busted right off in the last of the third and the balance of the matinee was one of those well-known Roman holidays. And the detail of how the runs were scored is interesting only to the morbid.

Well, That's Something.

In the eighth inning Schulte raced briskly into left field and made a delightful catch of a hot Flagstead drive which seemed ticketed for two or three bases. It was the one outstanding defensive play of the hectic afternoon.

HOCKEY FRANCHISE SHIFT ABANDONED

By the Associated Press.

TORONTO, Ont., May 12.—Negotiations for transfer of the Pittsburg franchise in the national Hockey League to Cleveland have virtually been abandoned, Frank Calder president of the league announced at the annual meeting of the directors today.

The breakdown in negotiations, Calder said, made it possible that Philadelphia would succeed Pittsburg in the lead next season. Just what stood in the way of the franchise transfer to Cleveland Calder did not say.

How Red Sox Scored 11 Runs In One Inning

BOSTON, May 12.

THE following excerpt from the play-by-play account shows how Boston made 11 runs in the third inning of their game with the Browns here this afternoon:

RED SOX—Flagstead walked. Todt singled to left, Flagstead stopping at second. Myers' fly dropped between Schulte and McNeely, and the bases were full. Flagstead scored on Williams' sacrifice fly to Brannon in short right. Regan bounced a single off Brannon's shins, and the bases again were filled. Taitt bounced a single off Blue's glove, scoring Todt and leaving the bases loaded. Gerber walked and Myer scored. Berry singled to center, scoring Regan and Taitt. Coffman replaced Stewart. Russell bunted and forced Gerber, Coffman to Melillo. Both runners advanced on a wild pitch. Flagstead bounced a single off Brannon's glove, scoring Berry and Russell. Todt singled to right, sending Flagstead to third. Myer singled to left, scoring Flagstead and when Manush let the ball get away from him, Todt scored and Myer went to third. Beck replaced Coffman. Williams greeted Beck by hitting his first pitch for a home run into the right field stand, scoring Myer ahead of him. Regan was safe when McNeely dropped his fly. Regan stole second. Taitt walked. Gerber popped to Blue. ELEVEN RUNS.

UMEK, ITALIAN, LEADS RUNNERS TO ELYRIA, O.

ELYRIA, Ohio, May 12.—Giusto Umek of Trieste, Italy paced the transcontinental foot racers through the 63.3 miles from Fremont to the seventieth control here today in 9:17:14. Umek stands sixth in the cross-country grind with an elapsed time of 508:27:11 for 2752.6 miles. Umek's trainers aided police in clearing a path for the Italian ace through the throngs that crowded about the control station.

John Salo, Passaic, N. J. maintained his grip on second place by finishing second in 9:32:10. His elapsed time reduced the lead of Any Payne, Oklahoma, who assumed the race leadership yesterday with the withdrawal of Peter Gavuzzi of England.

Harry Abramowitz, New York, tenth in elapsed standings, finished third in 10:31:05. His elapsed time was 532:01:48.

John H[illegible]berly, Moberly, Mo., was out of the race tonight when his feet gave way 18 miles east of Fremont, necessitating his taking a lift in a patrol car.

NEW YORK, May 12.—Since the day when Benny Leonard abdicated as lightweight champion of the world, in 1925, the American fight public has been begging for a successor worthy of the honor. Sammy Mandell, the Rockford (Ill.) boy, now wears the crown that once was Leonard's, but Sammy's over-cautious style has failed to win popular acclaim.

For, whether it is the wise thing or no, your fight fan prefers a puncher to a boxer, provided the puncher is sufficiently skillful to parry an occasional blow. Mandell is essentially, and almost exclusively, a boxer. His failure to produce a knockout punch has had a great deal to do with the widespread and prolonged lack of interest in the lightweight division. The division needs a puncher and for this reason, perhaps, Mandell's bout with Jimmy McLarnin at the Polo Grounds on May 17 is attracting a greater share of attention than any other lightweight affair since Leonard's retirement.

The Puncher Arrives.

Jimmy McLarnin is a puncher. His knockout of the clever Sid Terris in one round in his most recent fight did more to establish him as a title threat than any of his numerous victories of the past three years.

There is a surprising feature of McLarnin's record. He has a habit of knocking out the best men that face him and letting the comparatively weaker or more obscure fellows survive.

McLar[illegible]ked out Joey Sangor in three rounds; he knocked out Louis Kid Kaplan in eight rounds; he knocked out Sid Terris in one round; Jackie Fields in two rounds.

It is worthy of note that each of these kayo victims had been peculiarly immune from knockouts. In spite of the fact that Sangor, Terris and Kaplan had met all of the top ranking stars of their division, neither of them had been knocked out until he ran into McLarnin. And yet, the little Irishman's record, from the date of his start in the professional game, in 1924, contains only five knockouts. The only other man he put away is Charlie McBride, who fell a victim in two rounds at San Diego late last year.

Bud Taylor Beat McLarnin.

It was McLarnin who handed Pancho Villa, the sensational Filipino boxer, the terrific beating which was the indirect cause of Pancho's death.

Bud Taylor is the only man who effectually interrupted McLarnin's succession of victories. Bud ran across McLarnin at Frisco in December of 1925 and lost on a foul in two rounds. Then Bud came back early in 1926 and beat Jimmy in 10 rounds. It was a close affair and they were rematched and against Taylor won in 10 rounds.

Doc Snell and Johnny Farr have also beat McLarnin over the 10-round route, but they are the only boxers, with Taylor, who hold such a distinction.

Mandell, the titleholder, has been fairly active since he won the crown from Rocky Kansas in 1926, but his opponents have been not of the stripe that were likely to cause him trouble. In 22 fights since gaining the title, Mandell has scored three knockouts, all over obscure boxers.

Lost to Joey Sangor.

His record is remarkably free from defeats. He lost on a technical knockout to Joey Sangor in seven rounds in 1923, and he lost on a foul to Jimmy Goodrich in six rounds in 1925.

It is apparent, therefore, that if there is going to be any knocking out on the evening of May 17 it will probably by done by McLarnin.

The boys are closely matched, physically. Mandell was 24 years old in February and McLarnin will be 23 years old next December. Each is 5 feet 5½ inches tall and each will scale within a half pound of the 135-pound limit.

Cup Round Site May Be Changed

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, May 12.—The Davis Cup challenge round may be played in England instead of France, it was revealed tonight. The French Tennis Federation is seriously considering holding the matches in England—Wimbledon preferred—unless the Government abandons its policy of taxing not only gate receipts at tennis tournaments but dues members pay various clubs as well, an official statement from the Tennis Federation, issued this evening, says.

The entire question depends on the outcome of several suits instituted in Paris courts by the Treasury against tennis clubs for recovery of taxes claimed and which clubs have refused to pay. The suits will be heard before the end of May. Should the decision go against the tennis clubs, the Federation will insist that the Davis Cup challenge round be played at Wimbledon. Wimbledon officials have been sounded, as to their possible reaction to such a proposal and the suggestion is said to have been received with enthusiasm.

Several tennis clubs in the north of France have disbanded and others are expected to follow suit.

"With real administrative unconsciousness, the tax collector is now wrecking France's magnificent tennis career," the Federation communique says.

JACK DE MAVE STEPS FAST IN LOCAL WORKOUT

By Dent McSkimming.

Jack DeMave, who will oppose Chuck Wiggins in the main event of the first outdoor boxing show of the season at Battery A arena Tuesday night, went through a brisk workout at National Gymnasium yesterday afternoon with Billy McCarney holding the watch. All who watched the big blond boy step around were impressed with his speed and his apparent strength. He is six feet tall, weighs 197 pounds and has remarkably well developed arms and shoulders.

After pounding the heavy bag for a couple of rounds, DeMave stepped three fast rounds with Farry Ritzer, a local middleweight, and then he tapped the light punching bag for six minutes. Matchmaker Gene Straus has issued a call for heavyweight sparring partners but none appeared yesterday and McCarney, who is managing DeMave, expressed keen regret that he had not kept his man in New York until Sunday night, where he had plenty of men available for gymnasium workouts.

Wiggins Needs to Be in Shape.

Wiggins had not reported last night but he is expected today, according to Straus. Whether he has made good his promise to get into first-class physical condition remains to be proved when he reaches the gymnasium.

DeMave yesterday morning at 7 o'clock jogged through Forest Park, and he will repeat his road work today and tomorrow.

Not all of the excitement of yesterday's training workouts came from the appearance of DeMave. Tony Ross, who will oppose Meyer Grace in a welterweight match Tuesday, picked on Eddie Goldberg for a three round sparring match and a real fight developed. Goldberg is training for his match with Rex Ripple and in spite of the fact that Ross outweighs him by nearly 10 pounds, Goldberg waded in and traded punches.

Grace Has No Set-Up.

Ross is a lively looking lad, not altogether a punch receiver, either. He may not beat Meyer Grace, but it should be a hammer and tongs battle all the way.

Preliminary tussles will bring Tom Smith, a slugger who accounted for Ted Roberts on his last out, against Roy Green, from Lexington, Ky., whose record boasts three knockout victories in his last four fights. Their four-round set-to will open the program.

Frank Power is to make his professional debut in a six-rounder against Eddie Casey of Boston.

NEW ZEALAND AND PORTUGAL SPLIT DAVIS CUP MATCHES

LISBON, Portugal, May 12.—Portugal and New Zealand each won a singles match today in the second round play in the European zone Davis Cup eliminations.

Ed Andrews of New Zealand defeated Pinto Coehlo, Portugal, 6—3, 6—4, and 6—0. Jose Verda, Portugal, defeated Young, New Zealand, 6—2, 6—2 and 6—3.

DAVIS CUP ASPIRANTS TO OPEN PRACTICE FOR TRIALS TOMORROW

two of them going to deuce. Then, in the afternoon, the Kansas City boy played two more sets with the team captain, losing, 6—3 and 6—1. Coen took a set from Wray Brown, 8—6. He was a tired lad when he retired from the court. Tilden won two sets from Brown, 6—2 and 8—6.

Tilden appears to be ready for any kind of a battle. Junior Coen showed up fine in practice yesterday. His game is vastly improved over the game he exhibited here last year when he won the Central States title. The youngster covers the court faster, hits the ball harder and is more accurate.

At the request of Capt. Tilden and the other players the local committee has decided to make some changes in the seating arrangements. Nearly all of the south grandstand seats will be moved to the west and east sides. This new arrangement will provide approximately 900 seats in the west stand and about 900 seats in the east stand. Those who purchased south stand tickets will have seats in the west stand.

West Stand Seats Sold Out.

The supply of series tickets in the west stand has been exhausted. Single day west stand seats, costing $1.65 each, are on sale at 921 Locust street. Seats in the east stand may be obtained only at the grounds. The prices are 50 and 75 cents.

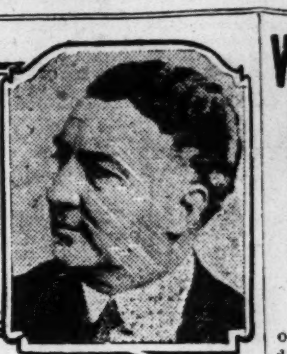
WRAY'S COLUMN



Coming to Life.

BOXING, which has been snoozing during a dumb, dull and dismal winter season, is about to bud, this week. Jimmy McLarnin of the Northwest will try to separate Sammy Mandell from his understanding—and his lightweight title.

The offering is none too attractive. Mandell, a nifty little safety-first fighter, is colorless, kickless and punchless; McLarnin, while somewhat more deadly in recent months, did not show a knockout in his previous years in the ring.

For the promoters this bout may prove an unfortunate opening selection. Mandell is not a fighter. In his appearances in this city he showed safety-first tendencies of a high order, but a fighting quality subnormal.

If McLarnin seems dangerous to Mandell, spectators probably will see a masterful exhibition of glove snatching and scientific holding. That is not what fans pay to view, in these days. But it is what Mandell's record promises them.

What Is a "Fight?"

FOR a majority of spectators a ring encounter is not a "fight," unless the men wade in and trade wallops, throwing defense to the winds.

We admit the thrill that goes with such a fight. Dempsey, always willing to trade punches, failed to bring fans to their feet on one occasion only. That was when, at Shelby, Tom Gibbons ran, hung on and grabbed gloves so that Dempsey COULD NOT do his stuff.

But slugging bouts are not the only ones that arouse spectators. Boxers can do it as well as knockout hitters, if the right spirit animates them.

The writer has seen many thrilling scientific ring encounters that were great FIGHTS as well, right here in St. Louis. Old timers will remember such battles as the Danny Dougherty-Harry Forbes fight, the Yanger-Attell, the Forbes-Attell, Sullivan-Attell and other events.

These fights were between men who primarily were boxers and knew defense as well as attack. There were no "boos" hurled at such fighters and the reason lay in the manner of their defense.

No glove-grabbing, holding and imitation infighting prevailed at such contests. The men knew how to defend themselves in other ways than by safety-first methods.

Until boxers of today learn open fighting methods and abandon cheap safety-first stuff, there will always be dull, dumb and dismal events.

Olympic Amateurs.

OUR amateur soccer team has departed for Amsterdam. But our hopes of an Olympic victory remain on this side of the Atlantic—buried deep.

That is because our poor little eleven is amateur indeed—amateurish, one had almost said—whereas some of the opposing elevens will be professional in experience and according to our own rules, professional in fact.

Last Olympics our eleven was put out by the Uruguay eleven, which won the title. They beat our representatives [illegible] goals and could have made it 12, eyewitnesses say.

Four years later, this same Olympic championship team held together all this time and solidified by continued and extended tours through Europe, Mexico, and North and South America, is entered. In France it recently defeated a powerful picked team, 8 to 1.

What chance has our hastily assembled bunch of municipal and lot players against a team made up of veterans who have played constantly together for four years, and whose record indicates that they must have professionalized themselves over and over again, according to our standards?

They have almost as good a chance as Chief Uncas had in the Derby.

His Master's Voice.

JOHN PESEK will not abandon wrestling to take up boxing. Not in this vicinity. John has heard his master's voice and henceforth will perform only when Promoter Tom Packs whistles.

The reason is a 20-year contract which Packs holds, stipulating Pesek can not appear within 100 miles of St. Louis except by permission!

We take it, then, that John Pesek is going to exhibit his wrestling wares in this vicinity for the next 16 years—the contract having that long to run, we are told.

Pesek seems at first thought to have suffered a lapse of mentality when he tied himself up for such a length of time. But he may not have been so dumb. Or perhaps he wrought better than he knew. Since the contract prevents him, as set forth, from turning boxer, it has done him a wonderful turn: it has saved him from defeat and disability, perhaps.

No Place for Wrestlers.

THE boxing game has nothing in it for the wrestler. Paul Berlenbach, the only one who succeeded materially, is a tragic example of what can happen. Paul gained a lot of money and lost his health and worse, it is said.

Pesek may think he's a fighter but he isn't. He's just a man who is finding that he isn't going anywhere in the mat game and wants to try something else.

The public also owes Packs something. He saved us from another ham heavyweight, of which we have all too many in these decadent days.

ST. LOUIS STARS WIN SHUTOUT VICTORY OVER THE CUBAN STARS, 9-0

The St. Louis Stars of the Negro National Baseball League scored a shutout victory in defeating the Cuban Stars in the opening game of a series yesterday at the Stars' Park. The score was 9 to 0.

J. Williams pitched a brilliant game for the Stars and was the leading hitter, collecting three hits in four trips to the plate including a double and a triple.

The second game of the series will be played this afternoon, starting at 3 o'clock.

WEBSTER ARCHERS TO FACE OSAGE CLUB

The Osage Archery Club of St. Louis will oppose the Webster archers this afternoon at 2 o'clock. It will be the first meeting of the season for the Osage team.

The women's teams of the two clubs also will meet.

The Osage teams:

Men—Stanley R. Doering, captain; Harry E. Doering, M. A. Bouiche, Otto Holstein. Women—Mrs. H. A. Doering, Miss Blanche Flood.

The Webster teams:

Men—Samuel L. Coffin, H. P. Vieth, J. H. Curd, Clarence Coffin. Women—Mrs. J. H. Curd, Miss Thelma Oseland or Miss Dorothy Tedford.

WHITBREAD IS DARK HORSE IN DISTRICT GOLF

By Gerald Holland.

If the Manion-Wolff monopoly of the title is to be broken in the district tournament at Normandie next week, it is not unlikely that Elliott Whitbread, young Osage Country Club star, will do it.

Last year, Whitbread had a good season although he did not win a title. He came close several times. He was medalist and finalist in the State tournament at Kansas City, runnerup with Clarence Wolff in the St. Louis Open, and in the district tournament at the Country Club he advanced to the semifinal where he was defeated by Manion, the present champion, 2 and 1.

Since the departure of Eddie Held, "Cotton" Whitbread has been considered the longest driver in the district. Any weakness in his game has been with his irons, particularly the mashie-niblick. He has been giving more attention to his irons and if he succeeds in strengthening that phase of his game, Manion will have difficulty in retaining his title.

Promising Junior Talent.

Several promising junior golfers may offer stiff opposition. Herb Lorenz of Sunset who has won the junior tournament for the last three years has been playing well in practice. Bob Orthwein, Chester O'Brien, and Jerry Standford who was runnerup to Lorenz in the junior tournament last year are other promising youngsters.

It is fairly definitely established that Clarke Morse, the young Forest Park golfer who was barred as a professional, will not be permitted to compete. Clarence Wolff, secretary of the district association, has been informed by an official of the United States Golf Association that the case has not been considered because Morse has never made an application for reinstatement. The district body has decided to await the decision from national headquarters.

Wolff vs. Manion Feud.

Jimmy Manion and Clarence Wolff have been figuring in close finishes for the last seven years. Last year, Wolff lost to Manion in the final. Past winners of the title are: 1927, Jimmy Manion; 1926, Clarence Wolf; 1925, Jimmy Manion; 1924, Eddie Held; 1923, Jimmy Manion; 1922, Clarence Wolff; 1921, Dick Bockenkamp; 1920, Dick Bockenkamp; 1919, Clarence Wolff; 1918, Chris Kenney; 1917, Stuart Stickney; 1916, Roger Lord.

The Normandie course will be open to entrants for practice on Wednesday, Thursday and Friday, preceding the qualifying round on Saturday.

St. Clair Tourney, May 19-20.

The qualifying round of the spring invitation handicap tournament at St. Clair Country Club will be held May 19-20. The event will be one of the season's features at this club.

Bill Mertz, Southern Illinois champion, and his brother, Harvey, and A. C. Hall and John Yigling, will form a quartet which will play today at the Franklin County Country Club, where the annual Southern Illinois golf tournament will be held June 5-9.

The Women's District Association will hold its weekly team play tomorrow at Woodlawn. The pairings follow: Algonquin vs. Triple A; Woodlawn vs. Normandie; Sunset vs. Riverview; North Hills vs. St. Clair, and Glen Echo vs. Midland.

A blind bogey tournament was held at Sunset yesterday. Prizes were awarded for scores between 70 and 80 with handicaps. The five winners were R. R. Clabaugh 77-5-72, George Dyer 87-15-72, J. T. Rombauer 99-25-74, A. E. Black 97-23-74, D. R. Thomas 84-10-74.

There were 135 players at Sunset yesterday. The 10 low scores of the day were: Clarence Wolff 75, R. R. Clabaugh 77, Sid LeGear 79, Carl Linn 81, D. H. Thomas 84, George Dyer 87, W. T. Mellow 88, J. T. Cabanne 88, Eberhard Anheuser 89, C. T. Lorenz 92.

Bears Defeat Oklahoma, 11-5

By the Associated Press.

NORMAN, Ok., May 12.—Washington University found the offerings of Rex Birkett to its liking and pounded out a 11 to 5 victory over the Sooners to even the series here this afternoon. Beckman moved in from right field to the box after Friday's reversal and held the Sooners at his mercy, allowing only seven hits, well scattered.

WIDENER'S KOPEK WINS THE YOUTHFUL STAKE FOR 2-YEAR-OLDS

LEUCITE, THE FAVORITE, IS THIRD; WINNER PAYS 20 TO 1

By the Associated Press.

JAMAICA, N. Y., May 12. — George D. Widener scored a double here today when his well bred colt Kopeck, ridden by Moon, won the Youthful Stakes, defeating a high-class field. He led from start to finish, gathered in $10,250 for his owners. Kopeck carried 122 pounds and ran the five furlongs in 1:01. The other Widener colt to win was Girard.

The Youthful Stakes, one of the richest of the Metropolitan Jockey Club book, drew out a good field, with the Rancocas' Leucite favorite, Holiday was a well played second choice. The winner paid 20 to 1. Kopeck, with a brilliant burst of speed, rushed into a long lead, held this advantage to the stretch, where he began to tire. However, he held on gamely to win by four lengths, from Holiday, which in turn took the place by a head from Leucite.

In one of the closest finishes seen here this spring, Fred Johnson's Brown Flash with V. Peterson up, scored by a nose in winning the Excelsior Handicap, a mile and a sixteenth. It was a gruelling drive all through the stretch and the result was in doubt right up to the finish. W. R. Coe's Herodian was second and Rancocas Stable's Grey Lag third. The race was worth $6200 and was second best on today's card.

Broom a Winning Rider.

Mrs. Louise Vasquez' silks were borne to victory in the first race, when Bramstar, with Moon up, was a handy winner over Agapanthus with Lord Broom third. Bramstar was quoted at 18 to 5. Agapanthus and Guineahen raced themselves into defeat in their mad attempt to kill each other off. Guineahen was the first to crack and then Agapanthus drew away, but the early effort told and he tired badly, when Bramstar came along with a rush to win by a length.

Gerard, 8 to 1, won the second, defeating the odds-on favorite, Nusakan. Poly took third. Jockey R. Workman, who rode Victorian to victory in the Preakness yesterday, rode the Tartar and the big crowd gave him a big hand when he paraded to the post. Workman doffed his cap. Nusakan rushed to the front and held to the final furlongs, where he began to stop. Gerard came fast, took the lead and won by four lengths.

The Rancocas Stable finally won a race, when Chantey romped away with the fifth, winning by three lengths over Campanella, with Sincuidado third.

King Basil moved up when straightenede in the stretch and well handled, outstayed Banter. Latter showed fine effort and finished gamely. Scotland held on well during final drive. Algol seemed to have the race won when straighteend in the stretch, but Meyer began whipping him, causing the colt to shorten his stride, and he succumbed in final stride for third place. Florida Gold tired in the last furlong. Martinique quit badly.

Disturb raced close up to stretch, where he closed fast under strong handling and got up in final strides. Silver Dale began fast, raced wide entering stretch and but for swerving in final eighth probably would have won. Roy Moved up with a rush on stretch turn, was taken back and came again fast when nearing finish. Greendale raced into close pursuit with a big loss of ground, raced greenly in stretch. Rufe McClain showed improvement. Yam Toy went evenly. Bobbing Along tired. Country Boy was in close quarters to stretch. Ping Pong broke slowly.

$2 mutuels paid: Disturb, win $34.48, place $7.86, show $4.92; Silver Dale, place $5.30, show $4.50; Roy, snow $10.10.

Corposant well up during entire trip moved fast through stretch and under good handling outstayed Loretta Brooks. Latter well up from start to lead in stretch but had to race in close quarters during the last sixteenth. Drone came with a rush in the last furlong and was going gamely at the end. Georgia Rose was allowed to drop completely out of it after three furlongs and came with a rush through the stretch. Policeman Day tired badly. Peter Prim was given a timid ride and could have been much closer with handling.

$2 mutuels paid: Corposant, Win, $11.70; place, $6.74; show, $4.08. Loretta Brooks, place, $6.72; show, $4.62. Drone, show $6.72.

Bears in Two Meets.

St. Louis Compares Favorably With Cities of Like Size in Municipal Golfing Facilities

By Gerald Holland.

Although the municipal and public fee golf courses are frequently taxed, when ideal weather crowds the links, a survey made by the Post-Dispatch has revealed that St. Louis compares favorably with other cities of its size in facilities for players not affiliated with clubs.

In St. Louis there are two municipal courses, 9 and 18-hole links, and two public fee courses, Creve Coeur and North Hills. Three cities are much better equipped. St. Paul, a smaller city, has two municipal courses, a third under construction, and one to be started next year, in addition to four privately owned fee courses.

Detroit is far in the lead, having four municipal courses, a fifth under construction, and 15 fee courses. There are two municipal and five other public courses in Cleveland.

In Indianapolis, however, is possibly the best equipped city in the country in proportion to its population. It has four municipal courses.

Boston Facilities Poor.

Boston has poor facilities. There is one 18-hole municipal course and two nine-hole public courses. On one of the latter, the golfer must pay a daily fee of $2 and on the other he must first buy a $100 bond before he is given the privilege of playing for a dollar a day.

Pittsburg is as bad off, having only one municipal course, although two public fee courses are under construction in the county.

In Cincinnati, there is an 18-hole Municipal course, one 18-hole and two nine-hole public fee courses.

Baltimore's municipal golf is free. It has an 18-hole, two nines and a five-hole novice course.

According to Fred Pape, St. Louis Park Commissioner, this city does not contemplate any addition to its present golf facilities, because there is no available ground. The parks are needed for other activities and their topography, other than that of Forest Park, is not suitable for golf courses. The construction of new courses will depend upon the acquisition of ground and sufficient funds.

18-Hole Course Improved.

At present, Pape says, the revenue from the municipal links is almost entirely exhausted by the cost of maintenance of the courses. Most of the money has been spent on the 18-hole course, and when improvements have been completed, officials will turn their attention to the nine-hole course.

"The condition of the 18-hole course is such now," said Pape, "that the man who pays $2000 annually for the lost ball concession is complaining that few balls are lost in high grass on fairways." the result that he is losing money. Formerly, a great many balls were lose in high grass on fairways."

Columbia Wins Cup Crew Race

By the Associated Press.

PRINCETON, N. J., May 12. — Only a week after taking the wash of Yale's shell on the Schuylkill River Columbia's intercollegiate championship varsity crew staged a sensational comeback today to trim Pennsylvania and Princeton in the feature race of the Childs Cup Regatta on Lake Carnegie.

The winners' time of 9 minutes, 8 seconds for the course of one and three-quarters miles was only 10 seconds short of the record of 8:58 set in 1921 by Heinie Leh's famous Princeton eight. Under the conditions it is a remarkable performance.

The big shock of the race was Princeton's defeat by so decisive a margin. Chuck Logg's big eight, stroked by Jeff Alison of Little Rock, Ark., and including seven veterans of last year's successful varsity crew, never seemed able to get going and lost distance steadily to Penn as well as Columbia in a ragged performance.

The unexpected setback for the Tigers, who were pre-race favorites on the strength of their past record and experience also spoiled an otherwise perfect day for the crews propelled by Orange and Blacks sweep. Princeton captured all four of the preliminary races, including the freshman and junior varsity contests of the main regatta program as well as two opening contests for substitute oarsmen.

Close to 10,000 spectators crowded the picturesque shores of Lake Carnegie when the varsity crews were sent away in the final race, the twenty-third contest for the Child's cup since it first was competed for in 1879.

Harvard Crew Wins.

By the Associated Press.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., May 12.—Rowing through rough water and semi-darkness, Harvard's powerful varsity crew defeated Cornell and Massachusetts Institute of Technology over the mile and three-quarters distance on the Charles River here today. As the crews swept across the line in the gathering dusk, Harvard looked to be a good length in the lead, with Tech's shell hanging a quarter of a length behind Cornell. A stiff northwest wind forced postponement of the start of the varsity race until after sunset.

Broken Oar Forces Yale Out.

By the Associated Press.

DERBY, Conn., May 12.—Yale's 150-pound varsity crew was defeated by the Massachusetts Institute of Technology light crew over the Housatonic course this evening when a broken oar put the Elis out of the race in the final half mile after they had led from the start. Yale had taken a lead in the first quarter mile and seemingly had the race well in hand when the No. 2 oarsman in the Yale shell broke his oar. The Tech crew forthwith picked up on the Eli boat and won easily by a length and a half.

Tech's time for the mile and five-sixteenths distance was 7:01; Yale's time was 7:05.

Harvard won from Yale in the 150-pound freshman and class crew races.

TROOP NO. 2 VICTOR IN EAST SIDE MEET

Troop 2 scored a total of 20 points to win the annual field day program of the East St. Louis Council of the Boy Scouts of America, held at Jones Park yesterday. Troop 5 took second honors with 18 points and Troops 9 and 26 tied for third honors with 17 points apiece.

FOREST PARK CLUB QUALIFIES 12 FOR DISTRICT GOLF MEET

Clarke Morse was lowest among 12 Forest Park golf club players who qualified Friday and yesterday for the 12-man team to represent the municipal links in the district meet, starting next Saturday. Morse shot 75-76-151 over the 18-hole park links with many of the temporary greens in use.

The other qualifiers were: Herbert Lorenz, 79-78-157; Mike Friedlein, 78-81-159; Fred Schambach, 83-77-160; Dr. I. R. Davis, 80-81-161; John Eckelkamp, 79-82-161; Fred McCoy, 79-83-162; Chester O'Brien, 79-83-162; Bob Isherwood, 81-83-164; A. A. Kieper, 80-84-164, Herb Euwer, 76-79-165, and Joe Foley, 82-83-165.

Morse's chances for competing are believed to be slim, despite the excellence of his golf. Last year he was ruled a professional by the district association and his application for reinstatement as an amateur has been pending ever since before the U. S. G. A. with no action taken. If he is unable to play, his place will be taken by Bobbie Held, who shot 81-85-166.

RECORDS BROKEN IN SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA OLYMPIC TRYOUTS

By the Associated Press.

CLAREMONT, Cal., May 12.—One Southern Pacific A. A. U. record was broken, another equalled and a world's record for women was broken this afternoon at the annual track and field meet of the Southern Pacific Association of the Amateur Athletic Union at the Pomona College track.

Lillian Copeland of the Pasadena Athletic Club bettered her own world's record of 40½ feet in the eight-pound shot put, with a toss of 43 feet, 1¼ inches.

Charles Harlow, competing for Los Angeles Athletic Club, set a new S. P. A. A. U. record for the javelin throw with a heave of 209 feet, 7 inches.

WADE AND SCHLITTER TO MEET IN SPECIAL AT SOUTH BROADWAY

Tommy Wade and Walter Schlittler, leading rivals of Joe Ghnouly in Western A. A. U. bantam championship, have been matched for an inter-club special on Thursday night's program of amateur boxing bouts at the South Broadway A. C., according to Matchmaker Willie Miller.

Wade, a youngster, surprised the fistic followers when he fought his way to the final of the Western District championship, losing to Ghnouly by a margin. He is a member of One Hundred and Thirty-Eighth Infantry boxing team.

Schlittler, who fights under the colors of the South Broadway club, has chalked up four successive victories, knocking out three of his opponents.

Another special attraction will bring together Carmen Dure of the Flori Olmpian A. C., and Victor Pudlowski of the South Broadway club, in a flyweight match.

Tourney officials plan to arrange two or three more specials. They are attempting to sign Clyde Taylor, Belleville lightweight, to meet Reggie Wood of the Motorbus club, while a featherweight opponent is sought for Jack Wilson of the 138th Infantry, and a heavyweight foe for John Schwake of the South Broadway A. C.

The open events have attracted 18 entrants.

ENTRIES FOR QUINCY RELAYS CLOSE MAY 21

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

QUINCY, Ill., May 12.—With high schools already entered in the Quincy relays, to be held here May 30, there is still time for entrants to be filed before the entry list will be closed on May 21.

The relays, established seven years ago by Coach Watson, who is a former Olympic star, now rank among the leading high school track and field events and draw a large number of entries from Illinois and nearby states.

SOONER TENNIS TEAM DEFEATS JAYHAWKERS

NORMAN, Ok., May 12.—Oklahoma finished the spring season undefeated in dual tennis matches today when the Sooners downed the Kansas Jayhawk two-man combination with the loss of only one set in three matches. The Oklahomans will enter the Valley Tournament at Lincoln next Saturday with a decided edge in the race for doubles championship and with a fair shot at the singles crown.

The summary: Captain Mason, Oklahoma, defeated Captain Alred, Kansas, 6—1, 6—2. Thurman, Oklahoma, defeated Sager, Kansas, 6—1, 6—1. Mason and Browne, Oklahoma, defeated Alred and Sager, Kansas, 4—6, 6—3, 6—2.

M'KENDREE ENTRANT WINS 8-MILE RACE

A part of the old Freeburg (Ill.) M. A. A. marathon course was used again for a modified marathon for the first time in several years when an eight-mile race was held from Freebury to Belleville this morning, in which 45 entries started, with 37 finishing.

Herbert Spencer of McKendree College, won first place, covering the eight miles in 54:40. Second place went to another McKendree College entrant, Lewis Middleton, in 55 minutes flat, and Peter C. Nast of Freeburg High School, was third in 55:10.

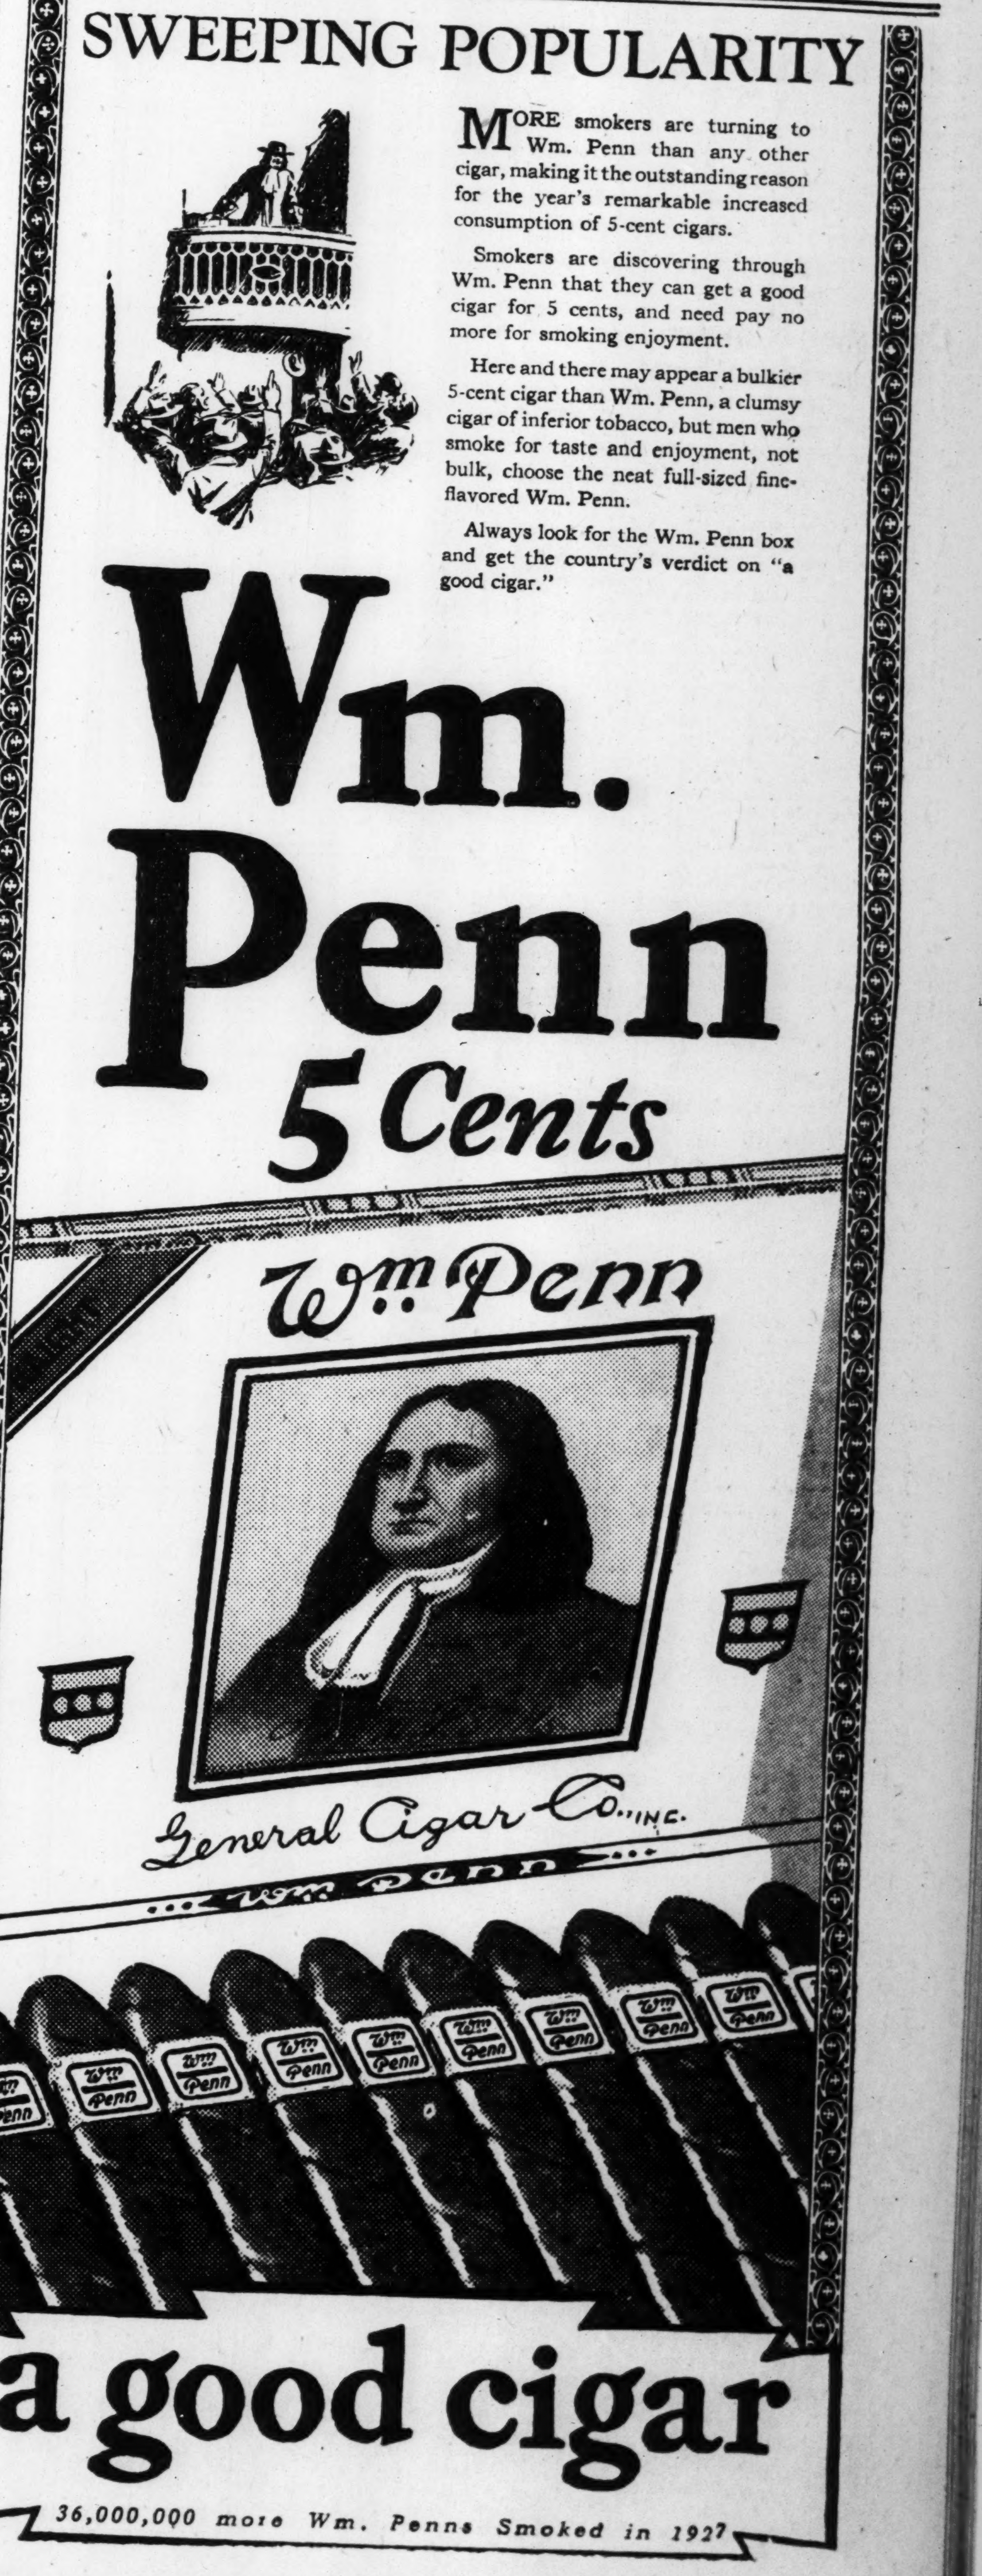
A cup, valued at $100, was given to the winner by William Reigert of Freebury. He also presented loving cups to the first 10 who finished, and medals to the second 10. The race had the sanction of the Western A. A. U.

HAGEN STARTS ON CONTINENTAL TOUR

By the Associated Press.

SANDWICH, England, May 12.—American golfers today left Sandwich in the hands of the fourscore competitors for the St. George's challenge game, and moved on to seek to conquer other golf worlds.

Walter Hagen, who won the British open championship, went to Paris to play a special match with Aubrey Boomer, the St. Cloud pro, with plans to continue on a triumphant tour to parts of Europe where he has not played before. He will play Percy Alliss a match in Berlin, and then visit Austria and Italy. His schedule calls for participation in the Irish open championship at the Newcastle, May 28, and exhibition and charity matches in Dublin and London before he starts home.



SWEEPING POPULARITY

MORE smokers are turning to Wm. Penn than any other cigar, making it the outstanding reason for the year's remarkable increased consumption of 5-cent cigars.

Smokers are discovering through Wm. Penn that they can get a good cigar for 5 cents, and need pay no more for smoking enjoyment.

Here and there may appear a bulkier 5-cent cigar than Wm. Penn, a clumsy cigar of inferior tobacco, but men who smoke for taste and enjoyment, not bulk, choose the neat full-sized fine-flavored Wm. Penn.

Always look for the Wm. Penn box and get the country's verdict on "a good cigar."

JUNIOR EMPLOYED BOYS LEAGUE PITCHER HURLS A ONE-HIT CONTES

OTHER GOOD EXHIBITIONS ON MOUND MARK MUNY PROGRAM

The outstanding pitching performance in the Municipal Baseball Association yesterday afternoon was turned in by Gossrau, pitcher for Eden in the Junior Employed Boys' League, who allowed the Western Union nine only one hit, winning, 3 to 1.

Another good twirling exhibition was turned in by Sekyra and Putka, Allen Junior pitchers. They held the Optimists to two hits, and the Allen Juniors won, 13 to 1. The teams are in the South Side Employed Boys' League.

With the various divisions in the third week of play, some teams already are pulling away in the league races.

The strong Geitz team is one of these aggregations. The Geitz nine, by beating the Mohawks, 5 to 1, kept their slate clean with three victories and no defeats. Spilka, pitcher for the Geitz's, had a large share in the winning, holding the losers to three hits.

Canadian Runner Wins Marathon

By the Associated Press.

DETROIT, May 12. — Francis Hughes, 37-year-old veteran of the Hamilton, Ont., Olympic club, won the annual Motor City marathon here this afternoon, covering the 26 miles and 285 yards in 2 hours, 58 minutes and 20 seconds.

The race was an official American Olympic tryout.

Alger Strom, Detroit runner, whose time was 2h 59m, was second.

Vic Glance, Detroit, who paced the field of 40 entrants through most of the race, weakened in the last few miles and jogged in third, 15 minutes behind the two leaders. Ben West, Cincinnati, O., finished fourth, and Frank Zuna of New York, winner of last year's marathon and a member of the 1924 American Olympic team, came in fifth. He was favored to win today.

LES MARRINER SOUGHT AS RIVAL FOR KNOST

Four well known heavyweight boxers are under consideration by Matchmaker Jack Tippett in his efforts to obtain a suitable opponent for Dave Knost, former National A. A. U. junior titleholder, for one of the 10-round features of the New Coliseum card, May 22.

Les Marriner, the Illini University student, who has chalked up a string of 13 knockouts in 14 fights; Jim St. Clair of San Antonio, Tex.; Jack Clifford of St. Paul, Minn.; and Dick Mantell of Minneapolis, comprise the list of possibilities.

Tippett has signed Tommy O'Loughlin, Illinois featherweight, and Irish Kennedy, a welterweight, for other matches. Tippett plans to send O'Laughlin against Paul Steadman. Clarence "Kid" Shaulters of Scott Field, will probably draw the assignment with Kennedy.

Jack Renault, the Canadian heavyweight, who will appear in the main event of the New Coliseum show, is expected to report here Tuesday or Wednesday to finish his training.

KNOX DOMINATES COLLEGE NET MEET

GALESBURG, Ill., May 12.—Knox College ran away with the I. I. A. C. Western District tennis tournament held on the Knox courts this week end, Messick and Willett winning in the semifinals.

Deimer and Messick of Knox defeated Tambert and Johnson of Carthage in the doubles, the Carthage pair having qualified by winning from Augustana in the semifinals.

Messick of Knox, holder of the State title four years ago, was easily the outstanding man of the tournament, and is expected to win the championship this year. Schools competing in the district tournament were Knox, Monmouth Carthage and Augustana.

Stomach Bad 35 Yrs. —Feels Fine Now

"I suffered with indigestion and stomach gas for 35 years. Since the first dose of Adlerika I have not been troubled a minute."—D. Carlisle.

The simple mixture of buckthorn bark, glycerine, saline, etc. (known as Adlerika), has a most surprising DOUBLE action. First, it acts on BOTH upper and lower bowel (most medicines act on lower bowel only) and removes foul matter that often poisoned the system for months. Second, Adlerika clears all GAS and sourness from stomach and bowels, bringing INSTANT relief from stomach trouble. And, in addition, Adlerika removes metabolic poisons which cause neuritis, rheumatism, etc.

Dr. H. L. Shoub, New York, writes: "Adlerika, in addition to its intestinal cleansing, checks the growth of intestinal bacteria and bacilli."

Dr. J. Weaver: "In my 50 years' practice I have found nothing to excel Adlerika."

J. E. Puckett: "After using Adlerika, I feel better than for 20 years. Awful impurities were eliminated."

It will astonish you the great amounts of poisonous matter Adlerika brings out—matter you would never believe was in your system. In chronic constipation, gas bloating, sour stomach and sick headaches, just ONE spoonful Adlerika brings wonderful relief. At leading druggists. Sold in St. Louis by Wolff-Wilson Drug Stores and other druggists.

New Series Of Concerts Through KSD Begin Tonight

Quartet Will Open Summer Atwater Kent Programs at 7:15 O'Clock—Story of Ruth in Biblical Drama—Special Mother's Day Broadcast.

THE first of the summer series of Atwater Kent concerts a piano and harpsichord recital by Hans Barth, a special Mother's Day program and a dramatization of the story of Ruth—most famous of the love stories in the Bible—will be today's afternoon and evening features over KSD.

Bruce Barton, widely known author; James J. Montague, poet and columnist; a number of noted artists, and Miss Anna Jarvis, founder and president of the International Mothers' Day Association, are to take part in the special Mothers' day broadcast at 5:30 this afternoon. It is expected that Mayor Walker of New York also will speak.

Among the artists to be heard in this program are: Lucy Marsh, lyric soprano; Lambert Murphy, former Metropolitan Opera tenor; Godfrey Ludlow, one of the best known of radio violinists; Yascha Bunchuk, 'cellist; the Cities Service Cavaliers quartet, and the National Concert Orchestra under Cesare Sodero.

The Mothers' day program will be on the air during the time usually occupied by the Capitol Theater Family, Maj. Bowes having co-operated with the NBC in this first national radio observance of Mothers' day.

Miss Jarvis is to open the program. It is probable that Montague will read a new poem dedicated to Miss Jarvis and the work of the Mothers' Day Association.

Tonight's Atwater Kent concert will be given by a newly organized quartet which was heard for the first time over the air in the Atwater Kent Hour of last Sunday. This quartet, which was formed especially for these summer concerts, is composed of Victor Edmunds, first tenor; George Rasely, second tenor; Erwyn Mutch, baritone, and James Davies, basso.

Erwyn Mutch, the director, is a Pennsylvanian who began his musical career as a boy soprano soloist in New York choirs, later becoming baritone soloist in the Cathedral of St. John the Divine, New York. After the war, he studied with Jean de Reszke in France.

George Rasely is a native of St. Louis. At the age of 20 he was chosen as tenor soloist in the Old South Church in Boston and later was soloist at the Park avenue Baptist Church, New York, where he has sung for more than 10 years. He is well known in concert in the East.

Victor Edmunds is a Welshman who has sung throughout Wales, Scotland and England at festivals, and in several London recitals. He has made concert tours through Canada and the West, singing with the Los Angeles Society, Long Beach Oratorio Society, and others, in addition to operatic appearances.

James Davies was born in Newport-Mon, England, and is a graduate of the Royal College of Music in London. He was three times winner at the Welsh National Eisteddfod, the greatest honor a singer can achieve in Wales. He came to America with the Royal Welsh

New Series Of Concerts Through KSD Begin Tonight

Quartet Will Open Summer Atwater Kent Programs at 7:15 O'Clock—Story of Ruth in Biblical Drama—Special Mother's Day Broadcast.

THE first of the summer series of Atwater Kent concerts a piano and harpsichord recital by Hans Barth, a special Mother's Day program and a dramatization of the story of Ruth—most famous of the love stories in the Bible—will be today's afternoon and evening features over KSD.

Bruce Barton, widely known author; James J. Montague, poet and columnist; a number of noted artists, and Miss Anna Jarvis, founder and president of the International Mothers' Day Association, are to take part in the special Mothers' day broadcast at 5:30 this afternoon. It is expected that Mayor Walker of New York also will speak.

Among the artists to be heard in this program are: Lucy Marsh, lyric soprano; Lambert Murphy, former Metropolitan Opera tenor; Godfrey Ludlow, one of the best known of radio violinists; Yascha Bunchuk, 'cellist; the Cities Service Cavaliers quartet, and the National Concert Orchestra under Cesare Sodero.

The Mothers' day program will be on the air during the time usually occupied by the Capitol Theater Family, Maj. Bowes having co-operated with the NBC in this first national radio observance of Mothers' day.

Miss Jarvis is to open the program. It is probable that Montague will read a new poem dedicated to Miss Jarvis and the work of the Mothers' Day Association.

Tonight's Atwater Kent concert will be given by a newly organized quartet which was heard for the first time over the air in the Atwater Kent Hour of last Sunday. This quartet, which was formed especially for these summer concerts, is composed of Victor Edmunds, first tenor; George Rasely, second tenor; Erwyn Mutch, baritone, and James Davies, basso.

Erwyn Mutch, the director, is a Pennsylvanian who began his musical career as a boy soprano soloist in New York choirs, later becoming baritone soloist in the Cathedral of St. John the Divine, New York. After the war, he studied with Jean de Reszke in France.

George Rasely is a native of St. Louis. At the age of 20 he was chosen as tenor soloist in the Old South Church in Boston and later was soloist at the Park avenue Baptist Church, New York, where he has sung for more than 10 years. He is well known in concert in the East.

Victor Edmunds is a Welshman who has sung throughout Wales, Scotland and England at festivals, and in several London recitals. He has made concert tours through Canada and the West, singing with the Los Angeles Society, Long Beach Oratorio Society, and others, in addition to operatic appearances.

James Davies was born in Newport-Mon, England, and is a graduate of the Royal College of Music in London. He was three times winner at the Welsh National Eisteddfod, the greatest honor a singer can achieve in Wales. He came to America with the Royal Welsh

German Radio Fans Turn to Metalic Horn

AN opportunity to compare the latest development of radio in Europe and America has been afforded by the radio show at the Leipzig Fair just closed. Remarkable progress has been made abroad in the past year in improving tonal production and selectivity and in simplifying and cheapening many forms of apparatus.

It was noticeable that Germany advances along theoretical lines, and that there the science of radio is far advanced, while in the United States the practical side is amazingly developed.

Station Names on Dials.

A notable advance has recently been made in Germany in the technique of broadcasting. The microphones are especially good in the transmission of the violin and the distinctive instruments of large orchestras and the soprano voice. The German stations transmit the high frequencies faithfully. American stations, it is recognized, reproduce the lower notes extremely well.

Germany has fewer broadcasting stations than America, while its programs, especially in music, are of a very high grade.

Although the distances are great in the United States the land line relays in America are considered better than in Europe.

Much more attention is paid in Germany today to simplifying and decorating cabinets than formerly. A five tube set in an attractive cabinet to work effectively with stations in all parts of Europe sells for about $125. Sets which will work satisfactorily with local stations sell for half or even a fourth this sum.

Multiple dials have been done away with, and the newest dials have the names of the broadcasting stations marked on them instead of the wave lengths.

Back to Metal Horns.

Germany is returning to the metal horn loud speaker. The other forms, especially the paper disks, are thought to require too much power to give the same results. Great improvements have been made technically along this line, and the metallic quality has been eliminated. A good loud speaker sells as low as $5 and the best for about $35.

The newest German batteries are much smaller than formerly, and are said to be a great improvement. By using very thin plates, batteries are now offered less than two inches square which can be charged with any kind of current. The prices of batteries are considerably lower than in the United States.

Most of the German sets use outdoor antenna. There has been a notable advance recently in de-

German Motor Cars Dominate Leipsic Fair

The largest exhibition of commercial automobiles and special cars ever assembled, illustrating the latest progress of European manufacturers, has just been concluded at the Leipsic Trade Fair. The newest German product dominated the show, with American cars forming a conspicuous minority.

More than 300 exhibits were displayed in the new automobile hall which is more than twice the size of Madison Square Garden in New York.

It was officially announced at the Fair that a reduction of 25 per cent in the tariff on foreign cars imported into Germany will become effective July 1. The reduction is considered a measure of the confidence Germany feels in its progress in meeting American competition.

Germany is today probably the greatest potential market for automobiles in Europe, and her manufacturers are making a supreme effort to supply local needs. The cost of production in Germany especially in the case of passenger cars is still far above the average in America.

An increase in the sale of American products is expected in the near future. The standard American cars and products are well established in Germany.

Ideal Short Tour Is Over Wild Horse Creek Road

THERE is no more appealing countryside in all of St. Louis County than that traversed by the Wild Horse Creek road. To relate that this region has as bucolic a tang as the most isolated of Ozarks country is scarcely believeable and even after the motorist has wandered through its dreamy confines it is hard to realize that the metropolis is but a few minutes' ride away.

As the motorist turns to the rignt off the Manchester road, 31 miles from the St. Louis Post-Dispatch building, the Wild Horse Creek region is entered over the road bearing the same name as the country itself.

From the crest of the first hill one looks upon a dense hillside of treetops. There is a tiny cemetery among the cedars, in the blue distance rolling fields of grain. Off to the left, not far from the road, is a battered gray two-story frame survivor of slavery days.

One or two log cabins are visible in the few clearings—a glimpse of pioneer Missouri. One almost expects the sudden approach of a settler there in coonskin cap and homespun carrying a long rifle and followed by his dog.

The descent of the hill is made through expansive orchards. On the left, nearly hidden from the road by shade trees, stands a whitewashed backwoods cabin of 70 years ago. In a dilapidated shelter near the house are two nondescript vehicles of uncertain vintage, apparently unmoved for a decade. This cabin was once the home of Johann Kuhschwanz, a legendary settler of German extraction, concerning whom is told the legend of the Wild Horse Creek.

It seems that many years ago, on a moonlit midnight, the neighborhood was startled out of its sleep by the wild beating of horse's hoofs. From the rapidity with which the beats fell upon the road the good people knew that something unusual was happening. And, as one by one they thrust their heads out of the windows, they caught a fleeting glimpse of a rotund little man, without head covering, clinging for dear life to the back of a white horse, his face toward the animal's tail. They traveled with the rapidity of the wind and were soon lost to sight.

Morning confirmed the suspicions of the countryside. Johann Kuhschwanz was missing, as was also an old mare that had had the run of the neighborhood. How Johann ever came upon the back of the animal in that peculiar position, and at that hour of the night, or what his ultimate destination was, never was ascertained, nor was he ever again seen, according to tradition.

Thus did the country take the name from the untrammeled antics of Johann Kuhschwanz's charger on that night many years ago.

As the motorist leaves the little whitewashed cabin of Johann, there is a wide view of gloomy

Improved Roads Now Lead Into Calhoun County

There's a fascinating practical lesson in local geography awaiting the motorist who makes a 150-mile trip from St. Louis through Calhoun County, Ill., the famous apple district, and back. This is particularly true in case he goes in and out by way of St. Charles, county Mo., rather than Jersey County, Ill.

In the first place, the geography is interesting, because, it will be observed, this long, lean, railroadless Illinois community is west of the Missouri metropolis, St. Louis. In the second place, there is an unequaled opportunity to see the peculiar relationship of the nation's two greatest streams, the Mississippi and the Missouri, and their important neighbor, the Illinois.

The panoramas formed by the parallel courses of these rivers are magnificent. Each has great limestone bluffs, crowned with trees just now assuming their full beauty with the advent of spring. Then, in Calhoun, there is vista after vista. The hillsides are dotted with orchards and the vales are brilliant at the moment with a profusion of dogwood—blooms as sleek and brilliant at a little distance as hothouse gardenias. The blossoms of the late varieties of apples are out, though the great

Cooper, Ace of Long Ago, to Try Comeback

SPORTS fans of America like to look back on days gone by to compare the heroes of yesterday with the present holders of titles and crowns. According to many oldtimers, Tunney would be a setup for "Ruby Bob" Fitzsimmons; Hans Wagner and Larry Lajoie would relegate today's diamond stars to the dugout. And so it goes. America's heroes die hard and feats of the present rarely dim achievements of the past.

Moreover, the enthusiasm of the throng is doubled when the favorites of yesterday continue to break into the headlines with a seemingly endless repetition of their feats. Ty Cobb and Jack Dempsey shine as outstanding examples, both of them old, as age is judged in sports, yet each still holding a generous portion of public affection.

To a list of former heroes of sportdom who continue to appear on the horizon, creating comment and speculation in their activities, must be added the name of Earl Cooper, whose slight form has rested in the pilot's seat of racing cars for two decades and whose once abundant hair has disappeared under the tight massage of racing helmets.

Twice in his tumultous career, Cooper has retired from the track and twice he has come back, heeding in part the pleas of his admirers and the lure of the game, but making his final decision because, through constant association with automotive experts, he knew that the speedway has come to be regarded as the real laboratory of the automobile industry.

Cooper is now captain of the racing team which will guide the destinies of two Marmon 68 Specials entered in the forthcoming 500-mile "drive to nowhere" at the Indianapolis speedway, May 30. He is working side by side with Col. Howard Marmon, world-famous automobile engineer, in the development of the renowned wartime Liberty motor.

Strange as it may seem, the very workshop where the first Marmon racing cars were built 17 years ago is again the scene of the research, experiment and development in connection with this year's race. Cooper and Marmon—the one the driver, the other the engineer—are now working and planning, side by side, at the Marmon factory. From early in the morning until late at night the lights glow in their little workshop, screened from the eyes of the curious, while they keep at it as the racing crew assembles and

New Glacier Park Route To Be Open Late in 1928

Transmountain Highway to Make Accessible for First Time Many Scenic Vistas Will Connect Eastern Gateway With Western.

By ROBERT HENRY HALL,
Automobile Editor.

MANY highways are claimed to be the most scenic in America. Some have reason for substantiating this claim; others have little more than local pride to support the superlative.

Glacier National Park, upon the completion of the new Transmountain Road, will enter the lists, and, if comments of those who have been over the section completed are to be taken as a criterion, the mantle will descend upon a new claimant. The new highway, Government built, will connect Glacier Park Station, the eastern gateway, with Belton, the gateway on the western slope of the Rockies and for the first time open to tourist travel scenic vistas which heretofore have been accessible only by horseback or on foot.

The Transmountain Road crosses the Continental Divide at Logan Pass, one of the most beautiful and distinctive passes of the Northern Rocky Mountains. Approaching the pass from the west, immediately after entering the park at Belton, the autoist passes Administrative Headquarters. The Flathead River, fine forest and rustic buildings carefully located, form a combination that is extremely attractive.

Shortly after passing headquarters, a virgin cedar forest is reached. This is one of the very few virgin cedar forests left, and visitors to the park marvel at its beauty. Three miles from Belton is Lake McDonald. Like all the 60 odd lakes in Glacier National Park, Lake McDonald is Alpine in character. It is 10 miles long and its greatest width is two miles; its water marvelously clear, and teeming with trout.

All lakes in Glacier Park are indescribably beautiful and each is quite distinctive.

From the lower end of Lake McDonald, the motorist follows a winding road through a forest of cedar, tamarack, lodgepole pine, aspen and fir, giving vistas of the lake and mountains until, just before reaching Lewis' Glacier Hotel, the road follows the very edge of the lake for a distance of about one-half mile.

Continuing from the upper end of Lake McDonald, for 11 miles the road follows up McDonald Creek, a turbulent mountain stream. McDonald Falls and Logan Falls are exquisite. The forest along the creek is extremely dense and ferns and moss grow in profusion. Eighteen miles from Belton is Avalanche Creek, where the principal auto camp on the west side of the Continental Divide will be located. This camp ground will be modern in every respect, with housekeeping cabins, delicatessen store, community house, shower baths and service station. Every effort will be made to complete this camp ground by the time the Transmountain road is ready for travel.

A hike or horseback ride of three miles from Avalanche Camp Ground brings the visitor to Avalanche Lake, nestling at the foot of a sheer wall 3200 feet in height, at the top of which is Sperry Glacier, one of the most distinctive glaciers in the park. Avalanche Lake is

ARCHER-MANN TO DISTRIBUTE MARMON LINE

Will Wholesale and Retail Cars in St. Louis and Parts of Two States.

The Marmon Motor Car Co. of Indianapolis the past week announced the appointment of the Archer-Mann Motor Co. as distributer for Marmon cars in Eastern Missouri and Southern Illinois. This firm, one of the oldest in St. Louis, is now showing the new Marmon 68 and 78 lines at its showrooms at Lindell boulevard at Sarah street.

The Archer-Mann organization insures Marmon's growing success in this territory with a personnel long associated with the merchandising of the better grade of cars and an organization thoroughly experienced in servicing them.

The nucleus of the present company dates back 15 years, when A. E. Archer became distributer for electric cars. In 1919 that company ceased operations as an independent unit, due to a merger which created the MacCarthy-Archer Automobile Co., specializing in electrics and other high-grade cars. Three years ago R. E. Mann joined forces with Archer through the formation of the Archer-Mann Motor Co.

Mann is especially well known in automotive circles, having been associated with the Packard factory for a number of years. His experience with that organization included service with the New York branch, several years as manager of the Packard branch in Detroit, where he made an outstanding record, and more recently as manager of the Packard branch in St. Louis.

Both Archer and Mann are known for their practical knowledge of all phases of the motor industry, including service and sales. They have been extremely successful both as merchants and business men. In the present venture they have associated with them a fine organization of experienced men in both sales and service departments. They are setting up facilities for Marmon dealers throughout the territory, and are ready to consider applications from dealers throughout Southern Illinois and Eastern Missouri. Catering both to wholesale and retail business, they are establishing a corps of men to cover the territory and co-operate with dealers to be appointed.

Not only will a full line of Marmon straight-eights be carried, but an equally full line of parts and full facilities for the rendering of prompt and efficient service.

tears down the cars, laboring tirelessly, so that each detail will be exactly correct.

The assistance of a pair of hands as cunning and a mind as keen as their own is given them by Reeves Dutton, a racing mechanic whose ability is summed up by Cooper, laconically as "the best." He is the one who assembles the tiny parts of the motors, regarding the tightening of each nut as a rite and looking upon careless work as nothing less than sacrilege.

Towering over the slighter builds of his fellow workers is Pete Kreis, who has been selected as one of the drivers of the Marmon 68 Specials. Although one of the younger drivers, Kreis is well versed in the science of racing and has proved himself an apt pupil at the hard school of experience in the game that makes young men old and keeps old men young.

After long experience in the unstable seat of a motorcycle racer, Johnny Seymour has brought his mechanical skill to the Marmon factory and is working with Marmon, Cooper, Kreis and Dutton on the Marmon 68 Specials.

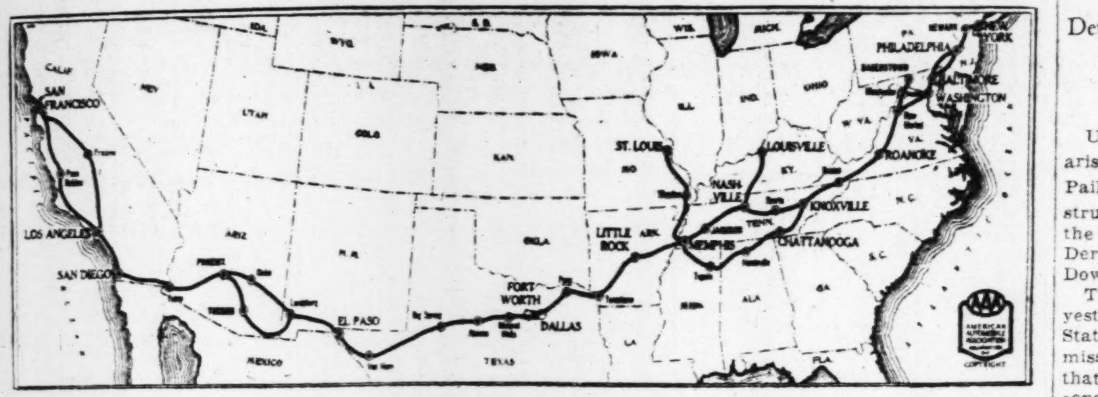
A. A. A. Southern Cross-Country Tourist Route Includes Portions of Four Nationally Known Main Highways

Regarded as Closest Approximation to an All-Year, All-Weather Route Ever Approached.



The Southern cross-country route, featured by the American Automobile Association in this year's issue of Transcontinental Tour Books, contains portions of four nationally known highways, and is regarded as the closest approximation to an all-year, all-weather route ever approached, according to a statement from the national motoring body today.

Among the well-known highways, links of which are included in the featured route, are the Lee highway, the Bankhead highway, the Old Spanish trail and the Borderland trail.

New York a Terminal.

It was pointed out at A. A. A. headquarters that the proposed "Broadway of America," for the organization of which a convention was held in Memphis, Tenn., April 20-21, practically coincides with the transcontinental route which was recently logged from end to end by A. A. A. scout cars.

With New York and San Francisco as the terminals, this all-year highway passes through Philadelphia, Washington, Roanoke, Knoxville, Nashville, Chattanooga, Memphis, Little Rock, Dallas, Fort Worth, El Paso, Phoenix, San Diego, Los Angeles, San Francisco, and scores of smaller communities.

The following description of the route, including road conditions and features of scenic and historic interest, in which it is extremely rich, is quoted from volume four of the A. A. A. series of transcontinental tour books recently issued:

"The route on the whole is fairly well sign-posted and although there will be places where the roads are inadequately marked, the motorists will have comparatively little trouble in following this cross-country route.

"This is perhaps the best route available for winter travel as practically 60 per cent of the entire distance of 3594 miles is paved. There are 2353 miles paved and the remaining 1241 miles offer a satisfactory and dependable all-year route.

"The route between New York and Washington is all paved, as is also that between Washington and Knoxville, except for a stretch of graded dirt crossing the Blue Ridge Mountains on the Washington-New Market road and some gravel in Tennessee. Between Knoxville and Memphis there is a new road, recently completed, via Nashville, with pavement most of the distance and some stretches of good gravel.

Alternate Route.

The alternate route, via Chattanooga, which is the Lee Highway proper, is slightly longer, with good gravel and pavement throughout. Between Knoxville and El Paso the route is about 50 per cent paved and 50 per cent gravel, with alternating stretches of each about evenly divided. Between El Paso and San Diego gravel improvement prevails, with a few stretches of pavement.

This section of the route includes the new paved road over the sand dunes of the Imperial County desert in Southern California. Although these dunes shift with every wind, the highway is kept clear and the tourist has no trouble in crossing the desert. From San Diego to Los Angeles and San Francisco the road is all paved. The route, on the whole, is in good condition and may be traveled in all sorts of weather. A few construction projects may be encountered, but little difficulty will be experienced.

"The topography of the country along the route varies, the altitudes ranging from 51 feet below sea level at El Centro, Cal., to 5000 feet above sea level at the Continental Divide between Deming and Lordsburg.

"The route follows the famous Shenandoah Valley between Winchester and Knoxville, Tenn. West of Knoxville, the road crosses the Cumberland Mountains, but presents no difficult climbs. At Memphis it crosses the Mississippi and continues across rolling farming and hilly country in Arkansas to the vast, level cattle and oil lands of Texas and the Southwest. The Continental Divide is reached in Western New Mexico between Deming and Lordsburg, but the climb is not difficult, as Deming itself is 4320 feet above sea level and the summit of the divide 5000 feet, so the actual climb is only 680 feet and the rise gradual.

Mountains Crossed.

A few low mountain ranges are crossed between El Paso and Southern California, but none of the grades are steep. Before reaching San Diego a mountain range is encountered whose summit is 3500 feet high, but with easy grades. The entire trip may be made with perfect ease as far as grades are concerned, if the car is in good mechanical condition, with clutch and brakes working normally. The route from San Diego to San Francisco runs along the shore of the ocean, sometimes skirting it closely, at other times separated from it by chains of mountains with a background of mountains to the east.

This route is rich in scenic and historic interest. The Shenandoah Valley road passes the proposed Shenandoah National Park, the famous Natural Bridge of Virginia, several Civil War battlefields, the homes of some of the country's greatest men, and Lexington, where Robert E. Lee lived and is buried. Near Knoxville are the Great Smoky Mountains, part of which is proposed as a National Park offering possibly the grandest primitive scenery in the East. Chattanooga is also situated in a mountainous section of great scenic beauty and historic associations. Continuing on the route, there are: Hot Springs National Park, famous health and pleasure resort; the cattle and oil fields of the great Southwest; Mexican towns just across the Rio Grande, which the road follows from Fort Hancock to El Paso; the mountains of New Mexico and Arizona, containing ancient cliff dwellings; Roosevelt Dam, one of the greatest irrigation projects in the country; vast sand dunes, where the desert 'movies' are made; Imperial Valley, one of the few places in the country below sea level; the magnificent scenery of the Pacific Coast, and the historic old missions and quaint Spanish towns. In addition, each city and town visited along the route offers its own particular points of interest and scenic attractions.

New Glacier Park Road To Be Open Late in 1928

famed for its beauty and cutthroat trout. One-fourth mile from the road is Avalanche Gorge, a fine example of erosion in limestone, and striking in its wild rugged beauty. Six miles beyond Avalanche Creek the road begins to climb to Logan Pass.

The maximum grade is 6 per cent and curves are compensated. Twelve miles of road are required to make the climb to the pass. There is a tunel through solid limestone. Two windows provide light and ventilation and make a splendid frame for Heaven's Peak, one of the most distinctive mountains in the park. A stone parapet is placed at the outer edge of the road at all sheer declivities.

Numerous parking places provide parking spots where motorists may linger and drink in the magnificent views. Glaciers, and falls and cascades fed by them, are constantly in sight, as are many peaks supporting large snow fields. Wild flowers, variously tinted strata of the earth's crust, and beautiful mountain meadows complete the spectacle. Words cannot describe this masterpiece of nature; it must be seen to be comprehended.

Logan Pass will give even the most blase traveler a thrill. Within easy walking distance are the Hanging Gardens of Hidden Lake, the latter full of trout. A trail leads from the pass to Granite Park chalets, a distance of eight miles, and is for the entire distance only a few hundred feet below the Continental Divide. Mountain goats and Bighorn sheep are usually to be seen by those using this trail. Another trail follows the general course of the road to Going-to-the-Sun chalets.

Continuing from Logan Pass, the visitor will be astounded at the different type of forest encountered east of the Continental Divide. Engleman spruce, balsam fir, blue spruce, aspen and lodgepole pine predominate. The forest is not so dense as that west of the Continental Divide, and for that reason wild flowers are more plentiful. More open meadows will also be noticed.

Eight miles beyond Logan Pass are Going-to-the-Sun chalets, an extremely picturesque group of buildings on a high rocky ledge jutting into St. Mary Lake. I shall not attempt to describe St. Mary Lake. Suffice it to say that the late Secretary of the Interior Lane pronounced it the most beautiful lake in America. To perhaps a greater extent that any other lake in the park, St. Mary Lake is bordered by rugged mountains.

Four miles beyond Going-to-the-Sun chalets is Roes Creek. At this point a beautiful meadow on the shore of St. Mary Lake will be the principal auto camp in the park east of the Continental Divide.

It will be complete in every respect but, like the Avalanche Camp Ground, funds for its construction cannot be secured until contract is let for completion of the entire road.

The junction of Transmountain Road with Blackfeet Highway is six miles beyond Roes Creek Camp Ground and near St. Mary Chalets. Autoists may turn north to famed Many Glaciers Hotel on Lake McDermott, or to Canadians points. Or they may turn south to Two Medicine Chalets and Lake. Before reaching Two Medicine Junction, they may turn eastward over a modern highway to Great Falls and points east; or they may continue past Two Medicine Junction to the imposing Glacier Park Hotel at Glacier Park station, which is considered by many to be the last word in rustic architecture.

The Roosevelt Highway, paralleling the Great Northern Railroad between Belton and Glacier Park station, is now under construction and will be completed about the time the Transmountain Road is ready for travel. Many motorists will no doubt make the return trip to Belton over the former road and thus complete a motor trip that will be highly enjoyable and most unusual.

West of the Continental Divide of the 34 miles from Belton to Logan Pass, 24 miles already have been surfaced with crushed gravel. Grading is practically completed on the remaining 10 miles. Funds are available for completing grading and surfacing the road to Logan Pass and this work is now under contract. Work will be completed in the autumn of 1928.

East of the Continental Divide, the St. Mary section of the Transmountain road has been graded from Blackfeet Junction to one mile beyond Roes Creek. Contract will be let next spring to extend this section three miles to Going-to-the-Sun chalets and to surface the stretch that is at present graded only.

It is believed completion of this road will revolutionize motor travel over the whole Northwest. At present there is no automobile road connecting the east and west sides of the park, and motorists must ship their automobiles by freight from one side to the other. While the freight charge is considerably less than usual charge for such service, experience has proven that motorists will not go where they cannot drive their cars.

GOOD ROADS TO LOUISVILLE FOR DERBY PROMISED

Detour on U. S. 150 in Indiana to Be Eliminated Before Event.

Unless unforeseen obstacles arise, U. S. No. 150, closed between Pailo and Palmyra, Ind., for construction, will be completed within the next few days and opened to Derby day traffic to Churchill Downs at Louisville, May 19.

This announcement was made yesterday by John D. Williams, State Road Director, in the commission's traffic buleltin, who said that every effort is being made by construction forces to complete this project so that traffic driving from the southwest part of the State, from Illinois and connecting to Louisville via this highway, will not be forced over a detour.

St. Louisans going to the Derby will follow the following route:

Cross Free Bridge, pick up Illinois State Highway No. 12 and follow this route through Trenton, Sandoval, Flora, Lawrenceville, and into Vincennes, Ind. From Vincennes continue east on U. S. 50 to the intersection of U. S. 150, which is eight miles east of Loogootee.

If the detour is eliminated at this point continue on U. S. 150 to Paoli, thence through Palmyra, New Albany and into Louisville.

If the detour still is in effect, follow U. S. 50 out of Vincennes and continue on it beyond the intersection with U. S. 150 to Mitchell, then south on Indiana No. 37 to Paoli, east on No. 56 to Salem, south on No. 35 to Palmyra and thence over U. S. 150 to Louisville.

Ford Tries Hand at Driving Horse Car

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, May 12.—Henry Ford spent part of his first day in the United States, after a three weeks' visit to England, driving an old-time horse car in Brooklyn.

Soon after debarking, Ford, accompanied by his son, Edsel, went to Brooklyn and drove the old horse car which he plans to add to his collection of relics of bygone times, in the belief that it is the oldest remaining vehicle of its kind.

Reject the Color Blind.

In examinations for driving permit in Washington, D. C., 2 per cent of the applicants are color-blind and unable to distinguish between the green or "go" light and the red or "stop" signal. All color-blind applicants are rejected, and old drivers found to be unable to distinguish between lights are not allowed to renew the licenses.

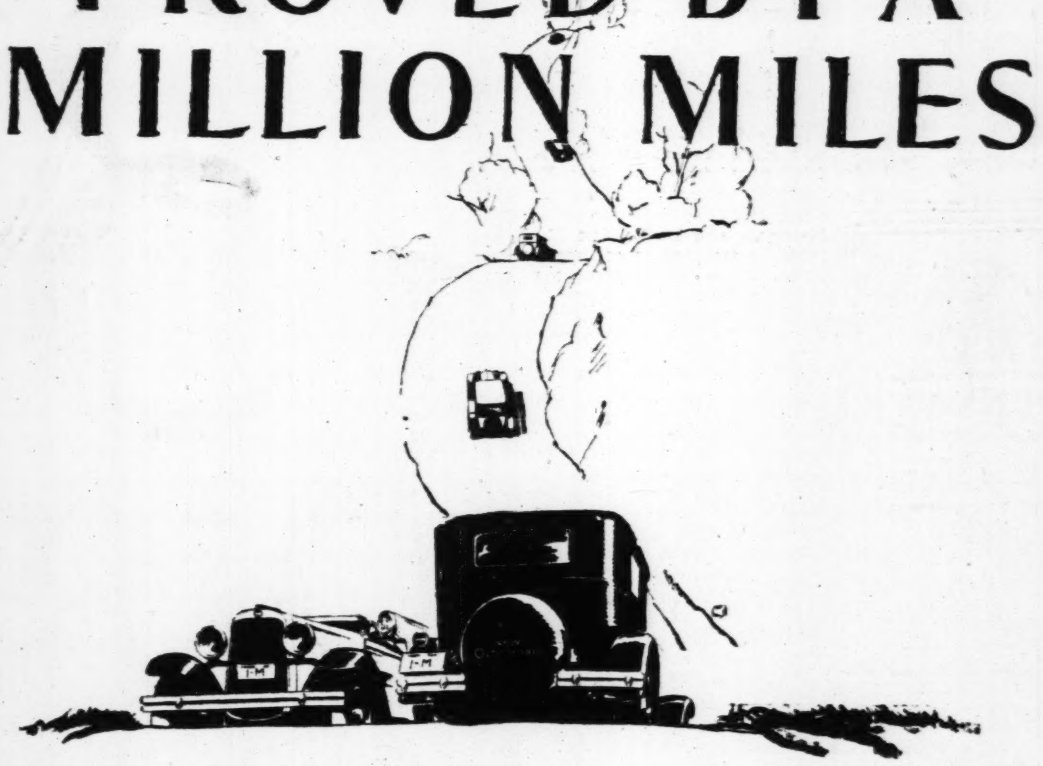
PROVED BY A MILLION MILES



Before the new Oldsmobile was presented to the public more than a million miles of testing were put behind it. For two years it was threading the traffic of street and highway ... running the gauntlet of exacting tests on the General Motors Proving Ground ... 1,177,000 miles of wearing, tearing use!

As a result, the new Oldsmobile brings to buyers those fine car qualities which have in the past been available only at higher prices—

—high speed combined with steadiness ... true smoothness combined with rugged power ... quietness combined with ease of operation—

—All in a six whose stamina is a matter of engineering record!

Naturally, it has emphasized the brilliant styling achievement represented in the new Oldsmobile-Fisher bodies. Naturally, it has caused amazement that a car of so many basic superiorities could offer in addition so many items of equipment.

Find out for yourself the reasons for the new vogue that has caused thousands and thousands of buyers to choose the new Oldsmobile.

TWO-DOOR SEDAN $925 f. o. b. Lansing Excise tax and spare tire extra.

A real estate man looks at an Oldsmobile

"Undoubtedly I am unreasonable in my demands," said this real estate man when he came in. "I want the performance, comfort and appearance of an expensive car—and I want the fine quality of materials and construction that will make these advantages lasting. Yet I don't want to invest a lot of money."

When informed that the two door sedan sold for $925 f. o. b. Lansing he lifted his eyebrows. "Hmm," he said, "nice lines. What kind of body construction?"

"Fisher construction," he was informed. "Selected hardwood and steel that—"

"Yes, I know," he interrupted. "I've read Fisher advertising and know what that means."

In a few minutes he was at the wheel of an Oldsmobile headed toward one of his subdivisions. The road was far from good. "I have never ridden in a more comfortable car," he exclaimed. "I thought that only the biggest cars could ride like this."

When he was told that a set of four Lovejoy hydraulic shock absorbers came with the car as standard equipment, he was quite surprised.

Returning through traffic he tucked the car into a scant parking space at the curb, stepped out and said, "I never thought I'd find it—but I have. This car meets every requirement I need and want. I'm sold!" Come take that drive today.

THE FINE CAR OF LOW PRICE

EXPENDITURES UNDER BOND ISSUE SHOWN

$11,500,000 of $75,000,000 Would Go for Relief of Traffic Congestion.

Tentative expenditures under the proposed $75,000,000 Missouri road bond issue showing the progress of all classes of road construction simultaneously is contained in a table just issued by Chief Engineer T. H. Cutler of the State Highway Department.

The table shows the distribution of the combined funds realized from the proposed bond issue and current revenues available from the gasoline tax, auto registration and Federal aid. It carries through to 1937 and shows the completion of most of the work by the end of 1934.

The total sum available, according to the estimated figures, for all classes of road-building would be $168,735,310, which is divided as follows: $108,471,087 for the 7640-mile State system and refunds, $4,700,000 for the 200 miles additional to the authorized State system and park connections, $40,000,000 farm-to-market supplementary highways, and $11,500,000 for congested areas around St. Louis and Kansas City.

In his letter to division engineers, Mr. Cutler stated: "I find that a number of questions are being asked concerning the possible program if the $75,000,000 bond issue carries next fall. I am being asked how soon work will start on the various new roads which will be authorized by this amendment, and the rate of completion of the present system.

"In the work adjacent to St. Louis and Kansas City, you will note that we have estimated only about $1,000,000 a year up to and including 1933; this is based upon our experience that securing right-of-way in the vicinity of the cities is usually a slow process, and about $1,000,000 a year is all that we expect to use for the first three or four years.

"We appreciate, of course, the fact that nothing is fixed about this program, as the bond issue amendment does not require one thing ahead of another except that preference should be given to the completion of the present system. The statements enclosed show approximately my idea of the way the funds will be expended."

Volunteer circulators of road bond petitions to be used in placing the proposition on the ballot in the November election have obtained more than 44,000 names, according to tabulation of returns made this week.

At Lambert Field

Air Mail Week Opens Tomorrow.

AIR mail week, commemorating the tenth anniversary of the inauguration of the air mail service, begins tomorrow. A special appeal for added poundage for the occasion has been made by the Robertson Aircraft Corporation, operators of the Chicago-St. Louis route, which began operations slightly more than two years ago.

The second year of the mail line has proved reasonably successful, with approximately a 20 per cent increase in poundage registered in the last few months as compared with the same months of 1927. Increasing satisfaction of users with the greater speed possible through the service is the prime heason for the increase, but another important element has been the greater possibilities offered in the last six months by the air mail service by virtue of the establishment of new contract routes in all parts of the country.

The St. Louis-Chicago route, incidentally, may soon be changed slightly to include East St. Louis. Frank H. Robertson, president of the carrying company, and H. J. McNally, traffic manager, conferred Thursday with postal officials about extension of the service which would give East St. Louis patrons a later closing time for posting letters.

Under the present system, the East St. Louis air mail closes at noon and is shipped across the river by train. To obviate that necessity it was suggested at the conference that the air mail planes could stop at Parks Airport, south of East St. Louis, and pick up the East Side mail before heading for Chicago.

Should that plan be adopted, it is likely that St. Louis mail will also be put on the planes on the East Side, since the Parks field is only 20 minutes drive from the postoffice and the run to Lambert-St. Louis Field is twice that long.

Should the Parks field be used by the mail, it would also be possible to put in a motor-cycle courier service by which the East Side industrial firms of the Tri-Cities could take advantage of the mail line.

Mail Pilots Relax by Flying.

Like the mail carrier who went walking on his vacation days. "Bud" Gurney and Leslie Smith, air mail pilots, go for airplane trips on their Sunday afternoons. Last Sunday they flew to an island in the Missouri River near its mouth, and spent the afternoon fishing and trying out the new revolvers with which they are equipped. The trip to the island and return took them only 40 minutes. By the automobile and boat it would have been at least three hours.

From Wichita in Five Hours.

Frank Wigton and Claude Sterling of Parks Airlines flew two new OX-5 Travel-Airs from Wichita to Parks Airport last Wednesday in slightly more than five hours.

Thursday, Claude Vermilya, a former student instructed in flying by Sterling, stopped at the field in a Waco-Ten on his way from Kansas City to Muncy, Pa. On the previous day, Barney Zenerly of Marshall, Mo., visited the field in a Waco-Nine with William Kay, a student who is taking cross-country instruction.

Snow Delays Flyers Two Days.

"Red" Jackson, who accompanied H. L. Grandy, a student of the Von Hoffmann Aircraft Corporation school, to Three Lakes, Wis., last week, in Grandy's new OX-5 Eaglerock, returned by train Tuesday. The trip northward was delayed when they were snowbound two days in Wisconsin. Jackson reported that on his first day at carrying passengers at Three Lakes, Grandy netted $75.

Takes Camera Men in Plane.

In addition to his duties as chief instructor in the Robertson Flying Service School, Dan Robertson has completed several photographic missions in the last week, piloting cameramen over various sections of St. Louis. Some of the pictures were taken for a nationally known advertising agency of Philadelphia.

PEERLESS CHIEF FINDS EUROPE WANTS U. S. CARS

Foreigners Demand Greater Operating Economy in Autos, Zimmerman Says.

The demand fo American-built cars of proved economy is still on the increase abroad, according to Walter Zimmerman, export manager of Peerless Motor Car Corporation.

Zimmerman, who returned last week from a trip overseas, studied business conditions at first hand in 10 countries of Europe and established Peerless distributers in Belgium, Germany, Czecho-Slovakia and Austria.

Peerless is now represented in 16 foreign countries, in some of which several large houses are selling this popular American-built car.

"I found that the European car buyers demand two things of the cars America sends them," Zimmerman said at the Peerless factory last week. "The first is value that will enable our cars to compete with those of foreign make. The second is operating economy.

"We must never forget that fuel is far more costly in Europe than it is in America. While the outlay for gasoline of the average American motorist is comparatively small it is a heavy item of expense abroad.

"Consequently, the insistence upon having cars that show unusual mileage per gallon is even more of a sales factor in Europe than it is in our own country. That is the reason why the largest selling foreign-built cars are those of small horsepower, motors with bores far smaller than those of any cars built in this country.

"Yet, in spite of our more powerful motors and larger bodies, the mass production possible in the great American automobile factories enables cars like Peerless to compete successfully with those made in England, France, Germany and other European countries, where cars are still largely made by hand."

Olds Retail Sales Show Big Increase

LANSING, Mich., May 12. — Again Oldsmobile has set new high production and shipment records, officials of the company announce. The number of Oldsmobiles manufactured, shipped and sold during April was the largest in the company's history.

Shipments during April totalled 11,089 Oldsmobiles. This was an increase of more than 2000 cars over the March shipments, which was a record at that time. The May manufacturing schedule calls for a minimum of 12,000 cars.

Retail sales of Oldsmobiles for the first four months of 1928 show a 50 per cent increase over the sales of the same period last year.

Col. Brockman to Return From Cuba

Col. Phil Brockman, president of the De Luxe Motor Car Co., who has been on a brief vacation in Havana, Cuba, is expected to return to St. Louis next week.

During his absence from St. Louis, Col. Brockman was virtually unanimously re-elected to be president of the St. Louis Automobile Dealers' Association at its annual convention and election, held at the Marquette Hotel, Monday night, May 7.

May Motorists to Tour to Houston for National Convention

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

HOUSTON, Tex., May 12.—Motorists from every state in the Union, more than ever before gathered at a national convention, will pilot their cars to Houston in June, to be on hand when the Democratic candidate for the chief magistracy is nominated.

Excellent roads, such as the Lincoln Highway and the National Old Trail route from the East, Federal highway 66 from Chicago, the Lee and Bankhead highways from Memphis and Dallas and U. S. 75 from Dallas, lead to the convention city. Ample accommodations for the tourist, such as camps, hotels, service and gasoline filling stations, are to be found every few miles along the route.

The New York motorist will follow the Lincoln Highway to Philadelphia and proceed to Baltimore via the old Baltimore pike. A detour may be made from Baltimore to Frederick, allowing a visit to the national capital, over the old Baltimore-Washington turnpike and the Susquehanna trail, a distance of 81 miles.

The National Old Trail, Baltimore to Wheeling, leads through some of the most picturesque mountain country in America, but motorists are advised to drive carefully around the turns and to descend the grades in second gear. Fine, wide highways, mostly paved, lead across Ohio, Indiana and Illinois.

Leaving Chicago, the motorist will take Federal highway 66 (State route 4) via Joliet, Bloomington and Springfield, to St. Louis; from St. Louis, Federal highway 61 leads to Memphis; Federal highway 70 to Little Rock and Hot Springs, 67 to Dallas, and 75 into Houston. The route from Cairo to Dallas is over the famous Lee and Bankhead highways, the section from Little Rock to Arkadelphia skirting the ridge of the Ozark Mountains.

Or the motorist wishing to visit New Orleans and drive along the beautiful Gulf coast to Houston, may leave St. Louis on Federal 61, follow State route 49 to Jackson, Federal 51 to New Orleans and Federal 90 to Houston.

Many attractive drives await the motorist at Houston. San Jacinto battlefield, now a state park, 25 miles out of the city, is available by a magnificent highway. A side trip to Galveston, where salt-water bathing and deep-sea fishing may be enjoyed, can be made over perfectly paved roads.

Tamiami Trail Through Florida Open to Travel

The treacherous Everglades of Florida have at last been conquered by Engineering skill.

United States Highway 94, a new hard-surfaced roadway across the State from Naples to Miami, 135 miles, is completed. Its official opening reduces the present motoring mileage between St. Petersburg and Miami. The cities of the west coast are automatically brought into intimate trade relationship with Miami, Key West and Palm Beach on the east coast.

The new highway is termed the Tamiami Trail, and completes the final southern extension of the famous international route southward from Quebec and Montreal to the Gulf known as the Appalachian Scenic Highways, the present terminus of which is St. Petersburg.

Don't Apologize for Your Car!
DON'T drive a car you are ashamed of—a car that is dingy and out of date. Of course the engine runs like a top—but people don't know how it runs. But everybody knows how it looks.
You don't need to spend fifty dollars or more to have it repainted. Get some Steelcote Rubber Auto Enamel and do it yourself. You'll be proud of the job—smooth—lustrous—beautiful. Brush marks simply can't show. Even if you have never painted a car before, you'll boast of the job you do.
Steelcote Rubber Auto Enamel is different from ordinary paint or lacquer—it contains pure para rubber. It goes on right over old paint, enamel or lacquer and stays on—goes on smooth and stays smooth. It dries ready for use in just a few hours.
It is absolutely impervious to steam, road oil, gasoline, etc.—that ruin ordinary automobile finishes. Its protection is as great as its beauty.
Ideal for furniture, household and industrial uses.
Dealers have color charts showing dozens of colors. Or, write us direct for art color chart and intermixing instructions.

3 big features found in no other low-priced six
Combined in the New Series Pontiac Six are scores of advanced engineering features. Every one is important. Every one contributes to the impressive quality of the Pontiac Six. Three of these advancements particularly are worthy of special consideration, because they are basic advantages found on no other low-priced six.
First, in offering bodies by Fisher, the Pontiac Six brings to the low-priced field not only the style and smartness, but also the luxury, roominess and staunchness of Fisher design.
Embodying the G-M-R (General Motors Research) cylinder head, Pontiac combines amazing smoothness and silence with economy of operation, using ordinary gasoline.
And providing the thermostatically-controlled cross-flow radiator, it practically eliminates losses of water and alcohol and assures the proper temperatures for highest efficiency.
Bodies by Fisher—G-M-R Cylinder Head—Cross-flow Radiator . . . here are three big features that no buyer of a six in Pontiac's class can afford to overlook. If the New Series Pontiac Six offered no other exclusive advantages, it would still hold its rightful position as the world's finest low-priced Six.

WHIPPET OUTPUT FIRST QUARTER SETS NEW MARK

Combined Production of Fours and Sixes and Knight Line Was 38,500 Units.

April production of Willys-Knight and Whippet fours and sixes topped the highest month in the history of Willys-Overland with a total production of 38,500 cars. This represents nearly 50 per cent of total production for the three preceding months, officials of the company declared this week in Toledo.

This announcement was made following the company's financial statement for the first quarter ending March 31, which reveals earnings of $2,802,896.55, after interest but before Federal taxes and special rebate deductions which were charged off in this quarter. This shows an average profit per unit of production on the 76,698 cars built in this period, of $36 per car.

In January Willys-Overland produced 16,289 cars. February figures totaled 25,744 and March reached 34,635.

April production exceeded March by nearly 4000 units and with orders for 35,000 cars for May delivery, the situation is considered by company executives as highly satisfactory.

A TOUR OVER WILD HORSE CREEK ROAD

forest and bright glades, of farms far down in the valley, and of the distant blue hills about the Missouri River. The road now follows the summit of a ridge, then takes a shaded dip down into the valley. On the right is a leafy, boulder-strewn hill that rises sheer from the creek which runs along it's base. Farther along, past a symmetrical cleft in the wooded hill, the road becomes more intimate with the stream, crossing it and its little branches many times within a mile or two.

Now the full spell of the country comes upon one. Moss-grown boulders lie in the shaded bed of the stream. Here one may park one's car and wander over light-bathed fields or darker-hued sylvanias, or just sit and dream—for this country has not been made for man who would work, but for he who would linger and dream.

The return to St. Louis is made over Olive Street road, into which Wild Horse Creek road merges.

New Duco for Planes

A special Duco has been developed by the du Pont plant for use on airplanes. A series of new colors in this material has also been developed, made especially for airplane use and, it is believed, will provide the greatset visibility and therefore safety.

LONGER LIFE FOR CARS NOW OBJECT OF AUTO MAKERS

Vehicles Should Stand Up for 10 Years, Say Falcon-Knight Officials.

With builders of motor cars striving to produce an automobile that will provide the owner with continued good service for a longer period than is now conceded, officials of Falcon Motors Corporation of Detroit declare that it has been their policy from the start to build a car that would reach a 10-year period of use.

They declare that in the production of the Falcon-Knight Six, this policy of providing the car owner with an automobile to give longer service has been uppermost.

Falcon officials cite the strenuous tests which eight Falcon-Knight cars are undergoing. For the past year these cars have been traveling over the highways ... various parts of the nation, each having covered 50,000 miles. Only minor adjustments have been necessary on three of the cars while the other five are operating as efficiently as they did the day they came off the assembly line at the company's huge plant in Elyria, O. These cars will continue the tests indefinitely, according to officials of the company.

Improved Roads Now Lead Into Old Calhoun County

mass disappeared a week or so ago.

A glance at the accompanying tour map shows how queerly Calhoun lies, thanks to the meanderings of the great rivers. The county is about 50 miles long and for most of its extent is not more than 10 miles wide. Except for the out-of-the-way northern boundary, it is hemmed in completely by the Mississippi and the Illinois. The Father of Waters makes a great loop around the southern tip of Calhoun, flowing almost north to receive the Illinois at Grafton. Then it heads eastward for Alton. The Missouri, paralleling the Mississippi in this stretch, helps make a lengthy point of St. Charles County.

Calhoun can be entered from St. Louis only by means of ferries. The solid black line on the map shows the route of a recommended fair-weather tour, entering Calhoun at Golden Eagle and looping back to Grafton, thence returning by way of St. Charles. Calhoun can be reached by a completed concrete road on the East Side, through Alton and Jerseyville to Hardin—shown on the map by the dotted line.

The pavement stretches from Hardin to Kampsville in Calhoun, where it has been available only for the last few months. The rest of the roads in the apple county are of gravel, rock or earth, all purely of rural type. However, they are good driving within a short time after a rain (for the hills give fine drainage) and even when there is some dust. The many shallow fords cause no trouble.

Starting with the speedometer set at zero at the west end of the St. Charles bridge, a log of the tour follows:

00.0 Turn right on Missouri No. 94.
03.4 Left on gravel county road at north edge of Bosherton.
11.5 Right turn on a lane, east of Peruque station of the Burlington.
11.9 Landing of the ferry TNG to Golden Eagle (Note: There is a landing of a newer, shorter but less scenic Golden Eagle ferry nearer Boshertown).
11.9 Landing in Golden Eagle; straight ahead.
13.8 Right at crossroads.
14.9 Left at crossroads and follow telephone poles.
16.6 Turn right.
18.6 Brussels; straight ahead.
46.7 Turn right at "Kampsville" sign, north of Hamburg and Mozier.
54.1 Kampsville.
64.3 Hardin, at county courthouse, jogging one block west.
78.8 Turn left into road previously traveled out of Brussels.
79.5 Brussels.
81.0 Turn left on the second of two lefthand forks.
82.0 Turn left at fork.
84.2 Left at crossroads.
87.5 Illinois River ferry west of Grafton; follow the only road.
91.1 Mississippi River ferry of Grafton; follow the only road on Missouri side.
94.7 Turn right onto Missouri No. 94.
104.0 West end of St. Charles bridge.

Short stretches of the St. Charles County roads near the two Mississippi River ferries would be troublesome in very wet weather, as would some portions of the Calhoun roads. The Golden Eagle ferry ordinarily leaves Peruque at 8 and 10 a. m. and 2, 5 and 7 p. m. daily. The Illinois River boat, whose owner lives hard by, runs at any time there is a call. The one at Grafton crosses frequently in daytime and occasionally after dark. Tolls for these three ferries and the round trip over the St. Charles bridge amount to about $4, depending on the size of the party.

At Hardin there is steady ferry service. On pleasant Sunday afternoons, strings of cars are waiting on either side to get across.

The stern bluffs of the three rivers loom up on this tour, now on one side, again on the other. The motorist's thoughts go back to the days of steamboating, long before automobiles invaded this otherwise quiet, picturesque countryside. Phantom whistles of the old-time packets echo in the hills. Before the steamers were the flatboats and cordelles. Ghosts of fur-capped pioneers stalk on the shadowy banks. Indian canoes were the first craft here, when this was an inland fastness. Is that sound water splashing on the rocky shores, or is it the deft paddling of coppery braves?

Strangely enough, Calhoun to this day is dependent on steamboats from St. Louis to a large extent for supplies and the marketing of its orchard product. The commerce of the little towns—and even the casual visitor can hardly escape noticing this—all centers around apples. The price of Jonathans, Grimes Golden and a score of other varieties, and the effect of frost, wind and rain, are to Calhoun what the ticker and the foreign news are to Wall street.

SURVEY SHOWS GREAT STRIDES OF AIR TRAVEL

3264 Planes Now Operated Over Network of Routes Covering Country.

Some idea of the remarkable growth of aviation since the epochal flight of the Wright Brothers on Dec. 17, 1903, may be obtained from the following brief outline of the position of the industry today.

A minimum of 3264 planes are operating in the United States. There are a total of 3584 pilots. A total of 2011 new commercial airplanes and 365 military and naval planes were built in the United States last year, an increase of 98.4 per cent over 1926.

Largest production by one company was 454 planes in 1927.

Commercial airlines, 24; commercial air routes, 12,627 miles; mail routes, 7365 miles; passenger routes, 7265 miles; improved airways, 7000 miles.

"This new Hupmobile saves me $1000"

THUS remarked the motorist who had planned to spend from $2500 to $3500 on a personal car for his wife—and then saw the new Hupmobile Century Six. He purchased immediately, saying that the car fulfilled every requirement in luxury, style and power that he could have desired. Time after time, men and women long accustomed to making their selection from the higher-priced fields, are coming to the brilliant new Hupmobile Century Six and Eight, and gratefully pocketing the difference. Hupmobile quality and Hupmobile performance are known to all. Now to these are added beauty and distinction of line unsurpassed at any price. The Business Man

Time is money in business and I make sure my car is always ready for service by using Champion Spark Plugs.

Champion is the better spark plug because it has an exclusive sillimanite insulator specially treated to withstand the much higher temperatures of the modern high-compression engine. Also a new patented solid copper gasket-seal that remains absolutely gas-tight under high compression. Special analysis electrodes which assure a fixed spark-gap under all driving conditions.

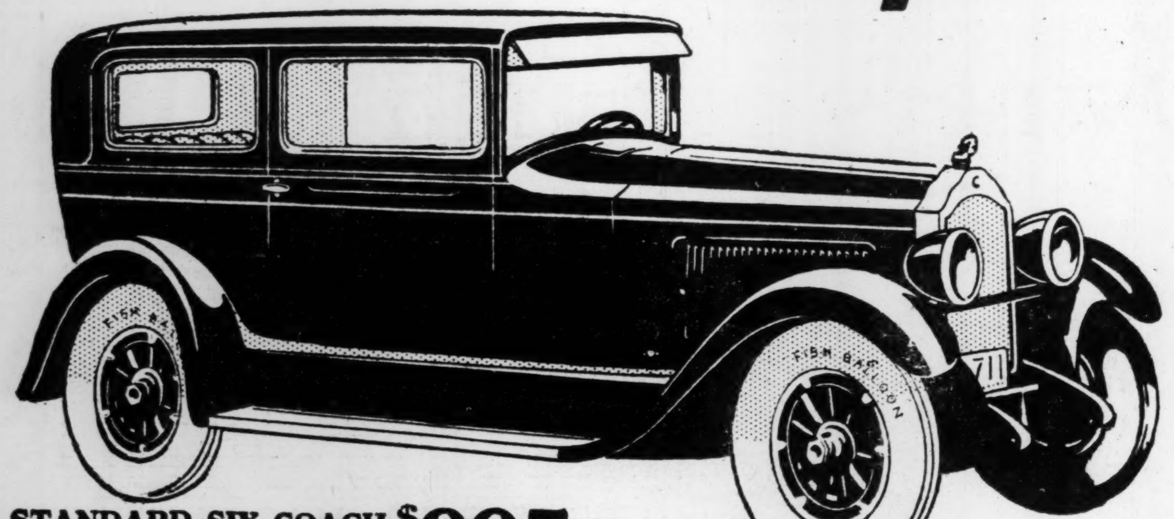
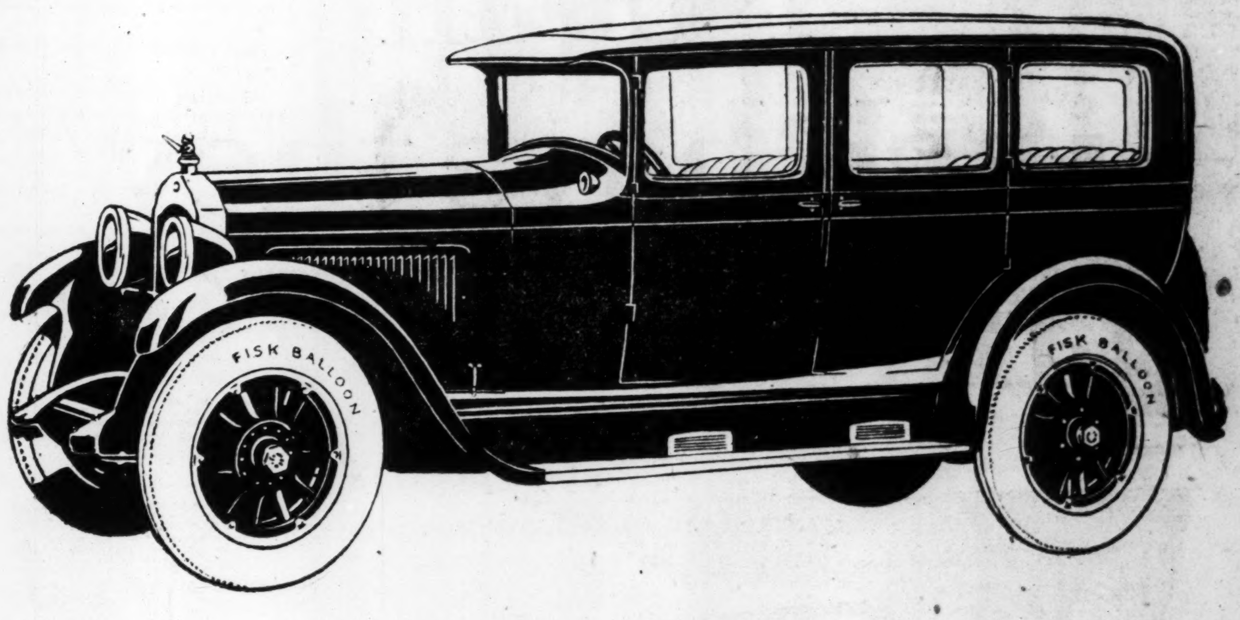
WILLYS-KNIGHT SIX

perfected to new high standards of beauty, luxury, smoothness and power



STANDARD SIX COACH REDUCED TO $995

SPECIAL SIX SEDAN $1495



SMOOTHER WITH USE

The patented Willys-Knight engine has no valves to grind, no complicated mechanism of springs, tappets and cams. Its simplicity of design insures results far beyond those obtainable from any other type of motor.

In each cylinder, two sliding sleeves combine with the spherical cylinder head to form a perfectly sealed combustion chamber, effecting high uniform compression at all speeds—and with any gas.

GREAT SIX SEDAN $1995

IN beauty of line and color, in artistry of finish, in luxury of appointment—the improved Willys-Knight offers everything that wins you to a fine Six.

And still more important, Willys-Knight brings you the unquestioned superiorities of the patented double sleeve-valve engine, acknowledged by engineering experts to be the simplest and most efficient of automobile power plants.

Now, with the introduction of the new Standard Six at a record low price, Willys-Knight's lightning pick-up, sustained brilliance, quick starting and marked economy are available to added thousands of owners.

Experienced motorists who know the velvet smoothness, silent power and rugged stamina of this engine, have been quick to acclaim the finer Willys-Knight as 1928's greatest value.

Willys-Knight Sixes range in price from $995 to $2695, in the Standard Six, Special Six and Great Six divisions. Prices f. o. b. factory and specifications subject to change without notice. Willys-Overland, Inc., Toledo, Ohio.

TWO MILLION CARS YEARLY ARE SCRAPPED

American Motor Vehicle Sales Outside of U. S. Total 640,000 Units.

Half of the market for American automobiles is virtually assured every year by the demand for replacements for worn-out cars, according to data in "Facts and Figures of the Automobile Industry," 1928 edition, published by the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce this week.

Two million motor vehicles are required for replacements every year, according to this statistical review.

Another large market is the demand for American motor vehicles abroad. These purchases outside of the United States totaled 640,507 in 1927. This figure includes Canadian production of motor vehicles of American design supplying the Canadian market. The total export of motor vehicles from the United States and Canada to other countries, including assembly plant output in those countries, was 518,538.

The demand for American trucks abroad increased 34 per cent last year, and the increase in motor-car purchases was 15 per cent.

Recognizing the growth in the world-wide market, "Facts and Figures" this year for the first times includes subtitles translated into French, Spanish and German.

Among the new tables this year are those showing methods of taxation in the different states, gasoline consumption by states, the automotive freight carried by each of the large railroad systems, and a list of well-known highway grade separations.

Among the outstanding facts of the year are the following:

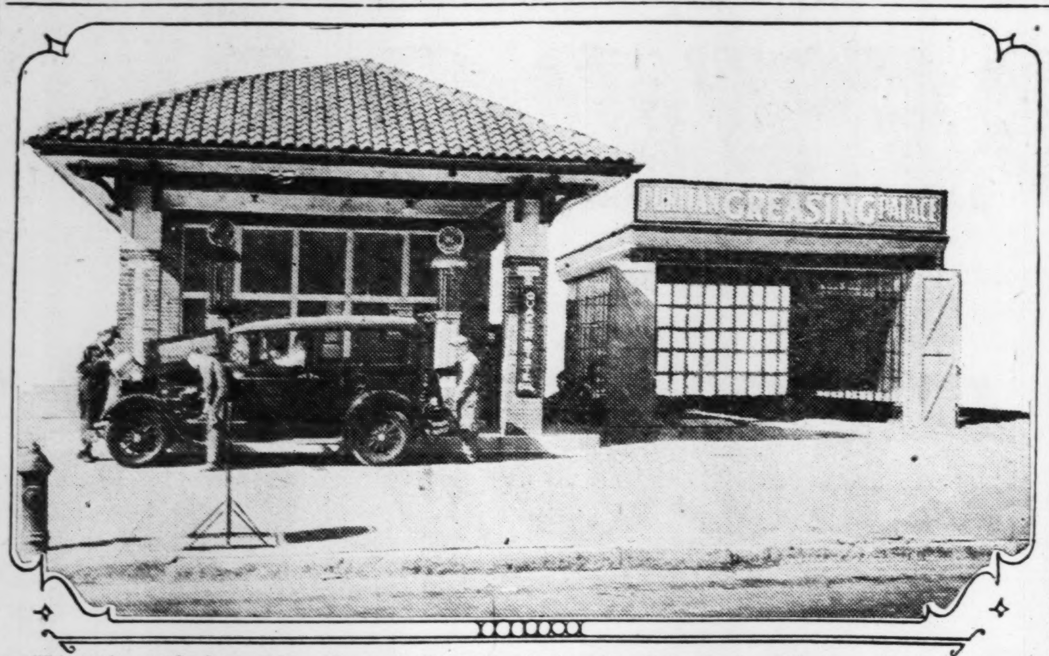
Rural registration increased 10 per cent, compared with 5 per cent gain in motor registration for the entire country.

World registration of motor vehicles totals 29,505,000.

Motor vehicle registration in United States is 23,127,000.

Motor vehicle taxes in 1927 totaled $760,000,000.

STANDARIZED PLANTS FOR PURITAN



This is the standard type of gasoline and oil station recently adopted by Puritan Oil Corp., and being erected throughout the city. Adjacent to it is the new steel lubricating palace which has also been adopted at standard equipment by the firm. This particular plant is at Twenty-third and Pine streets.

STANDARD EYE TEST IS URGED FOR MOTORISTS

Conservation Council Seeks Uniform Regulations in All States.

NEW YORK, May 12.—The eyes of America's 25,000,000 motorists will be standardized.

This is the project before the eye sight conservation council of America, with the purpose of harmonizing the existing state regulations governing visual tests for automobile drivers.

The council, announces Director Guy A. Henry, will assemble data from the requirements of the various states and from these shape standards by which the eyes of the motoring public may be tested with uniformity and fairness.

"Experience," says Henry, "has convinced traffic directors that a visual test should be required of every applicant for a driver's license.

"What is wanted is a visual acuity form for motorists. We must find out where the danger line in motor vision lies."

Oakland-Pontiac Production Ahead Of 1927 Schedule

PONTIAC, Mich., May 12.—The Oakland Motor Car Co. is two and one-half months ahead of its 1927 production, it is announced by factory officials.

The end of April marked the fourth consecutive month of record production which brought the company's total for this year to 100,004 Oakland and Pontiac Sixes, a figure which in 1927 was not attained until the middle of July.

The 1928 four-month total of 100,004 cars is an increase of 83 per cent over the 54,653 cars which the company built during the first four months of last year.

Although the percentage of gain was somewhat higher during January, February and March, the April production of 27,061 cars remained 7135 ahead of April, 1927. This advance was scored despite the fact that production of the Oakland All-American Six was hampered during the early part of April by interruptions attending the transfer of operations from the old assembly line to the recently-completed new assembly building.

LA SALLE CAR PHOTO WINS PRESS AWARD

Roadster Action, Made by G. M. Expert, Called Best Taken in 1927.

A photograph of a La Salle roadster traveling at the rate of 104 miles per hour at the General Motors proving ground, Milford, Mich., June 30, 1927, has been awarded first place as the most outstanding press photograph of the preceding year by the 1928 convention of the Photographers Association of America during its recent meetings at Lousivlle, Ky.

The wining exposure was made by William F. Miners of the General Motors photographic department, Detroit, and the award was given to the department.

The award is accompanied by presentation of a bronze plaque, which is one of four trophies presented for the most outstanding production in each of the fields of press, commercial, architectural and illustrative photography.

AUTO OUTPUT SHORT OF 1926 HIGH FIGURE

Record for First Quarter Not Up to Mark Predicted by Factory Head.

DETROIT, Mich., May 12.—Passenger car production in the United States for the first quarter of 1928 was greater than it was in the same period last year, but was not up to the mark set in record-breaking 1926. Truck production for the first quarter of 1928 was below that of the same period of both previous years.

The total number of passenger cars produced in the first quarter of 1928 was 867,782 units, compared with 809,732 in 1927 and 990,523 in 1926. The 1928 figure represents an increase of 7 per cent over 1927 and a decrease of 12 per cent under 1926.

A comparison of the monthly totals of the present year with those of last year shows that each month's production surpassed the corresponding month's by an appreciable margin.

But last year was not an outstanding one. While the wholesale value of all automotive products produced during the year was great enough to make the industry by far the largest manufacturing industry in the country, a greater number of passenger cars were built in each of the four preceding years.

School Stop Signs Are Unsatisfactory, Minnesota Decides

The Minnesota State Highway Department each week receives requests from one or more towns asking permission to erect signs which will compel all vehicles to stop at crossings near schools located on trunk highways.

The department is discouraging the use of this kind of signs because they have been found unsatisfactory. Signs which require drivers to stop, whether any children are crossing or not, are not only placing unnecessary inconvenience on motorists, but they are disobeyed by some drivers and this destroys their usefulness.

A much more satisfactory method is that of having police where such are available, wise school police, signal traffic and guide the across the street. This gives better protection to and does not interrupt traffic children are not coming

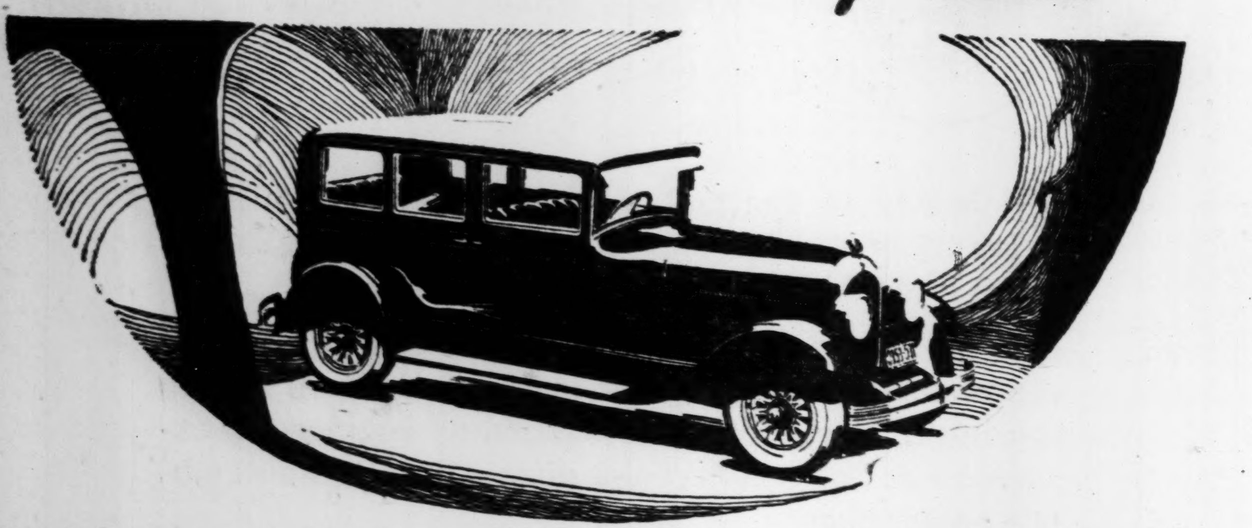
Not an inch have they gained on "72"



NEW performance values came into existence when the first Chrysler was created four years ago. . . . The industry since has gone over en masse to the effort to pattern after them. But the remarkable thing is that Chrysler "72" is just as much alone today as when it was the one and only exponent of its type. ¶ Alone in a theoretical sense only? Emphatically no. Alone in an actual sense—the performance sense which singles it out and sets it apart in competition of the street and road and hill as much as its brilliant beauty sets it apart in the eye of the onlooker.

These things could not be said if they were not true—and especially if the truth were not quickly provable. ¶ Chrysler "72" actually begs for tests and comparisons—it is eager to be checked not only on one, but on all phases of performance, with its most ambitious emulators. . . . It has not only not yielded a fraction of an inch of its leadership of four years ago—it has widened the gap and lengthened the distance. ¶ Chrysler "72" is indeed Illustrious because it is beyond doubt the one great engineering, performance, and beauty value in the motor-car market today.

FLASH
Higher Flash Lower Flow give extra margins of safety

Motors that do hard work need the extra margin of safety of Pennant "balanced" oil

Everybody knows that the motor of a heavily loaded truck has hard work to do and must have a motor oil equal to the task. Your automobile also frequently performs heavy duty.

Today's high speeds, fast acceleration, hill climbing, pulling over bad roads, frequently call for all the reserve power your motor has.

In such daily emergencies it is wise to protect the motor with the finest motor oil you can buy.

Pennant oils provide extra margin of safety because they are "balanced"! They are made from the choicest paraffine base crude oils, selected for their high heat resistance quality.

In addition, they are refined, purified and "de-waxed" by special processes to balance the heat resistant quality with an equal cold resistant quality.

A trial will convince you that Pennant "balanced" oils reduce your oil consumption and at the same time increase the life of your motor!

GRANT GIVES A NEW SLANT ON USED CARS

Overhauling Aids in Quick Disposal, Chevrolet Chief Says.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

DETROIT, Mich., May 12.—An ntirely new slant on the used ar, elevating it to its rightful lace in the industry, was taken ere by R. H. Grant, vice presient in charge of sales of the hevrolet Motor Co., in an interiew just prior to sailing for a onth's trip to Europe.

As evidence of the growing imortance of the used car, Grant ointed out that during the first uarter of 1928, when the Chevroet dealer organization was movng 250,000 new cars, it also was elivering at retail more than 00,000 used cars.

This was made possible by a hanging attitude toward the used ar on the part of both the autoobile dealer and the public, rant said.

"Where the automobile dealer formerly paid little attention to the used car," Grant declared. "the proportion of used car to new ar sales has mounted so high that used cars are now an imporant part of his business. Today, practically all the direct dealers in the Chevrolet organization have Ducoing equipment with which they refinish used cars in a manner similar to the factory. Cars are gone over from headlight to tail lamp by skilled mechanics trained in approved factory methods. The reconditioned cars bear an 'O.K. Tag' showing that every vital part has been checked. They are then displayed attractively, and lenient time payments are made available to the purchaser.

GRANT GIVES A NEW SLANT ON USED CARS

Overhauling Aids in Quick Disposal, Chevrolet Chief Says.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

DETROIT, Mich., May 12.—An entirely new slant on the used car, elevating it to its rightful place in the industry, was taken here by R. H. Grant, vice president in charge of sales of the Chevrolet Motor Co., in an interview just prior to sailing for a month's trip to Europe.

As evidence of the growing importance of the used car, Grant pointed out that during the first quarter of 1928, when the Chevrolet dealer organization was moving 250,000 new cars, it also was delivering at retail more than 200,000 used cars.

This was made possible by a changing attitude toward the used car on the part of both the automobile dealer and the public, Grant said.

"Where the automobile dealer formerly paid little attention to the used car," Grant declared, "the proportion of used car to new car sales has mounted so high that used cars are now an important part of his business. VISITED HERE

H. M. STEPHENS

CADILLAC sales manager, who conferred here the past week with officers of the Oliver-Cadillac Co.

H. M. Stephens, Sale Chief for Cadillac Co., Visits St. Louis

H. M. Stephens, general sales manager of the Cadillac Motor Car Co. at Detroit, accompanied by Nicholas Dreystadt, general service manager, paid a visit to St. Louis the past week.

While here the Cadillac officials were guests of Guy Oliver, president of the Oliver Cadillac Co., the local distributer of the line.

Stephens stated that sales of Cadillac and La Salle cars in the United States for the first quarter of 1928 showed an increase of 53 per cent over the same period last year and that the added volume has required expansion in every department of the company's retail organizations.

Triplex Glass for Hudson-Essex Cars

An important advance toward the day when every automobile on the American roads will have non-shatterable glass in windshield and windows is seen in the announcement that the Hudson Motor Car Co. is sponsoring the sale by its dealers of Triplex utility windshields. This makes the fifth automobile company to take up this glass.

"That the motor car manufacturer recognizes a definite responsibility for the safety of the motoring public is testified to by the Triplex utility windshield sales program now being sponsored by the Hudson company," the announcement by the glass concern said. "Every Hudson-Essex distributer in the United States and Canada has been urged by their factory to stock these windshields for the convenience of their dealers. They are sponsoring highway safety by offering personal protection to Hudson-Essex buyers.

"Today, 200,000 cars are protected with Triplex, according to our figures. Two years ago, probably not more than 10 American cars were so equipped."

Headgear Used by Tire Testing Crews To Protect Skulls

"If you keep on driving an automobile long enough you're going to take a dive through the wind shield."

Acting on his own philosophy which he says is based on the mathematical law of averages and not on pure fatalism Mike (Mickey) Gannon, veteran chief of the General Tire & Rubber Co., test car fleet, has equipped himself and his "boys" with football helmets.

"The thought uppermost in the minds of test car drivers as they roll along through congested traffic by day and over deserted country roads at night always is one of safety," Gannon says. "Safety for ourselves and others."

"However, continuous day and night driving over all kinds of roads, week after week, year after year, makes the test car drivers' accident probabilities greater than those of the average motorist."

Speculation on this line resulted in the headguard idea by way of preparation for the ultimate dive through the wind shield.

Mickey formerly was a nationally known athlete and amateur boxer.

The big Akron rubber companies operate scores of cars and trucks to test new types of automobile tires before they are placed on the market. Each year the venturesome test car knights wear out many new cars and tires.

Ford and Chevrolet tires of proper size will give best service when inflated with 32 to 35 pounds air pressure, it is stated.

MARMON DISTRIBUTORS

Since the introduction of Marmon's two great new straight-eights—the "68" and the "78", Marmon sales have gradually mounted until Marmon today is the world's largest builder of straight-eights. This success has attracted many of the strongest distributing organizations in the country of which this new St. Louis affiliation is typical.

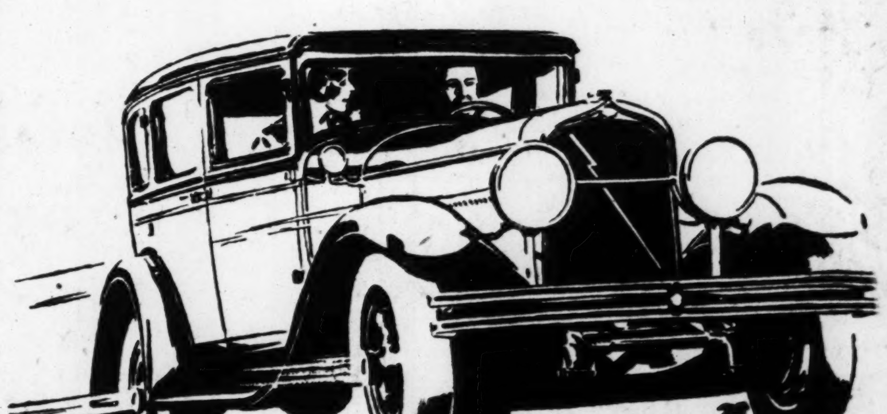
The Product—A complete line of beautiful, modernly designed straight-eights—the "68" at $1395 and the "78" at $1895 (Prices f.o.b. factory, de luxe equipment extra). These cars offer the greatest performance of the day together with style and comfort qualities never available before in this price field.

The Personnel—The Archer-Mann organization is the outgrowth of one of the oldest distributing firms in St. Louis and is headed by A. E. Archer and R. B. Mann who have had years of successful experience in the merchandising of better grade cars. They are supported in every department of the business by men who are wonderfully well qualified to serve Marmon's growing clientele.

The Service—The service facilities at the new Marmon-St. Louis headquarters are quite ample, both as to personnel and equipment, to care for the needs of the evergrowing number of Marmon owners. A full line of genuine Marmon parts is on hand at all times, to eliminate delays and make possible the kind of service which is due the owner of a quality automobile.

The Dealer Opportunity—Automobile dealers in open territory in Southern Illinois and Eastern Missouri, who are seeking a fast-selling line of quality cars, are invited to consider Marmon's record in having achieved first place in the sale of straight-eights within three months after the introduction of the New Marmon "68" and "78." Dealer applications are now being considered.

A competent road organization will be maintained to co-operate with dealers in our territory. We are building an organization worthy of the tremendous new success of the Marmon car, and capable of meeting any demands which may be placed on it by Marmon's ever-increasing popularity.



You are invited to visit the salesrooms of the Archer-Mann Company, Lindell Blvd. at Sarah St. and see here the latest models of the new Marmon "68" and "78"

AC
Spark Plugs pay their way

The Standard Spark Plug of the World

WHAT about your automobile engine? Is its performance all that it ought to be? Perhaps the trouble is in the spark plugs.

All spark plugs deteriorate in time and need to be changed. If those in your car have been used for a full season, or 10,000 miles, put in a new set and insist upon AC's.

That will insure easier starting, faster pick-up, more certain performance. It may be the means of avoiding a big repair bill.

Countless records show that new AC Spark Plugs, when needed, will save many times their cost. And they are sure to increase your motoring comfort and satisfaction.

AC units are used as factory equipment by 200 manufacturers in the automotive field. Among them are

Col. P. H. Brockman Re-elected to Head Automobile Dealers

Oliver and Vesper Again Made Vice President and Treasurer, Respectively.

COL. P. H. BROCKMAN.

Col. Phil H. Brockman, president of the De Luxe Automobile Co., was re-elected president of the St. Louis Automobile Dealers' Association at its annual meeting at the Marquette Hotel, Monday evening, May 7. Brockman had completed a year as president and eight years before had served two terms as president of the association. George M. Berry, opposing candidate for the presidency, announced his desire to withdraw from the race because of his belief that Col. Brockman deserved re-election and that the association needed him for another term.

Guy W. Oliver of the Oliver Cadillac Co., was elected vice president and Walter H. Vesper of the Vesper-Buick Auto Co., treasurer. Both were re-elected. Robert E. Lee is manager of the association.

Directors to serve two years were F. C. McDonald of the Southwest Nash Co.; E. A. Hatfield of the Mississippi Valley Motor Co., and W. L. Johnson of the Johnson Automobile Co. Holdover directors were Frank R. Tate of the Tate Motor Co.; R. C. Frampton of the Hudson-Frampton Motor Car Co. and George Weber of the Weber Implement & Auto Co.

The annual report of the president, Col. Brockman, was presented to the meeting by Manager Robert E. Lee, Brockman being in Cuba at the time. It was cited that several undertakings of the association were under way, including the establishment of the association's salvage yard and the move for association emergency road service. Frank R. Tate gave in detail to the meeting the plans of a committee consisting of himself, F. C. McDonald and R. C. Frampton for the establishment of this emergency road service to be directly controlled by and issued by the St. Louis Automobile dealers to and through its members.

New Hudson-Essex Dealers Appointed

Two former Hudson-Essex salesmen, J. S. Morgan and E. D. Jones, have organized and opened a dealership at 4360 Manchester avenue, in the building formerly occupied by the Felkel-Loesch Motor Co., Chrysler dealers. The dealership was arranged for by R. L. Andrews, representing the Hudson-Frampton Motor Car Co., Hudson-Essex distributer here. Both Jones and Morgan formerly were with the A. J. Brock Motor Sales Co., erstwhile Hudson-Essex dealers.

The new dealers are equipped to both sell and service cars, and carry a complete stock of Hudson-Essex parts, according to Andrews.

Morgan is president of the firm and Jones is secretary and treasurer.

Hupp. Distributer in Business 17 Years

The Weber Implement and Motor Co. the past week celebrated its fourteenth anniversary as Hupmobile distributer here. Although the company has been in existence since 1903, prior to 1914 it handled farm implements and horse-drawn vehicles. George Weber is president.

Among Hupmobile officials commenting upon the firm's anniversary celebration was R. S. Cole, general sales manager, who wired greetings and praised the company for its success in merchandising Hupmobile cars in St. Louis.

Lambert-Graves Give Party to Employes

Employes of the Lambert-Graves Motor Co., metropolitan Oldsmobile distributer here, and their families, were guests of the firm at a large party held in its showrooms, 4035 Lindell boulevard, Monday, May 7. Music was provided by a four-piece jazz band and an especially-installed radio. A cafeteria was set up in the service station and luncheon served there. S. B. Lambert, president of the company, was master of ceremonies.

Hazelrigg Returns From Velie Plant

O. C. Hazelrigg, president of the Laclede Motor Car Co., the Velie distributer here, who returned from the Velie factory at Moline, Ill., the past week, reported that the plant is increasing its production to care for mounting orders. Hazelrigg also reported that the factory is getting under way in the production of its new five-cylinder airplane, which is soon to be given a nationwide distribution.

CHAMP CLARK BRIDGE OPEN TO TRAVEL

Officials Announces Toll Schedule Over Causeway at Louisiana, Mo.

Work on the Champ Clark Highway bridge across the river at Louisiana, Mo., was completed Friday, when a top dressing of asphalt was placed on the floor. The bridge was opened for traffic yesterday.

In announcing the inital schedule of toll rates officials of the bridge company state they feel that ultimately tolls will be abolished and that it will be made a free bridge.

The toll schedule on the bridge is as follows: Automobiles up to seven passengers, one way, 85 cents; round trip same day, $1; busses and autos with more than seven passengers, one way $1; round trip, $1.50. One-horse vehicle, one way 50 cents; round trip, 85 cents; two-horse vehicle, one way 60 cents; round trip 75 cents; one-horse wagon, one way 60 cents; round trip 85 cents; two-horse wagon, one way 60 cents; round trip 85 cents.

The toll for foot passengers, per person, one way, is 10 cents, round trip 15 cents. Commutation ticket books will be issued, good for 90 days, good for passengers other than in busses, 60 trips for $3. For automobiles, two-horse wagons for one and one-half ton trucks, 20 trips will cost $8.

Tampico-Brownsville Highway to Be Built

MEXICO CITY, May 12.—Governor Portes Gil of the State of Tamaulipas has announced his intention of giving $25,000 monthly toward the construction of the highway between the port of Tampico via Matamoras across the American border at Brownsville, Texas. This money, it is said, is sufficient to finance the undertaking.

The road is primarily for commercial and tourist usage.

DURANT

Continues to break all records in production and sales

September was the greatest September in the history of the mammoth main plant at Elizabeth, N. J. October surpassed September. September, October and November surpassed any three corresponding months.

Then came the new Durant Models and—

March, 1928, with 9661 cars passed the highest previous record by 20 per cent or 61 cars per day more. April with 11,012 cars passed March by 13.8 per cent or 54 cars per day more.

March and April combined surpassed any two previous consecutive months by 46.5 per cent.

And right now there are more orders for immediate delivery on the Company's books than at any time in its history, necessitating an increase of 20% for May and immediate construction of a $750,000 extension to the great plant at Lansing, Mich.

A total of 15,772 Durant automobiles were built in Durant plants during April

MEXICAN MUSIC IN CONCERT ON KSD TOMORROW

Dolores Cassinelli and Baritone of the Metropolitan to Sing in 'Family Party.'

Another program of Mexican music, such as was given a month ago by the same sponsor, will be presented in the General Motors Family Party over KSD tomorrow evening. The soloists will be George Cehanovsky, baritone of the Metropolitan Opera, and Dolores Cassinelli, concert soprano.

A concert orchestra under direction of Roderic Graham, Joe Green's novelty orchestra, and Edwin Franko Goldman's "symphony" band also will be heard.

Dolores Cassinelli holds the unique distinction of having achieved musical fame by way of the movies. After starring in 32 pictures, she turned to the concert stage, making her debut May 7, 1925, at the Lyric Theater, Baltimore, in a recital with the Metropolitan tenor, Giovanni Martinelli.

Born in Chicago and instructed in singing by Caruso's teacher, Fucito, she has become well known on the concert stage. Her voice personality and dramatic sense are said to fit her especially for the Spanish songs she will sing tomorrow.

Cehanovsky was commander of a Russian submarine in the early stages of the World War. Always musical, with a voice of promise, he studied exclusively with his mother, Sophia Cehanovsky, and made his operatic debut in 1920 in Petrograd, following with appearances in Constantinople.

Cehanovsky came to America in 1924 and made an instant success. He sang with the San Carlo Grand Opera Company for two years and in 1926 was engaged for the Metropolitan on a four-year contract.

Foreign Stations Use Metronome.

By the Associated Press.

PARIS.—Identification of transmitting stations by metronome is growing popular in Europe. Vienna makes itself known by a metronome beating 264 times a minute, Breslau, 240; Koenigsberg, 240; Leipzig, 240; Frankfort, 192; Lyon-la-Doua, 192; Kalundborg, 180; Toulouse, 156; Naples, 144; Zagreb, 96 to 120.

No Politics by Radio in France.

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, May 12.—No political speeches by radio is the rule in France. Every speech to be broadcast must be submitted to authorities, and the controlling engineer is enjoined to cut off a speaker as soon as he departs from the text to talk politics.

NEGRO SINGERS WILL APPEAR IN EVEREADY HOUR

Hall Johnson Group to Entertain in Down South Program Through KSD.

"In the South," a portrayal of "darky days down home," with the Hall Johnson Negro singers as principal entertainers, will be broadcast in the Everready hour over KSD, Tuesday evening. The program will be somewhat of a novelty, as it will literally burst upon the listeners' ears without the usual introduction by the station announcer. Instead of such introduction, the audience will hear a member of the Johnson group impersonating a colored preacher and exhorting his brethren to attend an old-fashioned picnic down the river.

From then on, the action of the specially written continuity will unfold rapidly, culminating in the congregation's arrival at the picnicking grounds after a steamboat ride featured by group singing, dialogue in humorous and pathetic veins, and some close harmony by selected quartets.

The Hall Johnson Singers are a chorus of eight women and ten men. Under the guidance of Hall Johnson, they have made rapid progress in the two years since their formation, to a position of leadership in their chosen work, th singing of Negro spirituals. Music critics, including Deems Taylor, praised their singing enthusiastically at their recent concert in Town Hall in New York.

Nathaniel Shilkret will conduct the Everready Orchestra, which will accompany the singers.

Where to Tune in Dr. Cadman.

Dr. S. Parkes Cadman is to discuss "The Friendship of English Speaking Nations" in the Bedford Branch, Y. M. C. A., broadcast over WSAI, WOW, WHO, KVOO, WSB and other stations at 2:00 this afternoon.

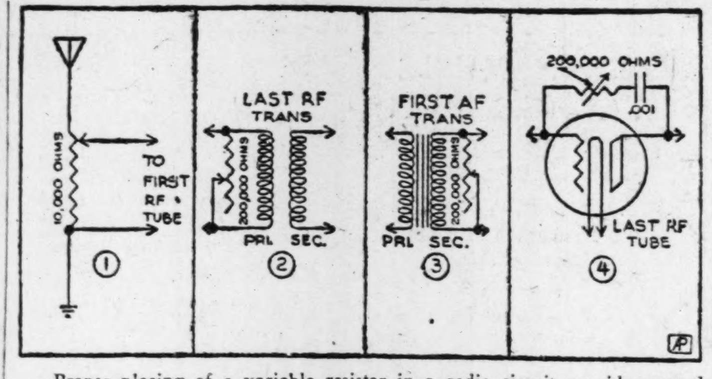
How to Control Volume Through Resistance

Among Four Methods Widely Used Are Two Applicable to Receivers With AC Tubes and One That Gives an Auxiliary Control.



Proper placing of a variable resistor in a radio circuit provides smooth control of volume. Diagrams No. 1 and No. 2 show methods used largely in AC circuits. No. 3 may be employed as auxiliary control for the AC set as well as the main volume control in the DC receiver. No. 4 is an oscillation and volume control combined.

Early models of direct current sets depended for volume control on the rheostat. When automatic resistances came into use, other ideas were followed.

With the appearance of the AC receiver a plan different from that for storage battery tubes was needed, because no rheostats were placed in the filament circuit, the proper voltage being obtained from a stepdown transformer.

Two schemes have been found satisfactory for AC tubes. One employs a variable resistance of the potentiometer type across the antenna and ground. The aerial thus is untuned, the first RF tube acting largely as a compensator for the loss in signal strength resulting from the insertion of a resistance of 10,000 ohms or so in the input circuit.

Another method puts a 200,000 ohm variable resistance across the primary of the last radio frequency coil. This, like the aerial resistance, muffles the signal before it reaches the detector and prevents an overload. It may also be used with DC tubes.

A 200,000 ohm resistance across the secondary of the first radio frequency transformer also gives another easy way of control. It may be used with DC tubes and as an auxiliary control with AC valves.

A fourth method prevents oscillation while acting as a volume adjuster and requires a 200,000 variable resistance, which is connected in series with a .001 mfd. condenser. The two units in turn are shunted across the last radio frequency tube.

Such a grid-plate resistor on each radio frequency tube will give smooth and easy control of oscillation.

Radio has replaced the carrier pigeon in the United States Marine Corps.

ST. LOUIS BOARD OF EDUCATION TO BROADCAST

Programs to Be Given Over WIL Each Afternoon and Two Nights a Week.

Beginning tomorrow, daily broadcasts are to be given by the Board of Education of St. Louis over WIL. A microphone and other equipment have been placed in the office of T. E. Spencer, director of the board's reference, research and publicity department, to be used until a studio can be completed.

W. M. Ellsworth, manager of WIL, states that representatives of the board and educators of note will discuss education matters and subjects of importance to parents, pupils and employes of the board, through WIL at 12:30 each afternoon and Tuesday and Friday nights at 8 o'clock. Musical programs are to be broadcast, the performers being selected from the various schools.

Ellsworth said also that it is possible that later lectures, announcements and other matters will be broadcast through WIL to pupils in their class rooms.

The public schools in Atlanta, Ga., have a comprehensive broadcasting service which is the most elaborate in this country.

"Aida" Music in Roxy's Stroll.

The grand finale to the second act of "Aida" is to be given during Roxy's Stroll this afternoon. Douglas Stanbury, Viola Philo, Harold Kravitt, Martin Horodas and Adelaide de Loca will sing the principal roles, and the Roxy chorus and orchestra will assist. Yascha Bunchuk, solo 'cellist, will play. "Little Mother," by Erno Rapee, will be sung by Gladys Rice, Douglas Stanbury and the male quartet. This program may be tuned in at 12:00 noon today on KYW, WHO, WOW, WOC or KVOO.

Crosley to Operate Both Big Stations in Cincinnati

Manufacturer Plans to Make WLW Chief Independent Broadcaster With 50,000 Watts Power and Use WSAI as NBC Chains Link.

WLW and WSAI, Cincinnati, two of the most powerful radio stations in Ohio, are to be operated by the Crosley Radio Corporation hereafter, Powel Crosley Jr., head of the corporation and owner of WLW, assuming control of WSAI.

Both stations are to maintain their identities. But Crosley plans to build and operate a 50,000-watt transmitter for WLW with the idea of making it the outstanding station west of New York.

WSAI, according to present plans, will become the Cincinnati link in the NBC chains, broadcasting both Red and Blue network programs. It is intimated that Crosley may reduce the power of WSAI to 500 or 1000 watts, taking the same attitude as has former Federal Radio Commissioner Bellows, manager of WCCO, Minneapolis, Minn., who has rented a smaller station for chain broadcasting and uses the 5000-watt WCCO for programs originating in Minneapolis and its territory.

Both WLW and WSAI are received strongly in St. Louis and vicinity, and both stations stand high in the estimation of listeners of the Middle West for quality of programs and for clarity of reception.

May Buy 3XN Transmitter.

Crosley has been insistent in asserting that radio manufacturers should operate broadcasting stations. Outside of the Radio Corporation of America interests, which operate WEAF and WJZ, New York, and have developed the NBC Red and Blue networks, Crosley has been the leader in the movement to have the industry play a larger part in broadcasting.

A test program was broadcast on WLW's 700 kilocycle wave band on May 7 for Crosley by 3XN, the 50,000 experimental station operated late at night by the Bell Telephone Laboratories at Whippany, N. J. It is understood that Crosley will purchase either 3XN or a duplicate of it, if permission is given by the Federal Radio Commission to operate WLW with increased power.

"The future of any of our plans, of course, are subject to the wishes of the Federal Radio Commission," Crosley said. "We believe the commission will permit us to use 50,000 watts on a cleared channel, under the new scheme of reallocation."

Crosley Talks About Plans.

Station 3XN has been tuned in by many St. Louisans late at night. Often this station's signals come through with such power that they fairly overide the static. In fact, 3XN has been received by some listeners with greater volume than any other station in the country. If the 3XN transmitter were set up in Cincinnati, there is no reason to doubt that it would be heard consistently throughout the United States and Canada.

Crosley says that, realizing the growing resentment of listeners at the prevalence of high-powered stations on cleared channels using the same chain programs, he probably will operate WLW with the 50,000-watt transmitter as an independent station.

WSAI, it is stated, undoubtedly will be used to transmit the best programs from both the Blue and Red networks to listeners in the Ohio valley. There is a distinct possibility that the power of WSAI station will be reduced and that it will be classed as a regional station.

"We intend to make WLW the outstanding independent broadcasting station in the country," Crosley says. "We have a wealth of talent in Cincinnati, and we feel we can do just as good a job as New York.

"For the present, we know we can operate two stations more economically than one. There will be no immediate changes in the personnel of the stations. Plans for the future of both stations will be announced as they materialize."

The WSAI controls and telephone lines will be moved to the Crosley studios within a month, it is supposed. Studios will be built in addition to the three now used by WLW and a new control room will be installed.

Facts About the Stations.

WLW, the pioneer 5000-watt station in its part of the country and the first to operate with a remotely controlled transmitter, celebrated its seventh birthday in January of this year with 62 hours of continuous broadcasting.

WLW was the first station west of the Atlantic seaboard to use 5000 watts for transmission and the first station in the country to operate with a transmitter remote from its studios. The WLW transmitter is at Harrison, O., 20 miles northwest of Cincinnati.

WSAI officially went on the air in June, 1923, with 500 watts power.

In January, 1925, its present 5000-watt transmitter was installed at Mason, O., 20 miles northeast of Cincinnati. WSAI was one of the first of the Middle Western links of the network broadcasting systems and for some time had been a permanent member of the Red chain before WLW began taking Blue network programs.

The former owner of WSAI, the United States Playing Card Co., has not abandoned broadcasting. It has transferred its activities from its own station to the chain, over which it will continue to broadcast bridge games.

Only one other concern operates two stations of great power, the National Broadcasting Co., operator of WEAF and WJZ.

The consolidation of the two radio stations furthers Crosley's chief hobby. He has long nursed a desire not only to advertise Cincinnati nationally, but also to make the city a center of the radio industry.

"Ruth and Naomi" is the title of the Biblical drama which William Ford Manley has written for tonight's presentation over KSD at 7:45.

League Seeks Station

By the Associated Press.

GENEVA, May 12.—Erection of a powerful wireless station at Geneva, to enable the League of Nations to keep in touch with virtually all its member states in times of crisis, has been requested by the Communication and Transit Commission of the League.

The commission observes that if it be decided to use the Swiss wireless station, the Secretary-General of the League should be authorized to take complete control of the station and staff whenever a breach of the peace is threatened.

It is estimated that a station would cost $250,000 to construct, and $40,000 a year to maintain.

Radio Manufacturers' Association Issues Official Classification of Receivers.

The movement to adopt exact definitions of the various types of radio receivers, such as "AC," "All-electric," "Electric," "Socket Powered" and "Battery Operated" has brought results at last.

Definitions have been adopted by the Radio Manufacturers' Association, as a guide for advertising and general sales contact with the public, as follows:

A radio receiver designed to operate from primary and (or) storage batteries, shall be known as a "Battery Operated Set."

A radio receiver of the "Battery Operated" type, when connected to a power unit operating from the electric light line, supplying both filament and plate potentials to the tubes of the receiver, shall be known as a "Socket-Powered Set."

A radio receiver operating from the electric light line, without using batteries, shall be known as an "Eectric Set."

A radio receiver employing tubes which obtain their filament or heater currents from an alternating current electric light line without the use of rectifying devices, and with a built-in tube rectifier for the plate and grid biasing potentials, shall be known as an "A. C. Tube Electric Set."

A radio receiver employing tubes which obtain their filament or heater currents from a direct current electric light line without the use of rectifying devices, and with a built-in power plant for the plate and gril biasing potentials, shall be known as a "D. C. Tube Electric Set."

The statement that accompanied the definitions said that "to improve advertising and merchandising of radio receiving sets, and to aid the public in its purchases, by official definitions, the RMA. in co-operation with other radio trades associations, is presenting "a radio receiver nomenclature."

"The definitions of the various types of receivers", the statement said, "are designed as a guide, not only to the 300 manufacturers belonging to the RMA, but also to advertising and business interests, as well as to the public.

"Use of the official receiving set definitions in manufacturers' advertising, and also in that of jobbers and dealers handling RMA products, will be requested. Advertising and merchandising agencies, including Better Business Bureaus, will be advised of the definitions agreed upon, designed to avoid misinformation to the public of the different varieties of receiving sets."

Says Television Is Far From Practical

Holding off from buying a radio receiver, in the belief that combined sets of television apparatus are imminent commercial possibilities, is based on a wrong idea, according to R. M. Klein, general manager for Fada Radio. Television has by no means arrived as a practical factor and it will be a long, long time before it does, Klein declares.

Discussing the matter, Klein says:

"One of the leading officials of a concern, or group of concerns if they may be so classed, which has perhaps done more experimental work on television than the rest of the country combined, was recently responsible for the specific statement: 'In my opinion, television will not be practical for five years to come.'

"Beyond all this—the remote period when television can be anticipated as a practical factor—it is realized by but very few people that when television comes it must of necessity be a separate and distinct piece of apparatus from the radio receiver, involving different components and entirely different character of construction.

"Any reasonable-minded man is warranted in predicting that television will come, but let the public know the facts; it is not here now, nor anywheres near it, nor can it be considered as a direct attribute to the present types of radio broadcast receiving sets, which sets will undoubtedly be continued to be placed on the market in their present form for at least the next five years, and television can be looked upon as something entirely separate and additional thereto when and if it arrives, and it cannot possibly, from the present oultook, arrive inside the next few years."

E. T. Flewelling, noted radio inventor, and his newest invention—a short wave adapter with which any receiver may be used for reception of short wave stations all over the world.

Trade Notes

William Borghoff is to represent the Geller, Ward & Hassner Hardware Co., Crosley distributer, at the annual distributers' convention of the Crossley Radio Corporation in Cincinnati next Tuesday and Wednesday. In addition to the Crosley receivers, the new Amrad line is to be shown at the convention. A banquet will be held Tuesday evening with speeches by the Mayor of Cincinnati, Powel Crosley Jr., president of the Crosley Corporation, and an elaborate theatrical program, all of which is to be broadcast over WLW, the company's radio station at Cincinnati.

The Bremer-Tully Manufacturing Co., which has become an exclusive manufacturer of receivers, speakers and phonograph combinations, is now moving into its new Chicago plant which gives it two acres more floor space than its former factory. Bremer-Tully Co. began radio manufacturnig with the advent of broadcasting, but John C. Tully, its president, and Dr. Harry A. Bremer, its vice president and chief engineer, have been in close contact with radio developments for 25 years.

A grid leak of correct value is highly essential in the proper performance of the detector. To find the suitable resistance for a certain tube it is well to have a variable leak. One with a range from one-tenth to 10 megohms is the Clarostat, so designed that it may be mounted on the detector socket.

Purchase of all patents and rights for the manufacturers of the Kuprox rectifer from the Liebel-Flarsheim Co. is announced by the Kodel Radio Corporation. The price paid was $250,000, and back royalties.

An extension cord which may be placed under a rug without causing it to hump up has been announced by the Belden Manufacturing Co. The cord is flat, and is for use in connecting AC receivers to the house circuit.

A new condenser "pick-up," which has been developed by the British Dubilier organization, may be used to reproduce any standard phonograph disc record through a radio amplifier. It makes use of the principle of variable dielectric and therefore variable capacitance, following the vibrations of the usual needle tracing the record groove. The condenser pick-up is connected with the usual detector tube, causing the varying capacity to affect the grid and the plate circuits, much after the fashion of radio signals. This condenser pick-up does not require an oscillating radio-frequency circuit, as with condenser pick-ups introduced some time ago.

William Marconi, wireless inventor, has started a long cruise on the Atlantic in experiments for perfecting the "beam system." The beam will carry 200 words a minute, as compared with 20 or 30 by long waves.

Leads Inspirational Broadcast.

Ira Fischer is to be the leader for the inspirational period of the "Health and Happiness Hour" sponsored by the Y. M. C. A. on Station KMOX each morning. Twice each morning between 6:30 and 7:30, members of the Y. M. C. A. staff repeat a program of exercises and morning devotions. The periods Fischer leads begin at 6:50 and 7:20, following the exercises broadcast by C. A. Neavles, metropolitan physician director of the Y. M. C. A.

YOUNG SINGERS OF COUNTRY TO COMPETE AGAIN

Appointment of State and Local Audition Committees Under Way This Week.

Plans for participation of amatelr singers in Missouri in the second national radio audition are being made this week by Burton Bunch of Washington, D. C., manager of auditions in Kansas City and St. Louis.

Bunch will confer with music lovers and cultural leaders who aided last year in bringing Missouri into the first national singing contest when U. S. Senater Harry B. Hawes acted as State sponsorship chairman.

Besides arranging for broadcasting this year's Missouri State audition, Bunch will invite leaders throughout the State to serve on the Sponsorship Committee. As soon as this committee has been set up, local committees will be appointed to arrange for local auditions in St. Louis, Kansas City, Sedalia, Cape Girardeau, Mexico, Columbia, Jefferson City, Hannibal and other cities having promising young singers.

The local committees will arrange contests to select the two best singers—a boy and a girl—to represent each community in a State audition to be broadcast next October. All local contests will be held in September.

All amateur singers between 18 and 25 years old, inclusive, are eligible to enter this national elimination singing contest for which the Atwater Kent Foundation of Philadelphia offers awards totaling $17,500 in cash, and for six of the 10 finalists free music conservatory tuition.

Winners of the Missouri State audition—a boy and a girl—will go to Chicago, with all expenses paid, to compete over the air in November with other champions from Middle Western states. Two district winners will advance to New York in December as guests of the foundation to compete in the national finals.

Business Broadcast For Saturday Night

Director of U. S. Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce to Be Speaker.

International and domestic events which affect American business will be analyzed each week by Dr. Julius Klein, director of the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce of the Commerce Department, in a series of talks on "A Week of the World's Business," which will be broadcast through stations associated with the NBC beginning next Saturday evening, at 6:45 o'clock.

In his 15-minute talks Dr. Klein will condense facts and figures bearing on general business developments of the week.

The Department of Commerce has trade scouts in the leading markets of the world to assist American business men in developing exports. It also has in Washington a corps of experts who study the problems of substituting better methods for those that are causing losses.

Placing the bureau's complete fact-finding and trade-promotive organization at the disposal of the radio audience will be Dr. Klein's aim. He will be guided in the matters he discusses by questions submitted by business men. Foreign problems will be handled on the basis of the latest reports sent to the Department of Commerce by radio and cable. Domestic business issues will be dealt with from the viewpoint of domestic studies and surveys.

Most of Dr. Klein's talks will be broadcast from the NBC Washington studios, but arrangements will be made for him to talk from the NBC New York studios on occasion.

CHEVROLET

More new Chevrolet cars were delivered in this community during the last 90 days than in any similar period in Chevrolet history—and most of these new car sales involved the trading in of the purchasers' previous automobiles.

As a result, we have at this time an unusually wide selection of used cars that have been thoroughly reconditioned, and which may be identified by the red "O.K. that counts" tag attached to their radiator caps. Every vital unit of these cars has been gone over carefully by skilled mechanics—worn or damaged parts have been replaced by new ones—and the prices at which they are offered represent outstanding values.

Consequently, you can buy any of these "OK" cars with absolute confidence as to their quality, value and dependability—the same protection for your investment that you would enjoy if you were purchasing a new automobile.

Come in and make your selection while our stock of reconditioned cars is complete. You are certain to find the car you want—at a price that will surprise you.

Theater Season Saw Slump

Business Was Off in All Theaters Here Just as It Was Throughout the Country—Twenty-Three Plays and 18 Musical Comedies Made Up the Offerings in the American and Shubert During Theatrical Year Ending Last Night — Municipal Opera and Garden Theater Preparing for Openings Next Month.

ST. LOUIS, along with the rest of the country, showed a slump, during the theatrical season which has just come to an end. The movie theaters, with the exception of the Ambassador, which made a remarkably fine showing, all took more or less of a slump. There is no way of telling how much business fell off in the cinemas and in the legitimate houses but lumped together all the amusement theaters in the State paid the Government in admission taxes, during the nine months ending March 31 at a total of $258,735 which was $86,177 less than they paid during the corresponding season of 1926-27.

As there is practically no tax on movie tickets, almost all of which sell for less than the amount at which taxes begin, this loss in Government income was a result of poorer seasons in the so-called legitimate theaters in the State—and a greater part of these taxes come from St. Louis.

It is not to be inferred from this that the movie houses or the other theaters actually suffered but it is true that fewer people went to the amusement palaces this season than last and a theatrical year, which started off with much promise soon dropped into a slump.

The same condition was true practically the country over. The total amount of admission taxes paid in the nine months period this season was $13,003,838, which is quite a tidy little sum to come out of the pockets of the cash customers to be sure, but during the same time last season the taxes amounted to $350,000 more.

THE season at the American Theater really began on Oct. 9 when Richard Bennett played a week in "The Barker." Previously the theater had opened, on Sept. 4 with the motion picture, "Old Ironsides" which showed for three weeks with two dark weeks following bfore the Bennett engagement.

Another dark week preceded George White's "Scandals," which came on Oct. 23 for a two weeks' stay. "The Cradle Song," Marx Brothers in the second year of "The Cocoanuts" and Elliott Nugent in "Hoosiers Abroad" came in succession and then lack of attractions closed the theater again for two weeks.

On Dec. 4 Fred Stone paid a visit with "Criss Cross" and was succeeded by two weeks of the picture, "The King of Kings" after which we had "Tommy," Lenore Ulric in "Lulu Belle" for two weeks with "The King of Kings" returning for a second week. The next week was given over to the revival of "Merry Wives of Windsor" and Feb. 5 saw the start of two weeks of the movie, "Wings." The next 10 weeks saw Robert B. Mantell, "Hit the Deck," "Kid Boots," Thurston, the Magician, who was here two weeks; Earl Carroll's "Vanities," the revival of "Diplomacy" (three nights), Fritz Leiber in Shakspeare, "She Stoops to Conquer" (four nights), the movie "Simba" and Frank Craven in "The 19th Hole."

In this season at the American there were 9 weeks of motion pictures, 2 weeks of Shakspeare, 2 weeks of magic, 10 weeks of drama and 7 weeks of musical comedy.

THE Shubert Theater began operations on Sept. 25 with the operetta "The Countess Moritza" then closed for a week and reopened on Oct. 9 for 2 weeks of Florence Reed in "The Shanghai Gesture." Next came the ancient, but honorable "Blossom Time," Leon Errol in "Yours Truly," William Hodge in "Straight Through the Door," "Chicago," "The Ramblers' and "Gay Paree." The week of Dec. 11 was dark. On Dec. 18 "Abie's Irish Rose' returned for one week and was followed by "The Play's the Thing," with Holbrook Blinn, Mitzi in "The Madcap," "The Vagabond King" and Grace George for two weeks of "The Road to Rome," starting on Jan. 16. The week of Feb. 1 was dark.

"Broadway" came for 2 weeks on Feb. 5 and after that saw "The Squall," "The Jazz Singer," "Two Girls Wanted" and "O Kay," "Chauve Souris," the week of March 25 was preceded and followed by dark weeks. On April 9 came the Winthrop Ames company in the Gilbert and Sullivan revivals. April 16 saw Ethel Barrymore in "The Constant Wife," followed by Katherine Cornell in "The Letter" and the ill fated part week of the Negro show, "Africana." The season ended last night with the last performance of "The Spider."

In the 33 weeks of its season the Shubert presented 13 dramas, 11 musical shows and was closed 5 weeks.

AND while on the subject, more or less, of statistics the average observer of the Municipal Opera this summer would hardly imagine the sum total of human energy required to complete the show soon upon the big stage in Forest Park.

Or if he did, he would probably delve no more into theatrical mechanics than to include the cast, musicians, and a few stage hands in his count rather than the 445 persons who actually contribute definite value to Municipal Opera performances and some 400 others who are important factors in the success of St. Louis' civic musical enterprise which starts its tenth annual season on June 4.

The spectator's gaze naturally considers the dimensions of the professional company in considering the magnitude of Municipal Op-

Second Thoughts On First Nights

By Alexander Woollcott.

NEW YORK, May 12.

THERE is much to be said for the old convention that a reviewer of plays should hold aloof from the people of the theater, going to each first night with the fine innocence and detachment usually credited to that well known observer, the Man from Mars. In the preservation of this detachment, the people of the theater themselves do not help as much as they used to and there are even times that I find myself sighing for the old days when Maude Adams would slip out of the stage-door of the Empire, step into a waiting four-wheeler and drive off, cloppety-clop, into a mist impenetrable. Even her fellow-members at the Colony Club never saw her and there was a legend there that, clad in a sealskin pelisse and a spotted veil, she used to go in and out, with quiet dignity, through the coal hole.

Nowadays our actors are more conspicuous. Their lapses from privacy range all the way from Miss Billie Burke's pretty and impulsive magazine articles about the emotional adventure of marrying Florenz Ziegfeld to the full-page advertisements wherein Helen Hayes, Madge Kennedy and June Walker announce to an entranced public the name of the soap to which they owe the velvety peach-blossom of their respective skins.

Then, in the current issue of the Golden Book, I have been entranced by some "Modern Beauty Recipes from Experts." From these recipes I learn that Hazel Dawn substitutes a wide board for her mattress and explains this odd behavior by saying:

"I can literally feel my muscles loosening their self-grip and my nerves untying their grim little knots when I lie down on my board."

And, speaking in behalf of herself and Alfred Lunt, I find Miss Lynn Fontanne quoted as saying, "We don't go out to supper after the play. We come home to the simplest refreshment. Often it is a large glassful of spinach juice."

THUS beset, even an old hermit like your correspondent hears the speeches of each new play, through a distracting hubbub of associations. Consider, for example, the odds and ends of memories which settled like crows over the premiere of "The Happy Husband" a new comedy from London, which had its ups ad downs at the Empire Theater on last Monday night.

Certainly it was no fault of mine that, at the sight of an English actor named Mackenzie Ward, I started to chuckle at the memory of a contretemps which once enlivened the dismal premiere of a play by Lord Lathom called, if memory serves and for reasons which escaped me even at the time, "Red Blinds." Its cast included Gertrude Kingston, who had just returned after a long absence, during which she had developed a curious resemblance to Ferdinand Gottschalk and a tendency to forget her lines. At least, her cues that night would find her abstractedly gazing out over the audience as if wondering why all those silly people had come to the play.

THIS Mr. Mackenzie Ward, who was playing a young gigolo in "Red Blinds," had to deny with some heat that he was without a creed. Did he not believe in his bootmaker, his tailor, his glovemaker, his haberdasher? He paused for a reply. None was forthcoming. He glared at Miss Kingston. There was an agonizing silence. Noticing this at last, she came to, collected her wits and finally spoke the momentous line for which the whole house was by now waiting breathlessly. She spoke it with that vigor which is usually described as authority.

"Oh, pish!" said Miss Kingston

"You may well say 'Oh pish!'" snarled Mr. Ward with extraordinary venom, and the play went on.

AGAIN, at "The Happy Husband," more crows circled overhead, when, with easy elegance and a grace incomparable, the vet-

New York Day by Day

By O. O. McINTYRE.

NEW YORK, May 12.

EVERY newspaper writer dashes off things in a hurry he often regrets at leisure. The momentary impulse to be nasty stifles his better judgment and it is in print before it can be recalled. Especially is this true of sarcasm. And doubly true when it is personal sarcasm.

Nor have I been free from mean-tempered thrusts aimed at my old gray head. But somehow I am not able to work myself up into even a mild fury over them. I have a feeling that the writer, just as I have in similar instances, suffers more than I. Experience generally brings caution and when I am tempted to pot-shot someone I wait a week to see how I feel. And as a rule I am usually in a mood to ask whoever it was for the next waltz. But if I do feel the same way at the end of a week I speak right out.

The notion was set in motion by the local intelligentzia that the Marx brothers and Joe Cook were absolutely incomparable as comedians. Not one of them has the stage finish or is half so amusing or versatile as Will Mahoney or James Barton or Jack Donahue, and I assure you I have nothing whatever against the Messrs. Marx or Joe Cook. I have laughed at their antics heartily. A boost for them now and then is permissible, but I see no reason to single them out for perpetual puffery.

As this is written, Andy Cohen seems to be the fair-haired boy of the New York Giants. One swallow, of course, does not make a summer, or a few home runs a Babe Ruth, but Cohen seems likely to become an interesting public idol. The Jew has been conspicuously successful in other athletics, but seldom in baseball, and for that reason if Cohen finishes up the season with a flourish he will topple many New York heroes off their pedestals.

Buckitty-buckitty note: A certain young Romeo glanced around at a theater just before the curtain went up. Directly behind him sat the husband of the lady he had escorted there. He was not there when the lights came on again.

I have a feeling that Mayor Walker's unusual popularity in New York is just a pain in the neck to the outland. A number of letters reach me expressing that idea. although I see no particular reason for telling me about it. I wasn't even in town when he was elected I think, however, if some of them would meet the Mayor they would feel differently.

The news reels, I fear, are doing Mr. Walker an injustice unconsciously. They give him the appearance of one of those dapper little Willies off the pickle boat looking for some hellish ping pong tournament. The Mayor is slight of stature and his clothes accentuate a floppishness that is not his. He is not lacking in red corpuscles, as many have discovered.

I have to take a week off now and then to bore readers with replies to the jolly critics. Lately some of the pale little exquisites have been in a flutter over some of my grammatical constructions. Will Rogers voiced a good reply to one who laughed, ha, ha, because he wrote "ain't." He said: "I notice a lot of the writers who ain't writin' ain't ain't eatin'."

Hollywood Impressions

By Harlan Thompson

This is one of a series of Hollywood Impressions written by authors and playwrights who are now in Los Angeles to write stories for the screen. Harlan Thompson is a well-known musical comedy writer, having turned out "Little Jessie James," "Twinkle, Twinkle," "Merry, Merry," and other musical plays.

HOLLYWOOD, like Caesar's Gaul, is divided into three parts; the Iowans, the picture people and the original inhabitants.

The Iowans look up to the picture people; the picture people look down on the Iowans; and the original inhabitants shut their eyes tightly when either of the others are around.

A pathetic lot, these aborigines. They can remember the time when their land was a quiet land; when a filling station was a filling station and not an Egyptian temple illuminated in six colors; when a restaurant was a restaurant, and not a brown derby 50 feet high; when a lot of other things were a lot of other things, and not a lot of movie sets gone into trade.

The original inhabitants take it pretty hard. And well they might, for they are a doomed race. For one thing many of them are getting along in years, and no person getting along in years has much of a chance against Hollywood driving. Many a lightweight, proud of his footwork, has had the pattern of a radiator emblem buried with him.

My first impression of Hollywood, gained shortly after I came West to write for Paramount, has not yet left me. Looking out of my hotel window the morning of my arrival, I saw a young man on the sidewalk below. Not that this was so remarkable in itself, but he happened to be engaged in pulling up full-length silk stockings while waiting for a taxi. In the process the striped dressing gown he wore was blown back enough to reveal that the rest of his costume consisted of a lace trimmed, pink georgette combination.

I expected someone to speak to the poor chap and tell him that such things just weren't done, especially in the morning—but nobody did. In fact, of the hundreds of people who passed by before the taxi arrived, not one paid the slightest attention to him. I knew then that Hollywood was going to be different.

In a few short weeks on the lot I have grown used to anything. If a group of creatures with six eyes and green tails landed in a rocket from Mars right in my front yard, I'd maybe give them a sidelong glance as I went out to the mailbox and wonder which company was making that kind of an aviation picture.

The original inhabitant is different. He resents little things like that. And he'll go on resenting until that day comes when a front bumper takes him away from it all, and he is laid to rest in a widely-advertised cemetery with all modern improvements, including a flashy electric sign over the entrance and tombstones outlined in three colors of neon lights.

Mystery Pageant Today.

A mystery play and pageant, "The Day of Victory," will be given this afternoon at 3 o'clock at the Scottish Rite Cathedral, 3627 Lindell boulevard, for the missionary host of the Episcopal Church school children. It is under the direction of Lee Hildebrand.

Frank Fay for the Missouri

Well-Known Vaudevillian Snatched From the Varieties to Become Master of Ceremonies by Skouras—Loew's Also Took Nazarro From the Halls—Eddie Lowry Has Become the Abie's Irish Rose of St. Louis With Over a Thousand Performances Already to His Credit Here.

By NIE.

FURTHER inroads upon the mainstays of the vaudeville stage are being made by the movie theaters which are going in, more and more, for a form of variety entertainment of their own. Loew's Theater here has taken Nat Nazarro Jr., from the halls to run the stage shows in the Washington avenue house and now Skouras Brothers announce that they have signed up Frank Fay, under a long term contract, to act as Master of Ceremonies at the Missouri.

Fay, a high-salaried performer, has long been one of the topliners of the vaudeville houses where, in addition to doing his own act he usually introduced the other artists on the bill after a manner he himself made popular. How Fay will succeed in a cinema palace remains to be seen. His humor is fast and, at times, subtle. The more sophisticated audiences of the vaudeville theaters simply "ate up" his stuff but he may be a little too quick for the customers of the movies. He is to come to the Missouri in a couple of weeks, May 26 to be exact, and the Skouras boys are expecting him to jump into instant popularity.

WITH the coming and going of masters of ceremonies sight should not be lost of the fact that Ed Lowry, who is at the peak of his popularity right now at the Ambassador, seems to be the "Abie's Irish Rose" of St. Louis. Already Lowry has given 1000 stage performances here, most of them since his arrival here in September, and he's out to equal in St. Louis what Abie has done in New York—some 3000 shows.

There was a lot of close figuring by Skouras Brothers to bring Lowry's stage performances to 1000, but since they wanted a special stage show, they succeeded.

The count is explained in the following manner. Arriving at the Ambassador on September 10, he has been downtown over a period of 36 weeks, four of which, however, he spent in New York or Los Angeles. That leaves 32 weeks, and with 30 shows a week, five on Saturday and Sunday and four on weekdays, it totals 960.

Ah, but Lowry also played the Missouri several years ago for a total of 22 shows and the Orpheum before that for 14. Still four short, but that is easily taken care of in the many benefits legitimately played in a theater.

SO far none of the big picture houses around the country copying the style of stage show originated right here in St. Louis, have made any attempt to dig up a woman performer as master of ceremonies. It has been tried once or twice in vaudeville but with only fair success. Perhaps the movie magnates believe that women and girls are the backbone of their audiences and that they must be catered to through the medium of a male boss. In the making of the films it is much the same thing. In the field which produces the persons who can spin yarns pictorially there are listed in Hollywood's "Directory of Directors" 334 men—and just two women.

Asked his reason for this disparity Jesse L. Lasky, at the active head of the Paramount production organization for nearly 15 years, recently said: "Motion picture direction is a field in which women find their physical inequipment a definite handicap. It is hard, trying, exacting, worry-producing labor. The hours are long; the strain is great. Women will never be the usual in the ranks of directors, but always the novelty.

"It is undoubtedly true that the feminine mind would have made better certain good pictures of the past. Smart comedies of the society type or possibly a picture like 'Peter Pan' for example."

As further illustration Mr. Lasky spoke of "Fashions for Women," a picture starring Esther Ralston which was directed by Dorothy Arzner, the first woman director ever placed under contract by Paramount. The only other woman director in Hollywood is Lois Weber, who last year directed "The Angel of Broadway" for De Mille.

"'Fashions for Women,' as directed by Miss Arzner, was primarily a woman's picture," Mr. Lasky said. "Garmental finery was its theme and its plot was characterized by a feminine lightness and humor that lent itself ideally to Miss Arzner's touch. The titles of her successive pictures will further clarify my statement. She directed 'Ten Modern Commandments' and 'Get Your Man.' You will note that there is not a 'Covered Wagon' or an 'Old Ironsides' among them."

THE path that Dorothy Arzner followed to become a motion picture director is an interesting one, but paved with laboriously carved blocks of hard work and close application. Dorothy Arzner is the daughter of the manager of one of the oldest rendezvous cafes of Los Angeles. For years it has been frequented by that thinning rank of men and women who like their soup hot—and not their music.

James Cruze, Marshall Neilan, D. W. Griffith, and others of the veterans in the film colony used to gather at that cafe when Dorothy Arzner was even more of a girl than she is now. It was inevitable that she should seek work in a studio for she met and knew all of these men. Stenographer, script copyist, scenarist, film cutter, director—that is her story. Its telling took several years, but always she had her goal in sight and now it has been reached.

Few others of the 336 directors in Hollywood deliberately set

Thyrsus Gives Sutro Comedy, "Two Virtues"

Washington University Dramatic Club to Make Annual Offering at American Thursday Night.

THE annual feature dramatic presentation of Thyrsus, the Washington University Dramatic Club, will be given at the American Theater Thursday night. The play selected for this year is the four-act English drawing room comedy, "The Two Virtues," by Alfred Sutro. The production is being directed by Joseph Solari.

Melvin Maginn, president of the organization, takes the feature role of Jeffrey Pantou. Maginn has appeared in numerous campus presentations. Pauline Parker, as Jeffrey's sister, has a difficult characterization, but at rehearsals she is said to have handled it with skill.

The leading feminine role is taken by Genevieve McNellis, who plays the part of Freda. Evelyn Koch, as Mrs. Isabel Jervoise, is required to give an English version of Anita Loos' type of character. The other feminine part is that of Alice Exeru, taken by Bobby Stoffregen. The role of Claude Jervoise, who feels the poetic urge, but does not know what to do about it, is played by Charles Dillon.

The play is light and amusing. Jeffrey wants to write a history of historians, rather than enter the various callings open to a man of his position in life. He has had a little affair de coeur with Mrs. Jervoise, but that is over. However, she asks him to call on Freda Guildford, and ask her to discourage the attentions her husband, Claude Jervoise, is paying her.

This only serves to draw Freda and Jeffrey to each other, and they decided to write the history of historians together. Complications arise, as they always do, but are all cleared up in the last act.

The scenery was designed entirely by William Lincoln and Leonhard Haeger, Washington University undergraduates.

THEATER SEASON HERE SUFFERED FROM SLUMP

era as a business enterprise. But even here the appearance is deceiving. By every count the chorus numbers 96 and the cast 12. But the chorus actually totals 103, seven members being held in reserve as understudies in case of accident or illness, to fill small parts from time to time.

While the preparation of the stage performance is entrusted solely to Stage Director Alonzo Price, there are three assistants on hand at all time to carry out the director's orders.

From the stage one turns his eyes to the orchestra pit, where there are 50 musicians under the direction of Conductor Leon Rosebrook providing the musical setting. The music department includes one other employe, a pianist, who officiates at all rehearsals.

And then one notices the set. It must necessarily be designed and constructed. A master artist, four assistants and 21 mechanics do this work. Then the stage hands on nights of the performance are called in to place it properly. In all there are 48 men back stage to handle the setting. Some are carpenters, some property men, some electricians—but each with his part to perform in transforming a forest into a palace garden.

It requires 30 persons to provide the gowns and suits. And there are two wardrobe mistresses to distribute them to the members of the company every night.

If you are sitting in the free seats, you'll also enjoy the work of the two men whose duty it is to tune the amplifier so that it will carry the artists' voices distinctly to the rear of the auditorium.

Between acts one frequently desires a drink, and you sometimes wonder why it's so difficult to get hold of a boy with soda water, but even so some 42 venders are dispensing pop throughout the theater.

PRIOR to enjoying the opera, however, one must possess a ticket, and in the Arcade Building there are four persons attending to ticket sales. And in Forest Park itself there are five additional box office assistants.

Two auditorium superintendents direct the ushers in their work of showing the visitor to his seat. For such an auditorium as the Municipal Theater with its 10,000 seats 41 ushers are required. Ten doortenders admit the audience.

Even with all these employes the Municipal Opera organization is not complete. After the last spectator has left the auditorium, another crew of workers goes on duty—the cleaning staff. All told 12 men are required to keep the Municipal Theater spic and span. When their work is done, three watchmen alternate during the remainder of the night and the day in watching the theater lest some prowler damage the stage or scenery.

This extensive corps of workers is required to keep the physical machinery of Municipal Opera in running order. But there are still more—the executive staff—which directs this complicated organization.

Only five persons are required in the offices—Manager David E. Russell, Miss Mona Crutcher, the Executive Secretary of the Association; Publicity Director Paul Beisman, an assistant and a clerk. But there are 42 other St. Louisans contributing their services also to this department—the members of the Board of Directors, all leading business and professional men who formulate the general Municipal Opera plans, and, who, later, as sub-committee members, see that all details are carried out properly.

Still, though, the list of those contributing to Municipal Opera is not complete. True 447 individuals are all who are actively engaged, but there are as many others who play no small part in helping it to success.

There are the 400 odd guarantors. True, their contribution since the first year of Municipal Opera has been merely that of signing a pledge, for the Association each year has shown a profit and has not had to call upon its backers. But their moral support, as well as their financial guarantee that Municipal Opera shall go on, has done much to bring success.

WHILE not employing any such vast array for the musical comedy season at the Garden Theater which starts June 3, Charlie Sinclair is planning to make his nevertheless large company there a sort of training ground or discovery spot for talent for some of the big New York musical shows which he puts on in the winter time. Out of his chorus, made up of St. Louis boys and girls, as is the Municipal organization, Sinclair hopes to get one or two future Della Foxs. He has chosen his chorus for the coming summer season largely with an eye to youth and beauty and already he has spotted several who, he thinks, will develop an ability to play small parts and work their way up to the top in a year or so. With this in view Sinclair and William Parsons, his musical director, are devoting a great deal of time to the work of the chorus members and rehearsals now are in full swing.

Last Friday night Sinclair attended the second performance of the Washington University musical comedy, "High Hat" at the American Theater and offered positions to several of the student members of that cast. They are to get their professional tryouts this week.

During the rehearsals which were held last week Mr. Sinclair's discerning eyes fell on several potential Broadway and Hollywood players. Among them are two girls—twins—who have been dancing in obscurity in a night club. They are as unusual in appearance and style as the Dolly sisters, the Fairbanks twins or the McCarthy twins, whom the general stage directory of the Garden Theater discovered and placed with Eddie Cantor. Sinclair started them as two pages, who did nothing but open the draped curtains. He developed them so rapidly that they are now featured in George White's "Scandals." Another former night club girl, who is now thoroughly established as a leading woman, and who has been the talk of the theatrical season for the past year, is Barbara Stanwick. Just 12 months ago she was singing in a small night club. She is now the leading woman in "Burlesque" in New York, one of the sensational hits of years, in which Hal Skelly, a former St. Louisan, plays the lead.

Civic Music League to Bring Women's Orchestra to St. Louis

THE Civic Music League will introduce to St. Louis next November the Boston Women's Symphony Orchestra, Ethel Leginska, conductor. For the past three seasons, the league has chosen the Minneapolis orchestra for its orchestral number in a course of five attractions, choice falling on the Boston women's organization at the recent meeting of the board because of the extreme novelty of a complete orchestra of women and the fame of its conductor, who was here last year as "guest" at a Sunday afternoon concert, where she not only conducted with skill, but was soloist as well, playing the piano and conducting the orchestra at the same time.

So far as is known, the Boston Women's Symphony is the first orchestra in this country the complete personnel of which, including conductor, is composed entirely of women.

The orchestra was created through the interest and energy of a group of women prominent in musical, civic and social affairs of Boston who saw the need of creating a medium for the vast number of gifted musicians among the gentler sex who had no opportunity of playing with the established orchestras made up of men.

In the fall the Women's Orchestra embarks on its first tour under Civic Concert Service, Chicago, and has been booked in Chicago, St. Louis, Memphis, Milwaukee among the larger cities and numerous smaller places operating under the Civic Music Association plan. Chicago is now following the example of Boston and has the nucleus of an orchestra for women which does excellent work, but which has not yet been financed to insure security of its personnel.

The Civic Music League of St. Louis, now in its fifth year, under is membership plan of creating a fund for great musical attractions, has been able to present many entirely new attractions to St. Louis, all of which have proved of value.

Second Thoughts On First Nights

eran A. E. Matthews strolled on to play again this time, as always, the adventures of an amatory cracksman. It was not my fault that behind him stalked the memory of that night in Paris when news came that somebody called the Archduke Ferdinand had been murdered at Sarajevo. For on that night at the Petit Theater Anglais I was watching Mr. Matthews perform "The Importance of Being Earnest" with a company that had lost their luggage en route from London and forgotten what the play was about on the way from the Gare du Nord.

And I remembered, too, another day when I hurried into the lobby of the Ritz to keep a luncheon appointment with a formidable matron, only to have Mr. Matthews walk up to me heartily and say:

"I was beginning to think that you'd forgotten our engagement."

I went through an agony of contrition and bewilderment until I found out that, just for the idle pleasure of contemplating such confusion, he had been saying that to everyone who came in.

AGAIN at "The Happy Husband" in came that admirable actor, Walter Connolly, who gave, by the way, the performance of the evening. At the sight of him I could think of nothing save a story that Laurence Stallings was telling about him only the other day. It seems a daughter had just been born into the Connolly household and the young father was celebrating at the Players' Club.

"And what does she look like?" someone asked quite needlessly.

At that tactless inquiry, Connelly gave way to the emotion pent up within him. Between the sobs which shook him, he could be heard muttering:

"Like an old character actress."

THEN on brisked the changeless Billie Burke herself and, with the perversity that plagues some minds I suddenly remembered one of few occasions when, during by incumbency as dramatic critic of the Evening Sun, I was summoned to the austere presence of the late Frank A. Munsey. He was contemplating with some perplexity a clipping from his own newspaper of an editorial on Barrie, which had been written by the late Lawrence Reamer. It had been cut out approvingly and sent to him by Miss Burke herself, who suggested, in a pretty note, that such editorials on matters theatrical had her warm approval and that it would be nice if the Evening Sun should comment in a similar manner on the almost startling cleanliness of the musical comedy called "Annie, Dear," in which, by the merest chance, she was then disporting herself.

Mr. Munsey was good enough to ask me what I thought of the proposal. I said that I thought highly of such a series of editorials, but it struck me that there were some 30 or 40 entertainments then current in town which one would really be compelled to speak of before one could get around to "Annie, Dear."

At that he chuckled, sent for his stenographer and dictated a charming letter to Miss Burke in which he thanked her for her suggestion, asked that she help them out by submitting an editorial on "Annie, Dear" and promised that it should receive all the consideration consonant with the imperious pressure of world events and the standards of good journalism. As far as I know, the matter was never referred to again.

Despite such distractions, I am able to report that "The Happy Husband" is quite amusing and that its second act, at least, thanks in no small measure to the superb performance by the aforesaid Mr. Connolly, is enormously funny.

Y. M. H. A. in Three One-Act Dramas

TRAGEDY, comedy, and satire will all be on the program when three one-act plays are presented in the Y. M. H. A.-Y. W. H. A. auditorium tonight at 8:30 p. m. These plays are presented by the "Y" in co-operation with the Menorah Society of Washington University.

In the first play, "Winter" by Sholom Asch, translated from the Hebrew, the following Washington U. Menorah students take part: Belle Grosby; Alice Fischlowitz, Jeanette Hertzman, Sara Kasdov, Lilliam Friedman, Paul Siegel and Arthur Bromberg. In the second play, "Confirmation," Lillian Friedman, Paul Siegel, and Lillian Kasdoy play the roles. This satire was written by Morris J. Miller, a member of the Washington University Menorah Society.

The Brandeis Club of the "Y" presents the other play, "The Two Goyium." The members of this cast are: Sadie Packman, Buddye Wolfgang, Goldie Steinberg, Fannie Romansky and Fay Persuk.

To Give Parker Play.

The players of Bethany Young People's Society of Bethany Evangelical Lutheran Church will present W. C. Parker's three-act comedy entitled "All a Mistake," Tuesday and Wednesday at their new auditorium which has just been completed at Clay and Natural Bridge. The play is under the direction of Geo. Deppe. The leading roles are in the hands of G. Martin Frentzel and Miss Ester Zimmerman. They will be supported by Misses Rose Rudolph, Edna B. Luer, Anita Vogt and F. J. Erhart, E. J. Neubauer and Erwin Kastrup.

BEHIND THE SCREENS

HOLLYWOOD, May 12.

ORDINARILY it takes a new foreign actor a long time to get into action in Hollywood. One hears that he has been put on the payroll, a loud huzza goes up from the producer's publicity department, and then months and months elapse before one actually sees him working in front of a camera. So when Walter Byron, the new leading man Samuel Goldwin found in London for Vilma Banky, turned up on a Hollywood set less than a month later he seemed to be hastening onto the American screen as though it were on fire and he had come to put it out.

Byron should feel at home in American pictures, however, for his first stage appearance was in an American play, "East Lynne," in which he played Little Willie. He also put on skirts and played Little Eva in "Uncle Tom's Cabin." He is the son of George Butler, the English comedian.

Speaking of foreigners, Greta Garbo seems as foreign and aloof as she did when she first arrived from Sweden. What convulsed Fred Niblo, her director, however, was to overhear two visitors on the set discussing the blonde actress.

"What an exceptional girl," exclaimed one.

"Yes," agreed the other, "isn't she effeminate!"

And speaking of blondes, John Arnold, ace cameraman on the M-G-M lot, says they are twice as hard to photograph as brunettes. Lights must be placed to hit the hair at just the right angle or golden hair may look dark on the screen, and flaxen curls may look muddy.

Sidelights on the source of motion picture talent:

One of the biggest producing organizations in the studio area has players from almost every state and from many foreign countries on its payroll, but not one actor or actress who was born in California. Several of the studio's executives and directors, however, hail from the state which Hollywood has made famous.

Now that motion picture producers are struggling to put the industry on a scientific basis of efficiency and economy the mass of detail involved in the making of a movie becomes more amazingly apparent to the non-technical investigator.

The latest system is to work out every detail of the picture on paper before exposing a foot of film, even to such details as the number of cups and saucers which must be on the table in the dining room scene scheduled to be photographed 19 days after production begins. The working schedule of "Noah's Ark," for instance, is a document of about 400 typewritten pages from which one can learn that on the twenty-fifth day of production there must be ready on the big banquet hall set 100 nobles of Babylon, nine Libyan slaves, 12 vine bearers, 40 Ethiopian torch-bearers, 10 scribes, 20 musicians, 120 flowery pillows, 20 brass plates with hot food, 200 brass drinking cups, 30 anklets with bells, 50 spears, 50 shields, box lunches for 500 extras, etc., etc.

And novelists have made such scenes live for millions of readers with nothing more tangible to work with than a bottle of ink and a little paper.

Another step in the systematization of the cinema is the use of screen tests of actual living characters as a guide in the casting of players to portray those characters. Selection of extras for underworld types in "Easy Money" will be based on a collection of Rogue's Gallery screen tests borrowed from the New York Police Department. These close-ups of prisoners photographed for the police reference library are the most authoritative kind of data on the human background needed for certain scenes in the film. No doubt the next step will be for producers to build up similar reference libraries of their own, including not only criminals, but every type of human being in action, classified by race, country, style period and occupation.

Film fans everywhere would enjoy some of these Hollywood ventures into the realm of legitimate drama. They are more than plays featuring one or two screen stars: the movie influence is reflected in all phases of the production, and even the audience is sprinkled always with at least a handful of screen celebrities.

Take, for instance, the play with which Joseph Schildkraut, of stage and screen, launched the Hollywood Play House on its new career as "an art theater for the people." Jaime del Rio, husband of the screen star, Dolores del Rio, collaborated with Lois Leeson on the original story which George Scarborough turned into the play, "From Hell Came a Lady." The "lady" is portrayed by Mae Busch, back to the stage again after 10 years in pictures. The old man who makes life miserable for her after she leaves the amusement pier concession called "Hell" to live in a lighthouse is Lionel Belmore, familiar to film fans. And among the minor members of the cast one recognizes August Tollaire, the French mayor of "What Price Glory."

Even the backstage machinery of the production bears the imprint of the screen. One of the smaller wind machines was originally a film-winding device. And the production is dedicated to "that great genius, Cecil B. DeMille;" which some interpret as meaning that Schildkraut would raise no objection if DeMille made it an all-around movie colony project by putting the play on the screen.

Hollywood also is to have a "motion picture art theater," in which films considered good art but poor box office can be shown to those who like to see the best foreign and American efforts regardless of whether they are popular enough for nationwide release. Heretofore there have been pictures, including some produced here, which reached a few film folk in studio projection rooms and other private showings, but had to go to New York or Boston for a showing.

William Beaudine has moved to First National Studios, and is making preparations to start on "Heart to Heart," the next vehicle for Mary Astor and Lloyd Hughes.

Beaudine, who directed "The Life of Riley," featuring Charlie Murray and George Sidney, will hold the megaphone on this story of a small town girl who acquires a title in Europe, but who returns to her girlhood sweetheart in America.

Louise Fazenda will play a character role in the picture, which goes into production soon.

Billie Dove just doesn't seem to be able to get out of Europe.

Miss Dove is actually in Hollywood, but her present pictures have had European locales, and her next starring vehicle will also be located on foreign shores. It is "Night Watch," the story of a French naval officer's wife and is to be directed by Alexander Korda, who held the megaphone on Miss Dove's last picture, "The Yellow Lily." This was a story of Hungary.

For the second time in his directorial career Frank Lloyd will go down to the sea in ships. The first time was for "The Sea Hawk" and now comes "The Divine Lady."

Now directing Corinne Griffith in "The Divine Lady," Lloyd is preparing for scenes of eighteenth century fleets in combat for this picture. "The Divine Lady" boasts a cast of players including H. B. Warner, Victor Varconi, Marie Dressler, Ian Keith, Dorothy Cummings, Montagu Love, Helen Jerome Eddy and others.

COMPAROGRAPH FAILS IN PRODUCING EVIDENCE

Police Try Device in Case of Henry St. John, Held for Murder of F. W. Murphy.

The first attempt by the police to produce "scientific evidence" by use of the comparograph, a microscopic instrument, has failed, in the case of Henry St. John, held for the murder of Frank W. Murphy, druggist at 825 Franklin avenue, a week ago last Thursday.

The day after Murphy was shot down in his store by a young man who escaped, St. John was arrested in escaping from a robbery and confessed that he had killed Murphy in attempting a holdup. A .32 caliber bullet was removed from Murphy's body. A revolver of similar caliber was found on St. John and a cartridge shell and several cartridges were found in St. John's room.

Police fired the revolver at a piece of wood and then compared the bullets with the bullet taken from Murphy's body. Then more cartridges were fired and the the shells compared with the shell found in St. John's room. Markings on the various shells and bullets proved confusing and of no importance as evidence even under the comparograph, police admitted, blaming the failure on the revolver, which was cheaply made, badly worn and fouled with lead.

St. John has repudiated his confession of the murder and the only witness to it, a girl clerk, has been unable to identify him. Circuit Attorney Sidener has called the case weak, but police think St. John's signed confession and oral admissions warrant a prosecution. St. John still is a prisoner, although no warrant has been issued by the circuit attorney.

ACCIDENT VERDICT IN FATAL SHOOTING OF FIREMAN'S SON

Richard Mollencott, 18, Apparently Dropped Weapon Trying to Put It in Holster.

A Coroner's verdict of accident was returned Friday in the death of Richard Mollencott, 18-year-old son of Fire Captain Guido R. Mollencott, who was wounded Thursday night at the Mollencott home, 4849A Natural Bridge avenue, when an old revolver, which had belonged to his grandfather, was discharged.

There were no witnesses to the shooting, but a holster on the youth's belt indicated that he dropped the revolver when attempting to put it in the holster and it was discharged upon striking the floor. The bullet entered his right temple. According to Capt. Mollencott, his son was to have gone to the Meramec River to inspect a clubhouse and apparently planned to take the revolver with him.

Funeral services will be held at 10 a. m. tomorrow from the Blessed Sacrament Catholic Church.

ERROR IN STORY OF ARREST OF NINE MEN IN THEATER ROW

Leventhal Bros. Management Disclaims It Had Musicians Taken Into Custody.

The Post-Dispatch, in an account last Thursday of a controversy between union musicians and Leventhal Bros., operating the Senate, Astor and Rainbow movie theaters downtown, was in error in stating that the management had nine men, including musicias, arrested for distributing handbills in front of the theaters, and in saying that the handbills declared the theaters were unfair to organized labor.

According to the management, the nine men, who were later discharged in Police Court, were arrested by a policeman because the handbills were being scattered over the sidewalk and street. The handbills read: "Attention, to real lovers of music. The Senate, Rainbow and Astor Theaters do not employ union musicians. These theaters substitute machine music for a real orchestra of union musicians."

Corns Now Needless

Prove It Overnight!

Why keep "treating" corns, when the first drop of Freezone stops all sensation of pain, and a few drops soon end the corn?

The most painful corn, even one sensitive to touch of stocking, can't throb ten seconds after Freezone comes in contact. All that's left to do, is lift the corn right off and it's gone. Isn't that better than surgery?

Feet that are "sights" from corns can grow back to normal, unblemished condition through the use of Freezone. Meantime, no pain—none at all—and no awkward pads or plasters to cause shoes to pinch and cultivate corns in other places.

The Freezone process is scientific and certain. The hardest corn that ever formed can't resist it—nor the soft corns between the toes where nothing has ever helped. A tiny bottle of Freezone copes with the worst condition of corns. Freezone has made it folly to have any corns at all, for any length of time.

For your own comfort, investigate Freezone. Every druggist has it, and the cost is a few cents!

FACTS ON CANCER TO BE BROADCAST IN CITY THIS WEEK

Educational Campaign Will Aim at Early Recognition and Treatment of Disease.

Coincident with the opening of the sixth annual "cancer week" today, as part of the national campaign of the American Society for the Control of Cancer, Health Commissioner Starkloff has issued the following statement about the means of prevention and cure of the disease:

"The splendid educational campaign of the society for the control of cancer in Missouri will unquestionably show the result of its work in reduced mortality from that disease next year. Since 1910 a continued and alarming increase in deaths from cancer has occurred all over the civilized world. In 1910 the deaths reported to the St. Louis Health Division from cancer were 526, while in 1927, 1078 deaths were recorded. If you will realize that one person in every 10 persons who died in St. Louis in 1927 died of cancer, the appalling picture should necessarily cause you to reflect and wonder if such deaths could have been prevented.

"Therefore, the first and most important procedure would be the early recognition of the disease. This can be brought about by the education of the public to the realization of the possibilities of cancer by certain symptoms and indications pointing to an abnormal condition that should prompt the afflicted to immediately consult a competent physician. Then the early diagnosis by clinical and scientific laboratory examinations. In this way thousands upon thousands of lives can be saved, because it is an established fact the earlier the new growths are removed, the greater the possibilities are for the permanent recovery of the patient.

Advises Calling Physicians.

"Remember that all lumps appearing anywhere on the body are cause for suspicion. They may be quite harmless, but may also be the early beginning of a cancer. Chronic ulcers, non-healing sores, chronic inflammation or persistent bleeding should be attended to at once, and a reputable physician should be consulted.

"I desire to call attention to the most pathetic side of the cancer situation—to the one who believes he or she can be cured without surgical aid or interference, the one who depends upon the cancer quack, the charlatan, the unlicensed, irregular, crooked practitioner of medicine; the Indian doctor, the vender of patent cancer salves; all these breed false hopes and, above all, waste precious time. No form of internal medicine will cure cancer.

Campaign to Run a Week.

"Cancer Week" will continue until next Sunday. The local slogan is "Early cancer can be cured." The St. Louis committee of the national organization is seeking at this time to impress on the public the advisability of seeking medical advice whenever there is reason to suspect presence of cancer, since proper treatment, if obtained in time, is a cure.

Signs have been erected on buildings and phamplets are being distributed in factories, stores and other places, including committee headquarters, 3427 Washington boulevard. Various other mediums of publicity are being utilized. Representatives of the committee will address organizations of various natures. Four medical specialists will be here to co-operate. They are Dr. Joseph Colt Bloodgood, clinical professor of surgery at Johns Hopkins University; Dr. Thomas S. Cullen, professor of gynecology at Johns Hopkins; Dr. R. V. Brokaw of New York, field representative of the American Society for the Control of Cancer, and Dr. Herbert L. Lombard, chief of the cancer section of the Boston Department of Public Health.

Free Lectures in Evenings.

Free public lectures will be given at the St. Louis Medical Society, 3839 Lindell boulevard, Wednesday and Friday evenings. Dr. Bloodgood will speak Wednesday and Dr. Cullen Friday, the latter's topic being "Cancer and its Importance to the General Population."

Dr. Lombard is coming here to describe the Massachusetts cancer survey he made, which is noted in medical circles. Arrangement for a similar inquiry in Missouri will be discussed. The Massachusetts survey dealt with methods of handling patients and extension of facilities. The medical staff of Barnard Free Skin and Cancer Hospital has invited staffs of several general hospitals to a dinner Thursday night to hear Dr. Lombard on the subject. Friday he will address a lay luncheon, now being arranged.

A cancer clinic for free diagnosis will be conducted at the medical society building between 9 a. m. and 5 p. m. Friday and Saturday, with qualified physicians belonging to the society in charge.

Next Sunday printed information about cancer is to be distributed at churches.

Similar local campaigns this week were arranged by county chairmen in 92 Missouri counties which have medical societies. Further discussion of control of cancer throughout Missouri will be had at the annual meeting of the Missouri State Medical Association at Columbia on Thursday.

Fete for St. Louis U Hospital to Be Held In Fordyce Gardens

HUNDREDS of socially prominent men and women are turning their attention and aid to the third annual country carnival for the benefit of the St. Louis University Hospital, to be given this year in the gardens of the country home of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel W. Fordyce Jr., at Kinloch, Mo., on Decoration Day. The management will be identical with that of the two previous years, with August A. Busch, honorary chairman; Mrs. James M. Franciscus, general chairman, and Mrs. Fordyce, Mrs. Howard Benoist, Mrs. William Julius Polk, Mrs. George S. Tiffany, Mrs. Edward Walsh, Mrs. William Maffitt, Mrs. Joseph Falk and Mrs. J. D. Perry Francis, directors.

Amusements for all ages are promised, among them a side show, under the management of Mr. and Mrs. Harold M. Kauffman, with James H. Platt as ring master. Another is a surprise nook, the details of which have been kept a secret, to be managed by Mr. and Mrs. Joseph L. Werner, with a corps of 25 assistants. Mrs. and Mrs. Louis A. Hager Jr., will sell cigarettes and other accessories for the smoker. Mrs. Thomas Dooley Jr. will serve ice cream cones, assisted by a large group of young women. Mrs. Sidney Overall and Mrs. Henry Cushman will dispense coffee and sell home-made cakes.

Mrs. Robert Holland, with 60 of the best housekeepers of her acquaintance and 50 of the debutante set, will serve a dinner to include chicken gumbo soup made from a famous Southern recipe. A "hot dog" stand will be operated under the supervision of Mr. and Mrs. Louis B. Von Weise, and pink lemonade and candies will be sold by Miss Lenore Cahill and three assistants. Mrs. George Von Schrader will dispense soft drinks in an arbor under the trees.

An innovation is being presented by Mrs. Edmund F. Gorman who will sell dress hangers. Fine jellies, jams and pickles will be disposed of by Mrs. William Julius Polk.

In addition to the side show and the surprise nook, the entertainment will include a nail driving contest with Mrs. Fred Schlafly in charge, and a dance pavilion to be directed by Mr. and Mrs. Marion Lambert, where skits will be presented between dances A fortune teller posing under the name of

Mrs. E. H. Simmons Heads Garden Club

MRS. E. H. SIMMONS was elected president of the Garden Club of St. Louis at the annual meeting Friday evening at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Eugene N. Funsten. Other officers elected are: Mrs. E. J. Walsh, vice president; Mrs. W. N. Mathews, treasurer; Mrs. Frederick von Windegger, secretary; Mrs. A. Shapleigh Boyd, chairman of the Exchange Market; Mrs. W. J. Polk, chairman for the 1929 Flower Show; Dr. George T. Moore, member at large.

Mrs. Simmons is chairman of the committees of the ninth annual amateur flower show of the Garden Club next Saturday and Sunday at Shaw's Garden, in which many prizes are offered for entries of familiar back yard plants, floral arrangements for rooms and dinner tables, miniature artificial gardens, shadow box floral arrangements, window boxes and vegetables. Members of the Garden Club will not compete with the public for the prizes, a list of which may be obtained in the flower show premium books at Shaw's Garden.

Parties for Eugenia Edmunds

MISS EUGENIA EDMUNDS, daughter of and Mrs. Sterling Edmunds of 33 Vandeventer place, and her fiance, Alexander Burton Carver of New York, will be guests of honor at a dinner dance Friday night at the St. Louis Country Club, at which Miss Josephine Bates, Miss Martha Love and Mrs. George Herbert Walker Jr., all of whom are to be attendants at the wedding, will be hostesses. The guests will include the bridal party and out-of-town visitors.

The Carver-Edmunds wedding will take place Saturday afternoon at Christ Church Cathedral.

Club To Hear Missionary

DR. BAYARD DODGE, president of the American University at Beirut, Syria, and a distinguished foreign missionary, will address the members of the St. Louis Woman's Club tomorrow afternoon at one of the outstanding events given at the club this season. The hostesses for the afternoon will be Mrs. Felix Gunter, Mrs. Charles Valier, Mrs. Violet Hall, Mrs. McCune Gill, Mrs. Wilbert R. Berry and Mrs. Duncan I. Meier.

Guest privileges will be waived, and after the lecture, to begin at 3:30 o'clock, tea will be served to members and their parties who have reservations.

Miss Steedman to Be Married in June

ONE of the most interesting spring betrothals is that of Miss Katherine Steedman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Fox Steedman of 34 Westmoreland place, and Albert Pope Hinckley of New York, formerly of Boston. The formal announcement was made Friday at a luncheon given at the Steedman home for 16 close friends of the bride-to-be. Miss Steedman will become the bride of Mr. Hinckley Saturday, June 16, at Christ Church Cathedral with a reception to follow at the home of her parents.

The prospective bride made her debut several seasons ago at a dinner dance given by her parents at the St. Louis Country Club, when 10,000 candles cast their glow over the elaborate party. She was made a member of the Junior League and the Imperial Club. Miss Steedman is an expert horsewoman. She has traveled extensively and is one of the few St. Louisans who has indulged in the hunting of big game. She was educated at Mary Institute and the Foxcroft School in Virginia.

Mr. Hinckley is the son of Freeman Hinckley of Boston and the late Mrs. Hinckley. He was graduated from Harvard in 1924 and is a member of a number of New York and Boston clubs.

Miss Steedman will serve as bridesmaid at the wedding Saturday, of her cousin, Miss Eugenia Edmunds, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Sterling E. Edmunds of 33 Vandeventer place, and Alexander Burton Carver of New York.

Travel Doings Of St. Louisans Here and Abroad

MRS. WALKER HILL of the Forest Park Hotel will sail early in June for a summer in Europe.

Mr. and Mrs. William Thornburg Ravenscroft of the St. Regis Apartments and their daughter, Mrs. J. Frederick Brown of Denver, Col., and her son left Friday for Richmond, Va., to be guests of Mrs Ravenscroft's sister, Mrs. Oliver J. Sanos for 10 days. Mrs. Brown and her son will return to St. Louis for a week before departing for the West.

Mrs. Charles W. Moore of 36 Portland place has returned home from a visit of several weeks in the East, where she visited her son, Wickham Moore, who is a student at Harvard University.

Mrs. Frederick Churchill Whittemore of Hotel Chase has taken a bungalow at Santa Barbara, Cal., for the summer and will depart in June. Her daughter, Miss Edith Whittemore is visiting in the East.

Mrs. Henry Leverett Chase, formerly of Clemens avenue, who has been the guest of her daughter Mrs. Richard D'Oyly-Hughes and Capt. D'Oyly-Hughes at Abot Abad, India, will pass the summer traveling in Europe. Capt. and Mrs. D'Oyly-Hughes will visit St. Louis next spring. Mrs. D'Oyly-Hughes was before her marriage Miss Frances Chase.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph W. Lewis of 12 Hortense place and their daughter, Miss Emily Lewis, and their son, Joseph Lewis Jr., will sail June 1 for a summer in Europe. Miss Lewis, who is a freshman at Bryn Mawr College, will join her family in New York.

Miss Elizabeth Grayson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Grayson of 4337 McPherson avenue, and Miss Grayson's guest, Miss Barbara Tallerman of London, have returned from a visit in New York. Miss Tallerman will be the guest of Miss Mary Scudder Bond of 17 Westmoreland place until she sails June 8 for her home.

Miss Roccena Baldwin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. L. Warrington Baldwin of 23 Westmoreland place, has returned from Baltimore, Md., where she has been the guest of relatives for a month.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert L. Hedges of 4540 Lindell boulevard have returned from a spring cruise of the Mediterranean.

Miss Isabelle Robert, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Douglas W. Robert, of 5240 Washington boulevard, has returned home from a visit with her sister, Miss Elizabeth Robert, who has made her home for the winter in New York, and Mrs. Robert Austin of Hopedale, Mass., a former classmate at college. HOW CAN I DO IT?
Volume of business, small profits, conservative overhead. I simply must get volume of business to maintain above price. Continue to patronize me and I will give you the best permanent for the least amount. My Shop is equipped with standard make machines. I use best quality material and I give the following waves:
No waiting with or without appointments. Open evenings until 9 P. M. Sunday by appointment.
Large deep marcel or round curl—with or without ringlet ends. True oil and steam process. My method leaves no KINK or FRIZ.
I employ thoroughly trained white men and women operators with no less than five years experience. This assures you of just the type of permanent which is most suited to the individual requirements of your hair. The result is as real as a natural wave.
Each operator carries a permanent through from start to finish. This guarantees you a perfect wave—because no two operators wrap hair alike—(same as no two individuals write alike). Permanent waving is my specialty—I positively guarantee every wave.
ALL MODERN METHODS—Come in now and get one of my beautiful permanents—you will be thrilled and delighted beyond measure! Call, phone or write for an appointment.

Why risk body odor....
when this purifying toilet soap keeps you fresh?

So that's why she's so unpopular
There's no hiding body odor. It gives us away every time and prejudices people against us. Who can afford to take chances?

PERHAPS you do feel safe from body odor. But take no chances on it.
Remember that we all must perspire to live. Even on cool days, our millions of pores continually give off invisible perspiration—often as much as a quart of odor-causing waste every 24 hours.
And when we're guilty, we don't know it—others do! For once an odor becomes familiar to us, our own sense of smell becomes deadened to it.
So don't risk this unpardonable offense, wash and bathe often with the delightful toilet soap that millions enjoy—Lifebuoy—it deodorizes.
The same bland and abundant antiseptic lather that helps protect health by removing germs—that's so wonderful for complexions—also prevents body odor by purifying pores.
Like millions of others, you'll learn to love Lifebuoy's pleasant clean scent, which tells you Lifebuoy purifies, yet which quickly evaporates after rinsing. Use Lifebuoy a week and you'll use it for life. Get some today.

Try Lifebuoy Free
To try this delightful toilet soap without cost, just send us your name and address. By return mail, you will receive two full-size cakes of Lifebuoy free. Write to Lever Bros. Co., Dept. L 68, Cambridge, Mass.

One dance with him .... enough!
A wonderful dancer.... good-looking, too.... YET.... so careless! She could never dance with him again—and she couldn't tell him why.

BLONDES are attractive IF they really are blondes! But if their hair is flat and lifeless—if it is beginning to fade or darken in streaks—it is certainly far from attractive.

Thousands of blondes keep their hair beautifully golden with Blondex, the new shampoo for blondes only. See how it brings back the true golden color—how it brightens the hair and prevents fading and darkening. Not a dye—no harsh chemicals—it's fine for the scalp. Over a million users. At all good drug and department stores.

Children Had Itchy Eczema

Very Red and Inflamed. Healed by Cuticura.

"My children were troubled with eczema which affected their heads and faces. It first appeared very red and inflamed, and then water blisters broke out. It itched and burned causing intense suffering. They did not get their rest at night on account of the irritation.

"I tried other remedies but they did not seem to have any effect. I began using Cuticura Soap and Ointment and in two months they were completely healed, after using four cakes of Cuticura Soap and three boxes of Cuticura Ointment. (Signed) Mrs. Frances Uphoff, Cottage Grove, Wis.

Gives Your Hair Unusual Beauty

The attractiveness of even the most beautiful women depends upon the loveliness of their hair.

Fortunately, beautiful hair is now easily obtained. It is simply a matter of shampooing.

Proper shampooing makes the hair soft and silky. It brings out all the real life and lustre, all the natural wave and color, and leaves it fresh looking, glossy and bright.

While your hair must have frequent and regular washing to keep it beautiful, it cannot stand the harsh effect of ordinary soaps. The free alkali in ordinary soaps soon dries the scalp, makes the hair brittle and ruins it.

That is why discriminating women, everywhere, now use Mulsified Cocoanut Oil Shampoo. This clear, pure and entirely greaseless product brings out all the real beauty of the hair and cannot possibly injure.

Two or three teaspoonfuls of Mulsified is all that is required. It makes an abundance of rich, creamy lather which cleanses thoroughly and rinses out easily, removing every particle of dust, dirt and dandruff.

It leaves the hair soft, silky and easy to manage and makes it fairly sparkle with new life, gloss and lustre.

You can get Mulsified Cocoanut Oil Shampoo at any drug store.

A four-ounce bottle lasts for months.

Head of Daughters of Isabella in City

MRS. MARY E. BOOTH, national president of the Daughters of Isabella is a visitor in St. Louis in attendance at the annual meeting of the Missouri Daughters of Isabella which was in session yesterday at the Hotel Chase. Mrs. Booth arrived from New Haven, Conn., Friday. That evening she was the guest of honor at a dinner given at the Missouri Athletic Association when Mrs. E. P. Voll, State Regent of the Daughters of Isabella and Mrs. Agnes L. Gleason, regent of Bailey Circle were the hostesses. The annual luncheon of the Daughters was given yesterday noon at Hotel Chase. Yesterday evening the six St. Louis Circles of the Daughters of Isabella, Bailey, Duschene, Baret, Rosati, University City and De Sota gave a reception in Mrs. Booth's honor at the City Club from 8 to 10 p. m. when each of the participating circles participated contributed an entertainment act to the entertainment program. The De Sota Drum Corps .Mrs. Frank Goodwin, conductor, furnished the music.

Mrs. Gleason is chairman of arrangements for the convention and its accompanying entertainments. This morning Mrs. Booth was guest at breakfast at Rosati Circle and the Past Regents' Club will entertain her at dinner at Sunset Hill Country Club at 6:30 p. m. after an automobile tour of St. Louis city and county. Tomorrow Mrs. Booth will be the guest of the East St. Louis Daughters of Isabella. She will return East Tuesday at the close of Bailey Circle's mother and daughter party Tuesday evening at Knights of Columbus Hall.

Jefferson Barracks

Corps Area Headquarters, Chicago, is on temporary duty at Jefferson Barracks.

To Obtain a Natural Beautiful Complexion

To remove the discolored and faded outer layer of your skin and restore its natural beauty, use daily a little pure mercolized wax. This preparation, obtainable at any drug store, when applied as directed, gently absorbs the outer cuticle with all such blemishes as pimples, freckles or dry, withered skin. The new complexion is clear, soft and smooth, with the natural beauty of a young girl. Mercolized wax brings out the hidden beauty. To quickly remove wrinkles and other age lines, use as face lotion 1 ounce powdered saxolite and 1 half pint witch hazel.

Kirkwood

Mrs. Lorraine F. Jones of Ivy Lodge expects to depart the last of May for the East, where she will spend a short while with her daughter, Mrs. John Pitman of New York, and will then go down to Virginia where she will be present at the graduating exercises of Sweet Briar College, Sweet Briar, Va., of which her granddaughter, Miss Elizabeth Jones, is a member. Mrs. Jones, will also be the guest of another daughter, Mrs. Benjamin O'Fallon Randolph of Millwood, Va., before returning home.

Miss Florence Blase of West Monroe avenue has returned from a two months' visit with relatives and friends in Los Angeles and San Diego, Cal.

The annual flower show of Kirkwood will be held Saturday afternoon, May 26. One of the novel competitions will be a "Shadow Box," portraying a living picture of an arrangement of flowers or fruit or a combination of both, combined with other colorful objects known by artists as still-life study. Mrs. Marshall McCarthy is in charge of arrangements.

Mrs. George D. Alter has returned from a three weeks' stay in Long View, Wash., where she was the guest of her daughter, Mrs. A. E. Paulson.

Mr. and Mrs. Gardner Stubbs and children have moved into their new home at 118 West Washington avenue.

A Japanese garden party will be given Saturday evening, May 19, on the lawn of "Eagle's Nest," by the pupils of Ienov Hall. An operatta, "Princess Chrysanthemum," will be given under the direction of Mrs. Jane Holman, with the dancing under the direction of Miss Beatrice Prater. Miss Margaret Bishop will sing the role of the "Princess." Miss Ruth Ridgeway will take the part of the high and mighty Emperor .What-Fir-Whi. Others taking part in the production are Miss Dorothy Ball, Miss Estelle Koplar, Miss Marcella Brockman, Miss Thelma Smith, Miss Katherine Bright, Miss Virginia Holman, Miss Josephine Davis, Miss Isabelle Weidmar, Miss Beatrice Prater, Miss Evelyn Becker, Miss Helen Blood, Miss Mary Jane Moore and Miss Mary Virginia Stoecker.

Mr. and Mrs. Roland H. Kahle of Rott road have had as their guests during the past week Dr. and Mrs. Hugo Haupt of Bantzen, Germany.

Mrs. J. H. Brandau of Maple avenue was the hostess at an informal bridge party Saturday afternoon, May 5.

Mrs. Arthur Ambler has returned from Kansas City, where she went as a delegate to the Needlework Guild state convention.

Miss Helen Clayton was the hostess at a bridge luncheon Saturday afternoon May 12.

The pupils of the Ursuline Convent will present a program in commemoration of Mothers Day Sunday afternoon, May 13, that includes a short play entitled "Sense and Sentiment" under the direction of Miss Rosalie Fehlig. Those taking part are Miss Martha Austin, Miss Ruth Meyer, Miss Margaret Comstock, Miss Catherine Senne, Miss Loras May Walsh, Elizabeth Sander, Miss Olivette Denis, Miss Elsa Martin and Miss Marguerite Dunn. A musical program will follow the play.

Bob MacDonald, Pres. Glen Eagles

Absolute Ownership of EAGLE RIVER, Wis. Summer Home including equity and life membership in Glen Eagles Golf Club permanently solves the vacation problem

This co-operative summer-home colony, limited to 300 membership units, located at spring-fed Big Bass Lake, six miles east of the thriving little city of Eagle River among the big pines of northern Wisconsin —America's most beautiful playground—offers every opportunity for your summer fun and relaxation.

The Glen Eagles plan was conceived and is being developed by a group of Chicago business men owning summer homes there, which is an assurance that Glen Eagles will be conducted on a high plane and that membership units will be allotted only to those whose qualifications are approved by the founders.

The golf course was laid out by Robert G. "Bob" MacDonald, famous golf pro and President of Glen Eagles. Fishing, swimming and other sports amply provided for. The spacious modern Club House shown below will be built on an elevation commanding a view for miles around. Altitudes ranging from 1500 to 1700 feet feature this country, noted for its pure air and invigorating climate.

The summer cottages that are a part of a Glen Eagles co-operative membership unit, built on lots not less than 75 feet x 100 feet, will be strictly modern, containing four rooms, bath, fire-place, running water and electricity.

Prices of units are $2000 to $2500, governed by size of lots and their proximity to the Club House. Annual fee of $25.00 for maintenance.

If desired, purchasers from this city may arrange to have their cottages grouped together.

PROBLEM OF FIVE-C PLUNGES NEW YOR DEEP INTO FIELD

Controversy Shows How C Caution in Making Cont Fare on New Routes

By CHARLES G. R
Chief Washington Correspondent o

NEW YORK, May 12.—That perenni the five-cent fare—has been brought to a action of a Federal Statutory Court in the Interborough Rapid Transit Co. for a final determination of its suit. From appealed to the United States Supreme C hear the case on Monday.

Such, in very brief outline, is the p which the politicians have reduced to a h no solution even remotely in sight.

One of the common arguments against municipal ownership of public utilities is that it puts them into politics. Without intending to write a brief for municipal ownership, the writer suggests that New York's experience furnishes a ready answer to that argument. The traction lines there are privately operated, and they are as deep in politics as it is conceivable for any municipal enterprise to be.

Nickel Fare a Shibboleth.

To unravel the relationships between the traction problem and politics would take a volume. A few outstanding facts must suffice for this article. The five-cent fare on the subways, the elevated and the surface lines, and especially on the subways, has become a shibboleth in politics. It is a shibboleth used both by those who believe in the fare and those who in their hearts believe that the fare ought to be increased, but are afraid to say so.

Former Mayor John F. Hylan got a second term on the issue. The response to his demand for maintenance of the cheap fare was so pronounced as to frighten Tammany leaders, whatever their real views might be, into standing for it. When Jimmy Walker, backed by Gov. Smith, ran against Hylan in the primary of 1925, Walker, too, came out for the five-cent fare, declaring that he would rather cut off his right arm than see it abolished. The fare in that way was eliminated as an issue, "Hylanism" came to an end and the dancing Mayor was installed.

Court Rules Adversely.

Unfortunately for Walker, the Statutory Court decided that the fare was confiscatory within the meaning of the Federal Constitution and would have to be increased. Immediately the Mayor, who had pursued a policy of drift, sprang into characteristic action. With a flourish of trumpets, he jumped aboard a train and rushed down to Washington. He, Jimmy Walker, friend of the subway riders, would take their case to the highest court in the land and see that they got justice!

It was a spectacular but altogether useless gesture. What was done by the United States Supreme Court, which suspended the application for new rate pending the city's appeal for a stay, would have done anyway. Prosaic lawyers working in the usual way made the obvious motions and got the obvious results. But Jimmy was able to come back to New York with the air of a conquering hero, and doubtless a great many of the subway riders thought that he was.

The seven-cent decision of the Statutory Court, which is a Federal Court of three judges set up especially to pass upon this rate case, has brought Hylan back prominently into the picture as the champion of the five-cent fare. He is issuing vivid statements charging Walker and Tammany with bad faith, and has indicated that he will run again for Mayor.

Walker and Hylan Argue.

Walker declared in a counterblast that Hylan was a "political carrion crow" trying to make a full meal off the fare issue. To

PROBLEM OF FIVE-CENT FARE PLUNGES NEW YORK SUBWAYS DEEP INTO FIELD OF POLITICS

Controversy Shows How Cities Should Use Caution in Making Contracts—8-Cent Fare on New Routes Expected.

By CHARLES G. ROSS,
Chief Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, May 12.—That perennial New York City issue—the five-cent fare—has been brought to a stormy crisis by the recent action of a Federal Statutory Court in granting the application of the Interborough Rapid Transit Co. for a seven-cent fare, pending a final determination of its suit. From this decision the city has appealed to the United States Supreme Court, which will begin to hear the case on Monday.

Such, in very brief outline, is the present status of a problem which the politicians have reduced to a hopeless muddle. There is no solution even remotely in sight.

One of the common arguments against municipal ownership of public utilities is that it puts them into politics. Without intending to write a brief for municipal ownership, the writer suggests that New York's experience furnishes a ready answer to that argument. The traction lines there are privately operated, and they are as deep in politics as it is conceivable for any municipal enterprise to be.

Nickel Fare a Shibboleth.

To unravel the relationships between the traction problem and politics would take a volume. A few outstanding facts must suffice for this article. The five-cent fare on the subways, the elevated and the surface lines, and especially on the subways, has become a shibboleth in politics. It is a shibboleth used both by those who believe in the fare and those who in their hearts believe that the fare ought to be increased, but are afraid to say so.

Former Mayor John F. Hylan got a second term on the issue. The response to his demand for maintenance of the cheap fare was so pronounced as to frighten Tammany leaders, whatever their real views might be, into standing for it. When Jimmy Walker, backed by Gov. Smith, ran against Hylan in the primary of 1925, Walker, too, came out for the five-cent fare, declaring that he would rather cut off his right arm than see it abolished. The fare in that way was eliminated as an issue, "Hylanism" came to an end and the dancing Mayor was installed.

Court Rules Adversely.

Unfortunately for Walker, the Statutory Court decided that the fare was confiscatory within the meaning of the Federal Constitution and would have to be increased. Immediately the Mayor, who had pursued a policy of drift, sprang into characteristic action. With a flourish of trumpets, he jumped aboard a train and rushed down to Washington. He, Jimmy Walker, friend of the subway riders, would take their case to the highest court in the land and see that they got justice!

It was a spectacular but altogether useless gesture. What was done by the United States Supreme Court, which suspended the application for new rate pending the city's appeal for a stay, would have done anyway. Prosaic lawyers working in the usual way made the obvious motions and got the obvious results. But Jimmy was able to come back to New York with the air of a conquering hero, and doubtless a great many of the subway riders thought that he was.

The seven-cent decision of the Statutory Court, which is a Federal Court of three judges set up especially to pass upon this rate case, has brought Hylan back prominently into the picture as the champion of the five-cent fare. He is issuing vivid statements charging Walker and Tammany with bad faith, and has indicated that he will run again for Mayor.

Walker and Hylan Argue.

Walker declared in a counterblast that Hylan was a "political carrion crow" trying to make a full meal off the fare issue. To this Hylan retorted that if Walker "Would spend more time at City Hall looking after the protection of the people from an increased car fare and less time in the greenrooms of theaters and in night clubs, he might be better qualified to talk about his predecessor in office."

Some time ago Walker announced that he would not run again for Mayor. Now he says that he will enter the race to prove his sincerity as an advocate of the five-cent fare.

Gov. Smith, on the surface at least, is keeping out of the fight. With the Governor, the issue is now more than ever a hot potato. He has been accused—if that is the word—of favoring an increase in the fare, but on the other hand it is of record that in his administrations at Albany he has stood by everything that the city has asked for in its fight to preserve the fare.

Socialist leaders in New York accuse Tammany of double dealing. "Tammany," according to Norman Thomas, the Socialist nominee for President, "has sought to keep the five-cent fare issue alive to fool the people while giving its friends, the stock gamblers, the opportunity to get a seven-cent or nine-cent fare through the courts." Morris Hillquit, another leader of the party, has announced that the Socialists in the next mayoralty campaign will make a straight-out fight for municipal ownership and operation of the whole transit system.

Virtual City Subsidy.

As a matter of fact, New York is now paying more than a five-cent fare, but is doing so indirectly. It is paying, in effect, a subsidy of $13,500,000 a year, which is the interest charged on city bonds that went into the building of the subway lines and on which it receives no return.

In the last analysis, the problem, assuming that the traction lines cannot be made self-sustaining on a five-cent fare, is whether the amount needed to make them self-sustaining shall continue to be collected in part from the taxpayers or shall be collected directly from the users of the lines.

In other words, the problem is whether the furnishing of transportation shall be regarded as a city function comparable to the maintenance of a police system, a fire Department and the parks. There are those who stoutly maintain that it should be. They point in support of this theory to the convenience of the five-cent fare and to the general good that accrues to the city from cheap transportation.

On the other hand, it is argued that a large percentage of the users of the New York traction lines are commuters who pay no taxes in the city. Is it fair, it is asked, to make New Yorkers dig into their pockets to pay a part of the fares of these outsiders?

Untermyer Has Plan.

The arguments cited thus far are based on the assumption that the five-cent fare is unprofitable. Apparently it is, but Samuel Untermyer, the public-spirited attorney who is acting as counsel without pay for the State Transit

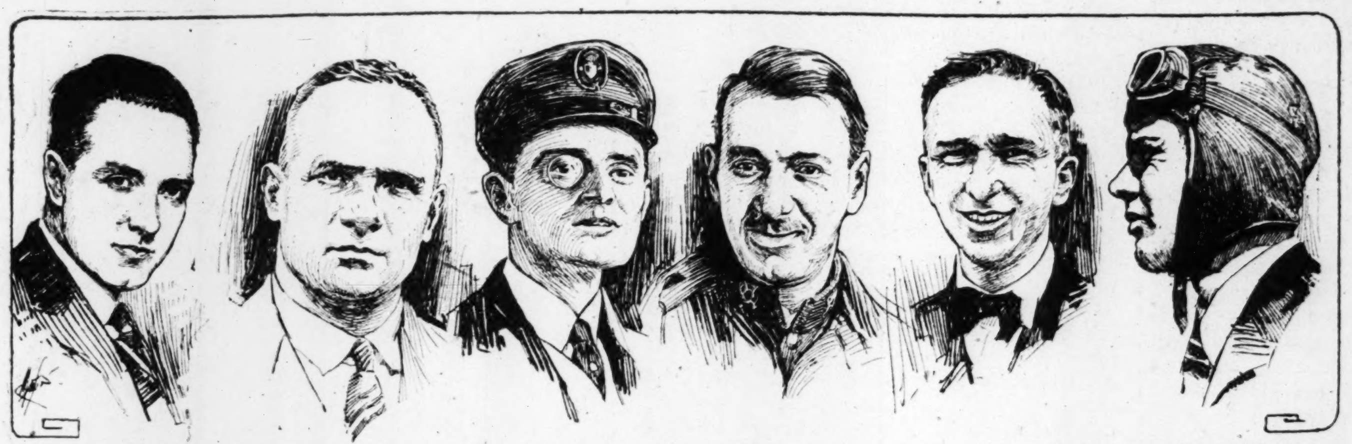
"My Most Exciting Moment" Described By Six World-Famous Ocean Flyers



COMM. BYRD CAPT KOEHL BARON VON HUENEFELD MAJ FITZMAURICE CLARENCE CHAMBERLIN COL. LINDBERGH

GREAT thrills of great airmen vary as markedly as the personalities of the flyers themselves. Byrd, first flyer to wing over the North Pole, had his greatest, and most fearful thrill, on discovering an oil leak in the monoplane Josephine Ford when traveling above the ice-wastes at the top of the world.

Chamberlin, whose non-stop flight from New York to Germany is still the world's record for distance, says the most exciting moments in his ten years of flying came when Levine, his companion in the ocean-crossing Bellanca plane, let go the controls, and the wild ship fell 17,000 feet in an uncontrollable, dizzying spiral.

Lindbergh's greatest thrill was not bound up with parachute jumping as one might expect, but came when he looked upon that assembled multitude at Le Bourget, after he had hopped the Atlantic, and knew he had reached his goal.

Koehl and Fitzmaurice—pilots of the Junkers plane that lately crossed the Atlantic from east to west—had their greatest thrill when they saw Greenly Island and realized they were above North American soil. Baron von Huenefeld got his greatest thrill, not in the air at all, but when he met Lindbergh.

The recent meeting of these men recalls that they have described their greatest thrills in their own words—some of them in books, others in interviews. Of the lot, the coolest story of "air thrill" comes from Lindbergh, and the most exciting from Commander Richard E. Byrd.

Byrd Discovered Oil Leak as He Was Nearing North Pole.

Byrd had been in planes that caught fire in flight, that collided in mid-air, that crashed into the unyielding earth or the sea, but the memory of that slowly oozing hoard of oil—threatening failure and disaster in the Arctic wastes—ranks all his other recollections of danger and thrill.

The naval flyer discovered the oil leak when his plane was about 90 miles from his objective—the ice-capped top of the world. He quickly scratched a note and passed it to Floyd Bennett, his flight-companion, who lately died of pneumonia. Bennett inspected the leak closely.

Bennett thought an immediate landing was necessary. He feared the engine would freeze for lack of oil, stranding them on the ice. Byrd however was willing to chance the loss of one engine, depending on his port and center Wright whirlwinds.

"We would have been little if any worse off at our goal than 100 or 200 miles south of it," Byrd explains. "And we were determined at least to reach the North Pole at any cost. I knew our chances were slim if we were forced down anywhere in that region and could not get up again—that it would take two years to get back if we were able to make it at all and that our only hope would be to strike out across the ice for Etah on the northernmost tip of Greenland."

Not a Leak After All, Only a Missing Rivet.

Byrd stuck to his decision not to land, and the oil-smeared motor went on running smoothly, to the astonishment of both men. They reached the Pole less than an hour after discovering the leak, circled about it, took their observations. All the while, says Byrd, in the back of their minds, were the expectations that the starboard motor would cough suddenly and stop and the hope that it wouldn't.

Still dubious as to that oil-dripping motor, they turned and headed back, and still the threatening motor purred smoothly. Hour succeeded hour and finally they sighted land. Their position was decidedly improved, in the event of a stalled power-plant and the tension slacked a bit. Yet both Byrd and Bennett eyed the starboard engine in apprehension. They flew on and on. At last they sighted their signals, circled the landing place and came down. And then both men jumped over to that oil-covered motor to have a look at it.

"It wasn't a broken oil lead, as we had believed, that caused the leak," Byrd said. "It was a rivet that had come out of the oil tank. As soon as the level of the oil reached this hole, the leak practically stopped and as we had put in a surplus of oil this motor was lubricated and functioned as well as the others.

"But it would have saved both of us gray hairs if we had known this at first, instead of having to wait until we got back and landed."

When Levine Let Go of the Bellanca's Controls

Clarence D. Chamberlin, in his book "Record Flights," tells of turning the controls of the Bellanca plane over to Charles A. Levine, its owner, on top of a cloud bank about 13,000 feet above German soil.

Chamberlin was exhausted by two days and nights of flying and he stretched out on top of the gas tank to snatch a wink of sleep. Levine, able to fly well enough in clear weather, let the plane get into the cloud-bank, and losing all sense of direction, roused Chamberlin from sleep for the most exciting moments of the flyer's life.

Chamberlin finds the experience the more memorable in that Levine apparently did not know the plane was in danger, and chuckled loudly because the Bellanca was reminding him of a bucking broncho.

Chamberlin describes as follows the few minutes that the Bellanca was out of control in that cloud-bank three miles thick:

"Off on her wing she went, nose down in a steep and dizzy spiral. The blinding mists, sweeping by, gave no hint of what was going on; something was wrong, but Levine had no idea what.

"My lethargy dissolved before the disaster facing us. Even in the time it took to slide off the tank into my seat, the Bellanca's wings had started shuddering and shimmying as if they would be ripped away from the fuselage of the sturdy little ship at any instant. Her balanced rudder, oscillating in the terrific dive, was whipping the rudder bar back and forth with leg-breaking force and shaking the rear end of the plane with such violence that I expected the whole tail to be torn off.

Plunge of 17,000 Feet in Heavy Cloud-Bank.

"Never in my life have I felt that death was so close or been so badly scared. Levine, on the contrary, was enjoying the experience hugely. When the ship got beyond his control he had shut off the motor and then taken his hands and feet off the unmanageable controls entirely. He was sitting there laughing and told me afterward he had been amused because the Columbia was behaving like a bucking broncho. It evidently never occurred to him that the next 'buck' might take us both into eternity."

Desperately tired and cold, Chamberlin "fought" the wildly plunging Columbia down through the clouds, all sense of direction gone and not knowing at what second the plane might crash into a mountain top.

The dropping altimeter passed the 100-foot mark "like the indicator of a swift elevator clicking off the floors in a great office building."

At last Chamberlin "smothered" the crazy rudder bar and by the "blind flying" instruments on the dash in front of him finally stopped the Columbia's dive and got her under control. A few seconds later the plane came through on the under side of the clouds with only 1000 feet or so to spare.

Fortunately she was over a valley instead of the cloud-wrapped hills at either side and, instead of being "smeared on an unyielding German landscape," the Columbia soon had located the Dortmund airdrome, flown low and been directed on her way to Berlin.

Lindbergh's Great Thrill Was Landing at Le Bourget.

If one is to judge by Col. Charles A. Lindbergh's book "We," this reserved and seemingly unemotional young man got the thrill of his life in those first few moments before landing at Le Bourget.

He has had a thousand stirring experiences since his memorable trans-Atlantic flight, but his landing at Le Bourget and the tumultuous reception accorded him there, coming as it did to a youth of relative obscurity whose flights heretofore had been more or less unnoticed, seems to have made the deepest impression of all.

"I first saw the lights of Paris a little before 10 p. m., or 5 p. m., New York time," he writes, "and a few minutes later I was circling the Eiffel Tower at an altitude of about 4000 feet.

"The lights of Le Bourget were plainly visible, but appeared to be very close to Paris. I had understood that the field was further from the city, so continued out to the northeast into the country for four or five miles to make sure that there was not another field further out which might be Le Bourget. Then I returned and spiraled down closer to the lights. Presently I could make out the long lines of hangars and the roads appeared to be jammed with cars.

"I flew over the field once, then circled around into the wind and landed. After the plane stopped rolling I turned it around and started to taxi back to the lights. The entire field ahead, however, was covered with thousands of people all running toward my ship.

Rescued From Crowd By Fellow Flyers' Trick.

"When the first few arrived I attempted to get them to hold the rest of the crowd back, away from the plane. But apparently no one could understand or would have been able to conform to my request if he had.

"Speaking was impossible; no words could be heard in the uproar, and nobody apparently cared to hear any. I started to climb out of the cockpit, but as soon as one foot appeared through the door I was dragged the rest of the way without assistance on my part. For nearly an hour I was unable to touch the ground, during which time I was ardently carried around in what seemed to be a very small area, and in every position it is possible to be in. Every one had the best of intentions, but no one seemed to know just what they were.

"The French flyers very resourcefully took the situation in hand. A number of them mingled with the crowd; then, at a given signal, they placed my helmet on an American correspondent and cried, 'Here is Lindbergh.' That helmet on an American was sufficient evidence. The correspondent immediately became the center of attraction, and while he was being taken, protestingly, to the Reception committee via a rather devious route, I managed to get inside one of the hangars."

By the very length at which he describes this scene—almost as much space as he devotes to his entire trans-Atlantic flight—the uncommunicative flyer reveals the lasting impression it made upon him.

Baron von Huenefeld Got His Thrill on the Ground

Not from flying across the Atlantic, buffeted by storms and blinded by fog, nor yet from the sight of human habitation on Greenly Island after the Bremen had been lost for hours did Baron Gunther von Huenefeld derive the greatest thrill of his life. All this was thrilling, certainly, but it was as nothing compared to the emotion he felt, under smiling skies and amid admiring throngs, when he first met Col. Lindbergh "face to face and spirit to spirit."

Indeed, one gathers from talking to the intense and esthetic backer of the Bremen's flight that his participation in the first non-stop airplane crossing of the Atlantic from east to west was something of a pilgrimage inspired by hero worship of Lindbergh. Perhaps it would not be too much to say that Von Huenefeld was impelled by a zealot's urge to pass through the same trials and dangers that had proved his idol.

"I met Lindbergh in Washington," he said, "and spoke to him there—only three or four words. But seeing him and speaking to him even so was the greatest thrill of my life, for I could feel his great spirit and realize the sort of man he is."

The Baron's artistic hands groped ex-

Position of Great Britain In Egypt Much Like That U. S. Occupies in Panama

Lloyd George Finds Analogy in Geographical Position and Importance of Suez Canal to Naval Strategy.

By David Lloyd George.
War-Time Premier of England.
(Copyright, 1928.)

LONDON, May 12.

BRITISH opinion is practically united behind Sir Austen Chamberlain in his handling of the Egyptian question. Extremists on the Labor side have forced their leaders to criticise, but criticism will be directed to methods and not to policy. Britain does not intend to be nagged out of Egypt.

The latest Anglo-Egyptian crisis, or rather the latest aspect of that crisis—future development of which cannot yet be foreseen with certainty—should be of great interest to the United States.

American opinion always has shown considerable interest in Egypt, due, no doubt, largely to the fascination exercised by the picturesqueness of Egyptian history but, also, I should imagine so far as contemporary history is concerned, by reason of the remarkable analogy between Great Britain's position in Egypt and that of the United States in Panama and Central America generally.

Suez Canal Like Panama.

The analogy is assuredly most striking from the geographical, from the strategical and more especially from the naval standpoint. Security of the Suez Canal, which is an essential link between Great Britain and its Eastern dominions between the Indian Ocean, the Mediterranean and home waters. is no less vital to the British Empire than the security of the Panama Canal is to the United States, whose navy under modern conditions requires swift and unfettered passage between the Atlantic and the Pacific.

It is because of this that America garrisons and is bound to continue to garrison the Panama Canal. It is on similar grounds that Great Britain garrisons and must continue to garrison the Suez Canal; until such time, at any rate, as Egypt has proved beyond peradventure its friendship for the British Empire and the will and competence to defend itself against any external aggression and thereby indirectly the canal as well.

With admitted liberality, the British Government in its negotiations some months ago with Sarwat Pasha consented through the medium of Sir Austen Chamberlain to agree that ultimate entrusting to Egypt of the task of defending the canal might be considered. But the British Foreign Secretary refused to go beyond that expression of hope and to give any firm undertaking which the present outlook would not warrant.

Parley Without Avail.

Naturally the occupation problem has tended to overshadow all others, both in the Anglo-Egyptian negotiations which terminated so unfortunately two months ago and in the eyes of the world generally. That negotiations broke down generally, owing to the impossibilities of reconciling the British standpoint with that expressed by the Egyptian extremists under Nahas Pasha is true enough. But the fact has also escaped notice that the second and most obdurate stumbling block between Lord Lloyd and the then Egyptian Premier, Sarwat Pasha, was Great Britain's insistence on adequate safeguards for protection of foreign life and property in Egypt, with special reference to the need for inclusion in the Egyptian police force of a sufficient number of British officers and officials.

Here again Great Britain showed her liberality by offering in the final instance to invite the League Council's decisions as to the numbers, status and functions of such British officials and police officers, but on the imperative necessity of their maintenance in some measure or other Sir Austen Chamberlain was absolutely adamant.

U. S. Watches Panama.

The reasons are not far to seek. Since the opening of the Panama Canal, the United States inevitably has manifested keen concern in any circumstances not only within Panama itself but within the neighboring Republics which, by leading to public disorders in that area, might provoke foreign intervention which in its turn might lead to claims by Governments of victimized foreigners to intervene actively on their behalf.

But precisely because America has claimed and is recognized by the European Powers as possessing exclusive right of armed intervention in Panama and adjoining states that nation has had, perhaps at times reluctantly, to make itself responsible for the protection of foreign life and property there. Great Britain's attitude in Egypt which is explained and justified on very similar grounds was most clearly defined in a circular to the Powers issued on the morrow of the unilateral declaration of 1922.

It was a circular note in which Great Britain in a rather more defined and clear-cut fashion announced that England and England alone would be responsible for protection of foreign interests in Egypt. Thereby Great Britain formulated a doctrine very akin to the Monroe Doctrine regarding Egypt, the Sudan and the Suez Canal.

Not a Selfish Move.

But whereas the other three reserved points; namely, the security of imperial communications, the defense of Egypt against foreign aggression and the Sudan, might in a sense be regarded as affecting only British interests, British assumption of protection of foreign interests in Egypt was by no means a selfish move.

No objection was raised to it by any Power, and it was welcomed with open enthusiasm by practically all foreign communities in Egypt, not excluding the American community.

That was not difficult to understand. That Egyptian police authorities alone were incapable of affording all necessary protection to foreigners in Egypt was to be most strikingly illustrated a little later, as indeed it had been too often illustrated in the past. When rioting broke out at Alexandria of so serious a character as to cause numerous casualties in the Greek and Italian colonies and threatening casualties to American citizens, the United States, Italian and Greek Ministers inquired of British authorities whether the latter were prepared to assume defense of the victimized or threatened foreigners.

Other Troops Ready.

It was added in all three cases that, failing British assurance on the subject, the Ministers would request warships of their respective nationalities in the harbor to land bluejackets and marines for the purpose. The required assurance was promptly forthcoming from the British High Commissioner and was warmly welcomed.

That is not surprising, for experience has shown that where is Sandino's Fate.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

THE latest report from Nicaragua is that the situation there is well under the control of the United States Marines, that the notorious rebel leader, Sandino, has split his army into numerous bands and is fleeing from the land.

To many Americans the defeat of Sandino brings a feeling of sympathy and perhaps, a touch of sorrow. The heroic struggle he made with his little band of men, for a principle, inevitably brings to the mind of many Americans the picture of a man they know and whose memory is dear to them, who fought for a principle in spite of the overwhelming odds against him, but in this case emerged victorious and was proclaimed throughout the world as a great man and loved and honored by his fellowmen who call him the Father of their country.

Sandino has lost the battle. He and his followers will not control the Nicaraguan Government. He is just another radical who fought for a principle and lost, whose ideals were frowned upon by the powers that be, and relegated to the shelf of insurrection and banditry, to serve as an example of treason and broken faith.

Whatever be the attitude of the United States Government, or any other Government to the things Sandino has done, a great many of the citizens of the United States and other countries will wish that he had won. His ideals were not "wrong," they were in discord with a stronger power. Most Americans will think it is better to have fought for a principle and lost, than to continually submit to the restraining hand of a teacher of foreign ideals. T. T.

Finds Intense Interest in Prohibition.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

IT IS laughable to read the statement of Patricius that he doubts that the subject of prohibition has a wide appeal. I am on the road, cover 17 states and interview 12 to 20 men each day, five days per week. Judging from the intense interest that 90 per cent of them have on prohibition, I sincerely believe if the question were put up squarely to the people, there would be better than 70 per cent for repeal of the eighteenth amendment. A. A. L.

Logical and Clean-Cut.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

MY attention was called today to a reprint, in the Congressional Record of May 5, of an editorial from your issue of May 2 entitled "Submit the Issue of Federal Prohibition to the People."

This editorial is one of the most logical and clean-cut presentations of the prohibition question that I have yet seen in print, and I could not resist the temptation to seize a few minutes out of a somewhat busy life to let you know how I feel about it.

Incidentally, you may be interested in knowing how I am making out as the first Republican candidate in the United States, since prohibition was adopted, to run for nomination for United States Senator on the basis of demanding repeal of the eighteenth amendment. Of course, I have no political organizations with me, the directness of my platform being too strong a dose for the politicians. Also, I have not met with the pecuniary support that I expected from men who feel as I do on the prohibition question. But I have been doing quite a lot of old-fashioned campaigning and find that not one person in every 100 I have spoken to has a good word to say for the dry cause. Apathy on the part of Republican voters toward a spring primary will be my chief obstacle. New Jersey is a very wet state and if a fair proportion of its wet Republicans vote in the primaries, I will have a good chance of making the nomination. E. W. GRAY.

The McNary-Haugen Bill.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

IN reading metropolitan editorial one cannot but notice the passive and sometimes active opposition to the McNary-Haugen farm relief bill.

These papers conclude they are in sympathy with urban views. Little do they know that the economic betterment of the farm classes would result in immediate increased sales in manufactured articles—thus in turn banishing the unemployment situation.

Great economists have declared for the bill. It is merely putting the tariff into effect for the farmer; raising him to equality with labor, railroads and industry. Stabilization of prices on farm products will stop speculation and excess handling charges.

Retail prices of food would be almost identical and in some cases less than they are now. The only difference will be that the profits will go to the farm, rather than to the speculative element. The latter element embodies the great opposition to the McNary-Haugen principle. READER.

ARBITRATION THE LAST RESORT.

Mayor Miller's call for a conference between the officials of the Public Service Company and the employes, to avert a strike is a step in the right direction. If this and other efforts for a peaceful settlement fail, arbitration will be imperative.

Not only the interest of the company and the interest of the employes urge arbitration of the wage dispute between the Public Service Co., and its employes, but there is a third interest, even greater than that of the company and its employes in the dispute. This is the interest of the public, the masses of the population, which use the street cars and the general interest, the welfare of which is dependent upon continuous good service.

Experience has proved that both the company and the employes suffer tremendous losses in a strike. It is difficult to estimate the disastrous consequences that may follow a bitter warfare between the company and its employes. Experience has proved that great hardships and losses are imposed upon all those who are dependent upon street car transportation, and that the consequences are disastrous to the whole city.

When strikes follow disputes, not only is there a cessation or great impairment of service, but the employment of new men, mostly unskilled in the handling of cars, causes not only bad service but damaging accidents. When disorders accompany a strike, lives and property are menaced.

If there is any interest in which disputes between employers and employes should be referred to arbitration to avoid strikes, it is the transportation interest. Transportation companies are specially chartered and privileged to serve the public. They are under obligation to maintain continuous good service. For this purpose they are given special privileges and are put under regulation, provided with the twofold object of giving good service and reaping fair returns to assure operating expenses and profits.

In urging arbitration the Post-Dispatch suggests the Public Service Commission because it is charged with the duty of regulating street car service and fixing fares. It is familiar with the conditions existing in the Public Service Company. It can determine the question of wages, and can fix fares at a point which will meet what the Commission considers to be the demands of fair wages.

We are mindful of the example of Rolla Wells, when, after undertaking the receivership of the United Railways in 1919 he was confronted by a demand for increased wage rates. Receiver Wells told the employes that complete compliance with their demands would require an increase of two or three cents to the existing six-cent carfare, and that because the Public Service Commission was the only authority that could grant an increase, and was authorized under the law to act as an arbitrator in any dispute affecting the utility, he thought the dispute should be referred to the commission. The employes accepted the suggestion. The commission rendered a decision granting part of the increase demanded, and raised the fare to eight cents, with two tokens for 15 cents. The increase in fare provided so much revenue over the needs of the company, that it was reduced to seven cents within a year.

The law creating the Public Service Commission was framed in anticipation of just such a situation as exists now in St. Louis. It authorized the commission to arbitrate disputes of this kind, and to make the fares conform to the needs of the company and the employes. The commission is the logical arbitrator.

The Post-Dispatch, however, is not bound to arbitration by the commission. If any other arbitrators are preferable, let them be chosen by the company and the employes. We insist, however, that the dispute should be arbitrated. That is the generally adopted method of settling labor disputes. It is practically imperative in disputes affecting public utilities.

We believe that we voice the general sentiment of the people of St. Louis when we insist upon arbitration and the avoidance of disastrous warfare. We believe that a refusal to arbitrate on the part of either side to the dispute will invite general condemnation.

DECENCY SHOWS GAINS IN ILLINOIS.

Decency continues to show gains in Illinois. The Illinois Conference of Congregational Churches, in session at Peoria, has refused to indorse the Anti-Saloon League in that State because of its political activities.

It will be recalled that the Illinois Anti-Saloon League indorsed and supported Frank L. Smith after exposure of the methods by which he was nominated. The United States Senate refused to admit him, and the people of Illinois have subsequently indorsed the Senate by refusing to renominate him.

But it has remained for the Congregationalists, a considerable denomination in Illinois, to pass judgment upon the Anti-Saloon League. The tradition of decency which the Congregationalists brought from New England is still too powerful for the denomination to stomach the political practices of an organization which preaches goodness upon the one hand while brazenly practicing corruption upon the other.

FRATERNITY MEN IN POLITICS.

If there were any secret and gnawing doubts as to the eventual triumph of democracy, Will Durant to the contrary, they may be cast aside with hallelujahs. Chester W. Cleveland, editor of the Magazine of Sigma Chi, has disclosed the portentous fact that neither of the two leading candidates for the presidential nomination, Al Smith or Herbert Hoover, is a fraternity man. As far as the hero of the Sidewalks of New York goes, this was no great surprise. It seems that Al has heard the "Sweetheart of Sigma Chi" over the radio, but has had no closer contact with the campus aristocracy.

Hoover waited on table at the Kappa Kappa Gamma house at Stanford, and all the Kappas found it rather embarrassing when one of their own sorority members fell in love with and later married this waiter. "Their actions and the attitude of the Stanford fraternity men toward him are responsible, undoubtedly, for his feeling of hostility toward the college fraternity system," Mr. Cleveland succinctly notes.

But far more significant is the editor's further revelation that President Coolidge and Harry F. Sinclair are brothers in the bond in good old Phi Gamma Delta. That, we claim, is a factor that all the political prophets have overlooked. But there are still hopeful hearts on the campus, for among the candidates who are still in the running Dawes is a member of Delta Upsilon and both Lowden and Borah are Betas.

THE MISSISSIPPI'S EPIC.

The flood-control bill, on which the President and Congress have reached an agreement, properly places the burden of the work on the Federal Government. It calls for an appropriation of $325,000,000. Of this sum $111,000,000 will be expended on revetments and channel improvements. The remainder will be applied to flood control.

A vital feature, to which Senator Hawes of Missouri has directed attention is the $10,000,000 provided for "adequate and complete surveys and estimates for bringing them under control in the matter of flood control. There is an additional provision for an extensive study and report upon the subject of reservoirs and for the impounding of the waters of these tributaries." Hawes stresses the fact that, in this action, the tributaries are recognized for the first time.

Since this bill commits the Government at last to solving the problem of flood control on an adequate scale, the tributaries are necessarily included in the prospectus. The first reaction in the public mind to the project is its magnitude. It is a tremendous enterprise, "the greatest program of its kind ever undertaken by the American people." What it will mean when successfully accomplished grips the imagination.

It will mean the realization of a dream for which the Post-Dispatch has been fighting for more than a quarter of a century, namely, a great inland waterway transportation system which will substantially serve every industrial and commercial interest in the whole continent, but especially the Mississippi Valley.

The future of the Mississippi and its tributaries is, we believe, assured. The term flood control is, in a way, a misnomer. Certainly, the disastrous recurrence of the Mississippi floods must be stopped. But such prevention is only a phase of this great project, which is primarily constructive and incidentally preventive. Along with the curbing of floods will come solution of low water, which has intermittently disabled the river. We shall have a stabilized Mississippi, with the consummation of this engineering project; a river navigable, operative and operating 365 days a year. Many of the tributaries, too, will, under the magic of control, be feeders to the parent stream. We shall have the equivalent of thousands of miles of railroads carrying the products of farm and factory at cheap rates, stimulating all the business activities of the valley, creating a new and larger prosperity, in which country and city will share.

The flood-control bill is the prelude to the Mississippi's epic.

THE CONVENTIONS.

The Republican national convention will open at Kansas City June 12, and the Democratic national convention will follow at Houston June 26.

Thus do the great political parties play politics with the country. The Republicans are afraid of the farmers, so they pitch their convention into the midst of the winter wheat harvest, when the people who threaten to bolt the party are cashing in their grain and are therefore less given to violence than at any other time. If the gods are kind and wheat goes to a good price—it is now around $1.50, enough to have wrecked the French Revolution—the Northwest will ask forgiveness and be as enthusiastic about Republicanism as it ever was. This is what happened when La Follette headed a third ticket in 1924. The farmers had no more than thrown up their hats for La Follette when wheat went to $1.60. They voted for Coolidge.

The Democrats are going to Houston to conciliate the dry and Protestant South. At the celebrated battle of Madison Square Garden the pet aversion of the Smith people was the Texas delegation. The galleries yelled themselves hoarse demanding that the Texas delegation be thrown out. When it defiantly cast its regular vote of 40 for McAdoo the groans, cat calls, hisses, epithets, etc., could be heard in Brooklyn. There was only one thing to do about a state of affairs like that, and the Democrats did it. They will meet in Houston.

It is not always that the conventions are so strategically located, but this is not an ordinary presidential campaign.

THE PROPRIETIES AT WEDDINGS.

Spring is here, June approaches and holy matrimony becomes the business of the hour. The principals take the wedding ceremony merrily—they do now, at least—their parents take it sentimentally; the guests look up it lightly, sometimes humorously and, on occasion, flippantly. But there is one man in this green world who takes it seriously, and he is the vicar of St. Philip's Church in London.

St. Philip's, in the Battersea district, where cockney is in order, has announced through the vicar's magazine a few don'ts: "Don't rush at the bride when she joins you at the chancel steps and shake hands with her. Don't repeat 'God's holy audience' to the rector's 'God's holy ordinance.' Some of the audiences the vicar has seen at recent weddings could not by any stretch of imagination be called holy. Don't drink before the ceremony. Don't say 'trough' for 'troth.'"

Of course, there's no real harm in mistaking ordinance for audience; the audience often is what the fluttering bride and groom have on their minds, and we suppose a marriage can be quite as successful with one word as with the other. A groom shaking hands with his bride is merely an indication of affection; many a poor fellow never would have the nerve to go to the altar without a finger of brandy for a stiffener, and trough is good enough cockney for troth. But the vicar is right. Correct speech and proper conduct should begin in June. And if they are continued through December, then London, and the rest of England, and America, too, could scrap a few divorce courts.

THE MECHANICAL AGE.

France and Germany

Trade Agreement Between the Two Nations Is Keystone in the Arch of France's Economic Doctrine; Great Britain Should Adapt Its Political Conceptions to New Circumstances.

JACQUES SEYBOUX in The London Times.
Reprinted From The Living Age.

THE Franco-British combination neither led nor reconstructed Europe as it might have done; it allowed an unparalleled opportunity to pass, and in history opportunities come but once. Its turn is gone: the re-entry of Germany into the political arena has changed the whole position.

The truth is that Great Britain knew that Germany would recover some day, and did her best to help her in this task. The weight of reparations which had seemed about to crush Germany did not prevent her, once it had been lightened by the Dawes plan, from making an economic and financial recovery which surprised the most wary experts. Germany soon appeared to Great Britain not so much a customer as a rival. British industry, with its old equipment, which manufactures at an excessive price, cannot compete with the entirely reconstructed German factories. It was impossible to save both finance and industry. Great Britain saved her finance, for hers is a trading organization which must preserve its credit on a high level. Germany sacrificed her finance, but experience has taught us that finance recovers more quickly than industry.

DURING a visit to London in 1924 the writer drew the attention of certain high British officials to this position. He pointed out the danger to Great Britain, and deplored the fact that she had not seen fit to restore French before German finances. But he also maintained that France would be forced to come to an economic understanding with Germany. The occupation of the Ruhr had proved that France and Germany had more to gain from an understanding than from hostilities, and if that situation had been prolonged an entente between Paris and Berlin would have been imposed by the force of events. French industry was entirely reconstructed. Germany, who had sought to destroy it during the war, now felt for it the respect which a strong competitor inspires. On both sides an attempt was made, not only to resume, but to extend the conventions which were begun before the war. The industries of the two countries had so many points in common that an attempt at joint action was inevitable; both needed external markets, and when trade negotiations were opened between France and Germany, in October, 1924, the German delegates showed how anxious they were to follow the rational and practical path of industrial understanding. We are still only at the beginning of this path, but the advantages of the first agreements are such that attempts are being made every day to extend them and to create others. What has been done with steel, with [illegible], with potash, is being applied to chemical products, and may be done tomorrow with electrical equipment. Further, the trade agreement signed by two countries immediately raised the level of their exchanges, and French exports to Germany increased by 2,000,000,000 francs in 1927.

THE importance of this agreement is considerable, for it has determined the economic doctrine of France. The new tariff rates depend on it; they are modeled upon the needs of Franco-German trade. The changes which are being made in the Franco-Swiss and Franco-Belgian agreements, and which will shortly be necessary in the Franco-British arrangement, are based on the principles laid down in the Franco-German convention. This is a phenomenon of unusual importance, since it means that Franco-German trade relations dominate the whole French economic system.

The considerable influence of deliveries in kind on the relations of the two countries must not be forgotten. At first such deliveries were viewed with disfavor by both parties; at present they are sought and desired, since they provide additional employment and exports for Germany, and place within the reach of France a degree of industrial equipment which her own means would not allow. To secure this result discussions and understandings are necessary; bonds are forged and strengthened, and the two trade systems learn, every day, to work together.

Whether this tendency be for good or evil is not the question; it is a fact; and there is another, not less important, which we must recognize: France has restored her financial position by her own efforts. She has done this without applying rigid formulas, like Great Britain, without calling for foreign help and compassing her own ruin, like Germany. She has gone to work empirically, and with her own resources. The Paris market is gaining strength, money is plentiful, and only the pressure of taxation makes the placing of foreign loans more difficult in Paris than in London. This reconstruction has turned the rather disdainful pity of the great foreign centers to respect. The New York market is open to us, and the presence at the Bank of France of men who, like M. Rist and M. Quesnay, have a wide knowledge of foreign financial questions gives added strength to an unprecedented position.

FRANCE and Germany cannot do without Great Britain; but Great Britain needs them both. The peace of Europe and of the world demands that any Franco-German entente on the economic plane should have as its corollary a still closer entente between France and Great Britain; for, if France desires to be on good terms with Germany, she desires to be on still better terms—on better terms than ever—with Great Britain. It must no longer be possible to read in the German press such statements as this:

"There is still an unbridgeable gulf between the British and French points of view."

That was bad enough before the Dawes plan and Locarno; it would be disastrous now. And since Great Britain is at present engaged in transforming her industries and bringing them up to the most modern level, she should also adapt her political conceptions to new circumstances which call for more useful attention than she has given to such circumstances in the past.

BALLADE OF EXPLANATION.

Why sing the praise of drifting dust?
  The words your pretty lips have said;
Ah, lady, do not be unjust
  To Helen in her lonely bed;
'Tis true those lips to dust are sped,
  Then Helen must in verse belong;
But your sweet lips are cherry red—
  Your lips are not yet meant for song.

'Tis true that sing the poets must,
  Then why not lovely ladies dead?
No poet ever has discussed
  The one for whom his heart has bled;
He sings his bliss, but in the stead
  Of her to whom he'd fain belong
He sings the fair whose charms have fled
  Your lips are not yet meant for song.

In you alone I put my trust,
  By your fair charms is passion fed;
Then do not fear what passing gust
  May serve to blow on roads we tread;
To drifting dust no man may wed,
  For drifting dust no fond thoughts throng;
Of what I sing, pray cease to dread—
  Your lips are not yet meant for song.

L'ENVOI.

Sweet lady, do not be misled,
  I do not think that kissing's wrong;
Though silly verses Helen thread,
  Your lips are not yet meant for song.

an Asiatic or African State the need for protection of foreigners against lawlessness and corrupt justice has arisen, such intervention is far more efficiently exercised by one power than by many. Where each power can use force to protect its subjects, the result in case of grave emergency requiring prompt decision and unity of action has too often been delay and inefficiency.

Moreover, the Oriental understands to a nicety the chance of playing off one power against the other by opposing their prestige and business interests. Turkey was a sorry example of this state of affairs and China is another.

It is no doubt recognition of that fact which has led world opinion to take a favorable view of the action of the British Government in intervening on the present occasion so strongly against the reckless legislation which Nahas Pasha had threatened and was endeavoring to rush through the Egyptian House of Parliament. The immediate cause of Great Britain's considered action was the so-called assemblies bill, which was on the eve of passing through its parliamentary stage.

Plan Curbed Police.

The assemblies bill was indeed a menacing piece of projected legislation. Its chief effects would have been in the first place to prevent Egyptian police from interfering with public meetings and demonstrations at which disorder was expected until serious disorder actually had taken place, and in the second place to inflict heavier fines and imprisonment on the zealous constable who intervened to prevent disorder than on the actual artificers of disorder.

When the negotiations between Lord Lloyd and Sarwat Pasha broke down in the first days of March, the first action subsequently taken by the British Government was to warn Egypt sharply against any legislation which would tend to impair the security of foreign communities. What followed is pretty well known.

The Sarwat cabinet was succeeded by the Nahas cabinet. The new cabinet need not have replied to the British warning in question and could have allowed sleeping dogs to lie, but under the pressure of extremists, Nahas Pasha replied March 30 to the British aide memoire of March 4, challenging the right of Great Britain to intervene in such a matter, completely ignoring the British unilateral declaration of Feb. 28, 1922, and its all-important reservations.

Asserts British Rights.

To that challenge Lord Lloyd replied with equal courtesy and firmness April 4, intimating Great Britain's resolve to stand by its rights and obligations under the unilateral declaration. It was thought and hoped that the second warning, despite its restrained language, would suffice to prevent Nahas Pasha from continuing to press the assemblies bill through Parliament. But either because he listed to the extreme Wafdists or because he thought the British Government would not dare to act if it came to the point, Nahas proceeded defiantly with the passage of the assemblies bill and declined to modify it in response to observations of the Public Securities Department.

He was peremptorily warned once more on April 19 by Lord Lloyd that the British Government would not tolerate the enactment of the sinister bill. As Nahas remained defiant, the British Government April 29 sent an ultimatum to Nahas Pasha giving him 72 hours to withdraw the bill, failing which it was hinted that His Britannic Majesty's Government "would consider themselves free to take such

"This wasn't exactly an air experience, but it was so closely linked up with our flight in the Bremen that all the thrills from it really are a part of my flying. A man would need to be a wooden Indian not to be moved by that sort of demonstration.

"The emotions it aroused were doubtless greater than those any of us experienced in the flight across the Atlantic. There was work to do then and that kept our minds off what might happen. In New York and Washington we have had only to sit back and enjoy to the full all the honors and attentions heaped upon us and to marvel at the receptions accorded us, surpassing as they have everything that any of us had imagined in our wildest dreams."

Fitzmaurice makes light of the oil tank leak in the Bremen during the flight, a mishap that easily could have cost the lives of all three members of the crew if the Irishman hadn't found and patched the hole. He explains that it was easy to get at and not hard to fix after it had been found, just a part of the flying job which he and Koehl shouldered when they set out from Baldonnel Airdrome to fight head winds across 2000 miles of open sea to America.

"It's no fund having something go wrong with your ship over the middle of the ocean with a storm tossing you about," he said. "The oil leak had us scared and the lights on the instrument board were a great nuisance when they went out. The real kick, I suppose, was in getting thees things fixed again and in knowing they were all right once more."

At no time during his flight in the Bremen was Maj. Fitzmaurice in as tight a place as he was on his attempted trans-Atlantic flight with Capt. McIntosh last year, he said. At that time he was forced to fly 50 feet or less above the waves with a heavily loaded machine, finally dumping 250 gallons of fuel into the sea in order to rise higher and be able to return to his starting point.

Capt. Koehl's Only Worry Was Over Bremen's Take-Off.

The trans-Atlantic flight of the Junkers plane gave Capt. Koehl the greatest thrill of his long flying career.

"When I saw houses and people I knew that we had succeeded and I have never been so glad before," he says. "It meant that we had succeeded in flying from the Old World to the New, that we had done the job, or the most important part of the job that we had undertaken."

In talking to Koehl one is more and more impressed by the belief that the German pilot's joy at sighting land and human habitation on Greenly Island had to do more with a flight successfully completed than with any sense of relief over dangers passed. Indeed, he declares that he never once doubted the Bremen would win through the storms that beset her path and reach America safely.

"She is too strong a ship to be broken up by any storm," Koehl said, "so that I knew we were all right as long as we kept flying.

"Until the propeller quit turning and we struck the water there was no real cause to worry, and if that had happened, worrying wouldn't have done us any good."

The Captain, it will be seen, has a soothing philosophy. He applied it again when Maj. Fitzmaurice discovered that there was a leak in the Bremen's oil tank.

"I fthe oil went, the motor would stop and we were all through," he said. "Getting excited wouldn't help. The only thing to do was find the leak and fix it; otherwise it would soon hape been all over. Fitzmaurice found the trouble and repaired it.

"The only time I was really worried was at the start; that was dangerous because of the heavy load. But once we were in the air I never had a doubt that we would successfully complete the flight across the Atlantic."

What followed is pretty well known.

The Sarwat cabinet was succeeded by the Nahas cabinet. The new cabinet need not have replied to the British warning in question and could have allowed sleeping dogs to lie, but under the pressure of extremists, Nahas Pasha replied March 30 to the British aide memoire of March 4, challenging the right of Great Britain to intervene in such a matter, completely ignoring the British unilateral declaration of Feb. 28, 1922, and its all-important reservations.

Asserts British Rights.

To that challenge Lord Lloyd replied with equal courtesy and firmness April 4, intimating Great Britain's resolve to stand by its rights and obligations under the unilateral declaration. It was thought and hoped that the second warning, despite its restrained language, would suffice to prevent Nahas Pasha from continuing to press the assemblies bill through Parliament. But either because he listed to the extreme Wafdists or because he thought the British Government would not dare to act if it came to the point, Nahas proceeded defiantly with the passage of the assemblies bill and declined to modify it in response to observations of the Public Securities Department.

He was peremptorily warned once more on April 19 by Lord Lloyd that the British Government would not tolerate the enactment of the sinister bill. As Nahas remained defiant, the British Government April 29 sent an ultimatum to Nahas Pasha giving him 72 hours to withdraw the bill, failing which it was hinted that His Britannic Majesty's Government "would consider themselves free to take such action as the situation may seem to them to require."

Nahas Finally Yields.

Nahas Pasha, at last disillusioned, yielded thereupon. The tone in which Nahas replied to the ultimatum was such that the British Government refrained from insisting a categorical withdrawal of the bill whilst warning him that if it were brought up again the Government would intervene resolutely to prevent its enactment. The episode, as invariably happens in the East when defiance is followed by backing down, has discredited Nahas Pasha completely in the eyes of a large section of his followers and of moderate Egyptian opinion generally. There is even renewed talk of an early endeavor to reopen negotiations with Great Britain for an Anglo-Egyptian settlement.

It is indeed to be hoped that this will be the result of Nahas' blunder and of the British Government's firm demeanor toward the extremists, which is tempered with all due regard for the Egyptian people, their constitution and their King. Very wisely indeed the British Government, which might have used its influence at the Egyptian court to persuade King Fuad to withhold his royal assent from the assemblies bill, refrained from doing so. For such a course would only have compromised in the eyes of a large section of his people the monarch who on the whole is quite friendly to this country and might not in fact have prevented ultimate passage of the bill since it might have been submitted for a second time to Parliament and have become law, thanks to a two-thirds majority in each house.

Chose Wisest Course.

By scrupulously refraining from such interference between the Egyptian crown and the Egyptian people and Parliament, Great Britain may be said to have facilitated that early resumption of negotiations. If moderate councils prevail in the next Egyptian cabine and a lasting settlement between London and Cairo result, there should be a great future for Egypt working in friendly co-operation with Great Britain. With the latter's intervention becoming spontaneously restricted as Egypt is deemed to merit more confidence, there should be a great future for Egypt among Mussulman nations. More so as the new Turkey by repudiating any religious affiliations even with Islam has left the moral leadership of the Moslem world open to other Moslem states.

Egypt has an ancient and wonderful history in civilization. Unlike Persia, whose geographical position inevitably spells isolation and remoteness, Egypt is situated at the meeting point of three continents. There is its chance. The late Lord Milner had conceived of Egypt as the natural successor in the enlightened conditions of the defunct Ottoman Empire—moral leader of Islam.

But it is through statesmanship and not through the recklessness of faction leaders like Nahas that Egypt will attain to the proud position which it envies and in many ways desires.

5-Cent Fare Problem Plunges New York Subways in Politics

Commission, holds that with unification of the lines, a mixing of the profitable with the unprofitable, the five-cent fare can be maintained without burden upon the city. Untermeyer has drawn up a tentative plan for unification, but it has not yet been accepted by the Transit Commission.

Plan after plan for the solution of the problem has been drawn up, fought over and sent to the junk heap. Not long ago C. E. Smith, a consulting engineer from S. Louis, went to New York at the request of Charles W. Berry, a friend of Gov. Smith, and a member of the Board of Estimate and made an extensive survey. The plan produced by Smith has gone the way of the others. Among those who have studied the subject, there seems to be general agreement on the desirability of unification, but nobody has yet shown conclusively how this can be brought about. Nothing has been done by the Walker administration to contribute to a solution.

If the present mess affords one lesson more than another for St. Louis and other cities, it is that a city needs to watch its step in its dealings with transit corporations. To explain why this is so it is necessary to give a brief outline of the New York situation.

City Built Subways.

There are two subway lines, controlled by the Interborough Rapid Transit Co. and the Brooklyn-Manhattan Transit Co. The city built the lines with its own money and leased them to these two operating companies. Contracts with the Interborough were entered into in 1900 and 1902. Both provided for a five-cent fare. In 1913, the city made a third contract, this time with both the Interborough and the Brooklyn-Manhattan. This is known as the dual contract, and it, too, calls for a five-cent fare.

When the contracts were made, they were very profitable to the companies. In the 10 years up to 1919, the Interborough paid dividends ranging up to 20 per cent. In later years the profits have dropped. The B. M. T., as it is called, is still making money on its investment, but the Interborough is described as being "one jump ahead of the Sheriff." The Interborough, it should be explained, is saddled with unprofitable elevated lines, which eat up its earnings from its subways. That is another story, which would take too long to tell. As long as 1921, the Interborough applied to the State Transit Commission for the right to charge a higher fare, but this and succeeding applications were denied by the commission on the ground that a 5-cent fare was expressly stipulated in the contracts with the city.

Differ on Recapture.

These contracts, incidentally, give the city the right to recapture some of the lines under certain conditions, and one of the points made against the Walker administration by its enemies is that no steps have been taken toward recapture. Recapture proceedings, however, would be surrounded with no end of legal complications, and there is dispute as to the time when recapture will be legally possible. In any event, proceedings to that end would probably be under litigation for three or four years.

Skipping the details of the row that has been in progress since Mayor Hylan in 1921 made the maintenance of the 5-cent fare a dominant political issue, we come down to what is now happening.

The Interborough lately renewed its demand for a higher fare, on the ground that the nickel fare was confiscatory, and the Transit Commission again took the position that the company was bound by its contracts. Running parallel with the company's demands for more revenue there has been a counter demand by Untermyer that the company, whose property is badly run down, buy new equipment and lengthen its platforms. The company has declared that the improvements would cost $40,000,000 and has declined to make them.

After a series of court skirmishes, the fight over the proposed increase got into the Statutory Court, which ruled that the increase should be made pending the report of a special master.

But how about the contracts calling for a five-cent fare? The Court held in effect that the public service act of 1907 laid upon the State Transit Commission the duty of fixing a fare that would give the company a reasonable rate of return. It held that the contract of 1913 must be read in the light of that duty. It held, in other words, that the five-cent fare was confiscatory and that the Transit Commission in refusing to entertain an application for an increase had denied the company the protection to which it was entitled under the Federal Constitution.

So much for the contract of 1913, which was entered into after and in the light of the public service act. What about the earlier contracts, those of 1900 and 1902, which also provided for a five-cent fare? Would not these contracts hold good against the demand for a higher fare? The city so contended, but the Court ruled that the 1900 and 1902 contracts were superseded by the 1913 contract and that this latter contract was subject to the restrictive application of the 1907 public service law.

WASHINGTON U. ALUMNI PLAN OUTDOOR PRODUCTION IN JUNE

Al Fresco Performances to Be Given in Quadrangle on Commencement Program.

As a part of the celebration commemorating the seventy-fifth anniversary of Washington University to be held commencement week, the alumni association of the school will present an al fresco production in the quadrangle on the school grounds, June 1 and 2.

The performance is to be Louis Parker's production of historical anecdotes, first produced in London at His Majesty's Theater in 1915. Seventy-five members of the alumni association, many of them business and professional men, are in the cast.

The Executive Committee of the alumni association, headed by Dr. Isaac Lippincott, is in charge of the production.

5-Cent Fare Problem Plunges New York Subways in Politics

today. The issue will have to be determined ultimately by the United States Supreme Court.

Applies on Both Lines.

If the 7-cent fare sticks, it will apply on the B. M. T.'s lines as well as the Interborough's, though the B. M. T., which is paying fair dividends on both its common and its preferred stock, is unable to plead the same condition of poverty as the Interborough. Compared with the Interborough's cars, those of the B. M. T. are models of luxury.

But this prosperous condition on the B. M. T. is made possible by the fact that under the traction contracts, the city collects on its bonds only after the companies take take out their own charges and dividends. And the city at present is getting nothing to offset its annual bill of $12,500,000 interest on its bonds for the building of the subways.

If the 7-cent fare is put into effect the city as well as the companies will profit, but the city's officials, apparently, would rather have the 5-cent fare maintained than to get a windfall for the treasury. There is much more tangible political benefit in a 5-cent fare than in a bonus whose effects would be felt only indirectly. It has been estimated that the Interborough would derive a $25,000,000 annual increase of revenue from the 7-cent fare.

Figures in Fare Row.

The dominant figures in the traction setup in New York are Thos L. Chadbourne, who has been in recent years one of the financial "angels" of the Democratic party; Gerhard M. Dahl, chairman of the board of the B. M. T., and Albert H. Wiggin, chairman of the board of the Chase National Bank. All these are heavy owners of B. M. T. stock, and they have lately bought into the Interborough.

The situation is complicated by the fact that the city is now building new subway lines, and in three years will have another system on its hands. It has not been determined how the new lines shall be operated. The law provides that for three years these lines shall be operated experimentally on a 5-cent fare and that thereafter the fare shall be fixed at a self-sustaining figure. It has been calculated by the Board of Transportation, the city body which is building the lines, that in view of the cost of the subways, which is twice as great as that of the original lines, the fare will have to be 8 cents. Obviously, if that is true, cheap service can be maintained in New York only by merging the new lines with the more cheaply built old lines.

Meantime, there is political sound and fury, but very little if any progress toward a solution.

A Medical Opinion

"The ideal corrective for 'sour stomach' is calcium carbonate—a potential anti-acid, incapable of disturbing the normal action of the bowels and bladder, impossible of over-dosage and perfectly safe to use."

—Your own doctor will confirm this quotation from noted medical authority.

A Powerful Anti-acid—yet Safe

Old-fashioned folks, not abreast with medical science, still take burning soda. Occasional doses may do no harm.

But calcium carbonate, in proper form, is the modern anti-acid: 2½ times as effective as soda, yet is utterly safe in its soothing action, yet positive in its relief.

Stuart's Tablets are the ideal form of calcium carbonate combined with other soothing, healing ingredients.

Medical authorities commend Stuart's formula as the only kind for use with children, and best for men and women.

$1,000,000 HOTEL, APARTMENT STYLE, EAST OF GRAND

Deal, Still in Tentative Stage, Calls for Erection of 16-Story Structure on Lindell Blvd.

LOT OWNED BY DR. G. A. WALKER

Row of Three-Story Buildings Being Demolished for Construction of Lindell-Olive Cutoff.

By Berry Moore.

A deal is progressing for the erection on the north side of Lindell boulevard just east of Grand avenue, of a 16-story fire-proof apartment hotel, involving a cost of more than $1,000,000, without the site.

The site, situated 150 feet east of Grand, has a frontage of 138 feet with an irregular depth extending to an alley. It is owned by Dr. G. A. Walker, who has placed a valuation on it of $1500 a front foot, or a total of $207,000, which sets a new high precedent for ground values in this block.

The building, which is to be erected by Dr. Walker, is to be financed by a corporate client of the Grand National Bank, of which Ed Mays is president. The promoters are to control and operate it under a 25 year lease, under the provisions of which Dr. Walker shall receive an annual rental of $150,000, less carrying charges and amortization of the building loan.

Pullman Type Apartments.

Kitchenette apartments of the Pullman type are contemplated, with bath or shower. They will be available as apartments or as hotel rooms at the rate of $2.50 and $2 a day respectively. A restaurant and a grill room will be provided on the first floor. A garage will occupy the basement, with elevator service to the apartments.

The new building will be known as the Walker Hotel Apartments. Complete details of the building plans as yet are not available. While the project is still in the promotion stage, negotiations in its behalf are progressing favorably with a definite announcement expected shortly.

The premises include 60x83 feet recently purchased by Dr. Walker from the Methudy Tire & Rubber Co., which occupied it. This purchase has not previously been announced. Walker formerly owned the Lindell apartments, with lot 38x88 feet, just west of and adjoining the site of the proposed new building.

Buildings Being Demolished.

A long row of three-story buildings at the east end of this block is now being torn down for the Lindell-Olive cut-off. Both the northwest corner of Lindell and Theresa and the southwest and southeast corners of Theresa and Olive will be cut off, virtually connecting Lindell boulevard and Olive street, both 100 feet wide, as one thoroughfare.

The Continental Life Insurance Co., of which Ed Mays is also president, and the Grand National Bank, as was told in last Sunday's Post-Dispatch recently purchased the vacant Scruggs lot, 100x152 feet, on the north side og Olive street, just west of Grand boulevard, for $240,000, or $2400 a front foot. Plans for a 20-story building for these concerns. Details with a picture of this prospect are given on page 2, main section.

Syndicate Leases Corner.

A syndicate composed of Barney and Otto F. Dickmann, Carol Berkley and Joseph Darst Jr., recently acquired through Cornet & Zeibig, a 99-year lease of the southeast corner of Grand and Lindell boulevards, occupied by Burlo Bros., which have the sales agency for Studebaker cars in St. Louis. The site has 140 feet on Grand and 103 feet on Lindell.

The deed has been executed whereby a syndicate controlled by Sam Koplar has acquired the residence of Mrs. Dinah Stix, the second house east of Euclid. The Mercantile Trust Co. handled the transaction, together with Cornet & Zeibig, and the price paid it is understood was $45,000, or nearly $700 a front foot.

The site has a frontage of 74 feet 2 inches on Lindell with a depth of 246 feet 6½ inches to an alley. It has been purchased with plans for a pretentious hotel apartment.

The Koplar company, of which Sam Koplar is president, was recently formed to take over the Congress Hotel and Senate apartments, 16-story structures, at Union boulevard and Pershing avenue and the Embassy apartments at Union and Washington avenue, and to conduct general real estate and building operations with Koplar as its directing head. Koplar also controlls the Branscombe apartments.

PLANS READY FOR 13-STORY $1,500,000 PENNEY BUILDING

Warehouse to Occupy Half Block—Construction of Sears-Roebuck Department Stores Under Way.

Plans have been completed for the $1,500,000 warehouse project for the J. C. Penney Co., with its height increased, and for the Sears-Roebuck Co. department stores, which involves an expenditure of more than $1,000,000, exclusive of the site.

The Penney warehouse, which is to be erected on the east side of Fourteenth street, between Poplar and Spruce streets, will be 13 stories high, instead of 12, as originally announced, and occupy a half block. It will be fireproof and equipped with every facility for expeditious handling of freight, including track connections with the Terminal Railway Co., on Poplar street.

Building Contract Awarded.

The building contract has been awarded to the Scarritt Construction Co. of New York, which has sub-let a contract for 1200 30-foot piles to the Smith-Brennan Concrete Pile Co. of St. Louis. A bed of quick-sand underlies this part of the city, which will add materially to the cost of construction.

The Penny warehouse is to be a source of supply for the Penney Department Stores in this section of the country, and for those to be established in various parts of St. Louis, both in the business and outlying sections.

The southwest corner of Twelfth and Spruce streets, and the northeast corner of Twelfth and Poplar streets, were recently purchased by Irwin Jones. No plans have been disclosed for these sites. A 12-story warehouse, it is understood, is projected for the Twelfth street corner.

Construction is well under way on the new Sears-Roebuck Co. department stores at the southeast corner of Grand boulevard and Winnebago street, and on the east side of Kingshighway, just east of Easton avenue. Both buildings will occupy large sites, with ample provisions for parking space.

The wares of the new Sears-Roebuck Co. stores will embrace the entire catalogue of the concern, and will be available at mail order prices. Contracts call for completion of the new buildings by Aug. 1.

Mercantile Trust Sells Residence.

The Mercantile Trust Co. reports the sale of the 11-room residence owned by George Weber at 5579 Chamberlain avenue to Dr. Noxon Toomey. Dr. Toomey purchased the property as an investment. Weber in turn purchased lot 1, block 6 of Moorlands Park and lot 3 in block 4 of Westmoor Park No. 1, from Dr. Toomey through the Mercantile company.

TRACT OF SWITCHING PROPERTY IS SOLD

Hemp & Co., Buys 244,000 Square Feet at Vandeventer and Chouteau Avenues.

Hemp & Company has purchased through Isaac T. Cook Co. a tract of land at Vandeventer and Chouteau avenues from the American Bridge Co. The tract is 196 feet south of Chouteau avenue, and comprises 244,000 square feet. It fronts 266 feet on Vandeventer, with a depth of 584 feet on its south line and 607 feet on its north line. The rear part of the tract fronts 614 feet on the Missouri Pacific right-of-way.

Hemp & Co. was represented by St. Jean of the Chouteau Trust Co No definite plan for use of this property has been announced, except that Chouteau Trust Co. and Isaac T. Cook Co. have been named as joint agents to develop or resell the property.

Buys 1110 Olive Street.

A feature of the week was the purchase by E. G. White, solicitor general of the Missouri Pacific Railroad, of the new five-story fireproof building at 1110 Olive street, occupying a lot 20x109 feet. Jack Dubinsky, represented by Sam Hamberg Jr., was the grantor in the transaction. He purchased the property a year or more ago through Hamberg, the resale yielding him a handsome profit on the investment.

As was told in the Post-Dispatch, the Eastman Kodak Co. recently acquired the 99-year lease of the premises at 1009 Olive street, as a site for a new building. A model four-story structure, designed exclusively for this concern, is now under construction on the site.

R. Weisels Co. Closes Lease at Tenth and Olive.

Henry R. Weisels Co. report having leased to the Ross-Gould Co. the fifth floor of the Steinberg Building, northwest corner Tenth and Olive streets, 45x108, for the account of M. J. Steinberg Hat and Fur Co.

$600,000 PAID FOR 5-STORY ARGONNE APARTMENTS AT 3664 WASHINGTON BL.

W. L. Gladstone Expects to Add Roof Garden and Garage—Annual Rentals $80,000.

The Argonne apartment building, a five-story structure at 3664 Washington boulevard, a short distance west of Grand boulevard, was purchased yesterday by William L. Gladstone for an announced consideration of $600,000. Negotiations were handled by Stanley Epstein, Inc., in connection with F. W. Diestelhorst. The grantor in the transaction was the Initial Realty Co., composed of New York clients of Stanley Epstein, Inc.

The Argonne, one of the first strictly fireproof large apartment buildings erected in St. Louis, comprised 72 units of three and four rooms. A majority of the apartments were newly furnished two years ago. Their gross rentals aggregate $80,000, more than 13 per cent on the reported purchase price.

The purchaser is now considering plans for enclosing the roof of the building for a roof garden, and for converting the basement into a garage, to accomodate cars of tenants. Both propects would add appreciably to the rental value of the building, according to Epstein.

WEST END BANK'S NEW BUILDING IS STARTED

University City Depository's Investment to Be $100,000—Organized in 1912.

Construction work has been started on a modern building for the West End Bank under supervision and plans of Nolte & Nauman, architects, on the north side of Delmar avenue, just east of Leland avenue in University City.

The building will be of light gray brick, freely embellished with terra cotta and cut stone facings and carvings, to get away from the customary design using columns found in most bank buildings. The bank floor space will be 3000 square feet with a large vestibule and lobby. A modern vault, steel reinforced, will be a feature of the interior arrangement and will be large enough to accommodate 3000 safe deposit boxes, with a separate space for securities. Coupon booth and coupon room, ladies' room and other facilities are provided for on the first floor.

Across the rear of the banking room there will be a balcony of 1000 square feet, for directors' rooms and the bookkeeping rooms. There will be separate fireproof vault on this floor for books.

Contracts are being awarded as the work progresses. The one for fixtures and interior decoration has been awarded to the St. Louis Bank Equipment Co.

An electrically lighted night depository will be installed.

The investment will be somewhat over $100,000. The West End Bank, University City's largest and oldest bank, was incorporated in 1912 with a capital of $25,000 and no surplus and at the present time has a capital of $25,000 and a surplus and undivided profits of about $50,000 earned and set aside in addition to dividends paid in the last 16 years.

With total assets of approximately $1,000,000 the bank is now increasing its capital to $50,000 and surplus and profits to $100,000 and the new building is being erected to give the necessary room to accommodate increased business.

NEW BUILDING STARTED ON SOUTH KINGSHIGHWAY

Vernon Laux, president of the Vernon Laux Realty Co., announced that all financial arrangements have been made and ground broken for a high-class store and apartment building to be erected on South Kingshighway for a client. The building will consist of five stores, 14 3-room, 11 4-room and two 5-room apartments and a large garage in the rear. The structure will be strictly fireproof, faced with weatherproof matt brick, handsomely trimmed with terra cotta, and up-to-date in every detail.

The equipment in the kitchen is to include electric ventilator and refrigeration, automatic gas stoves, ironing boards, built-in cabinets, etc.

The building was designed by Adolph Stauder, architect, and will be built by Martin Samm, general contractor, and under the management of the Vernon Laux Realty Co.

NEW RESIDENCE IN SHERWOOD FOREST, WEBSTER, SOLD

The attractive new residence at the southwest corner of Jackson boulevard and Rock Hill road, in Sherwood Forest, Webster Groves, has been purchased by Mr. and Mrs. R. Harris Cobb through the Anderson-Stocke-Buermann Realty Co. The house was owned by Doris, Stocker, represented by the Trembley-Wilson Realty Co. Mrs. Cobb is a daughter of Christ Stocke, president of the Anderson-Stocke-Buermann Realty Co.

The house has 10 rooms and two baths, and is beautifully decorated and appointed throughout. The exterior is of artistic and attractive design.

TRAMPE ESTATE SOLD TO REAL ESTATE GROUP

135-Acre Tract Purchased by Syndicate for Sale as Homesites.

William E. Heckmann announces the sale of 135 acres of ground known as the Trampe estate, on Larrimore road and Trampe lane, in the northern part of St. Louis County, to a syndicate of North St. Louis men. The property is to be divided immediately into homesites. In announcing the sale, Heckmann said: "The buildings and improvements generally of the property in this section are of a high type. Most of them are comparatively new. Those that are not new are well preserved old estates which are landmarks and lend attraction to any neighborhood.

"The major boulevard system which has been so effective and efficiently worked out in another section has yet to serve this district. The definite plans now before the authorities for the completion of Kingshighway, which intersects Broadway, Bellefontaine road, Riverview drive and Goodfellow avenue, alone should develop interest."

MODEL HOME TO BE ERECTED AT OSAGE HILLS COUNTRY CLUB

Building Materials Exhibitors' Association Chooses Big Bend Site for Ideal House.

The Building Materials Exhibitors' Association, composed of representatives of distributers of various home building supplies and equipment, has selected the Osage Hills Country Club grounds on Big Bend boulevard as the location for a model display house to be built to demonstrate what features should be incorporated in the modern home. The site will be on Iroquois Trail, just west of the clubhouse. Jesse Bowling has been designated as the architect to plan and supervise the construction of the home. Construction will be started immediately. Arthur H. Kuhlmann of the Kuhlmann Metal Weather Strip Co., is president of the association.

According to Bowling, the house will be an artistic, individually styled French house, the details yet to be worked out. It is to be equipped with every known home convenience, and furnished throughout. It is the plan of the association to keep the home open for inspection the year around.

Korte Report of Sales.

Estate of George W. Julow Sold.

The estate of George W. Julow, consisting of 42 acres and a modern 10-room Dutch colonial home on the Ballas road, between the Clayton and Manchester roads, has been sold to C. A. Just of the Peter Hauptmann Tobacco Co. for $65,000. The Eggers Realty & Investment Co. of Clayton represented both parties in the transaction. The Eggers company also sold lot 8 of Oakleigh to Mrs. Helen Brown. The Eggers company also sold lot 35 of the Murdock farm lying on Gratiot street, between Murdock and Weil avenues, Shrewsbury, to E. Wall. It consists of 2000 front feet of property and Mr. Wall intends to subdivide and place it upon the market at once for moderate priced homes.

Woodland Park Sales Active.

Woodland Park, two-year-old subdivision of the Federer Realty Co., has been very active in the last 30 days with the sale of 15 homes. Twenty new buildings are now under construction. These bungalows are all five or six rooms of the English cottage type, with slate and tile roofs, vitrolite baths, hardwood floors, built-in features, and individual in design. Close to 150 homes in Woodland Park have already been disposed of by the Federer Realty Co. in the last year.

$500 DOWN
BALANCE 15 YEARS TO PAY
We have a new, modern and complete single flat ideally situated in the best section of the West End. Each floor has six nicely arranged rooms, with a 7-room arrangement. Tile floor and walls in the bathroom, large attic, side drive with 2-car brick garage, in fact every modern convenience. You may inspect one of the buildings today. 6611 San Bonita av. open all day today. We will sell you one of these buildings on terms of 3% down, and we will take back one deed of trust for the entire unpaid balance and carry this for you over a period of 15 years at 6% interest. Your monthly payments, including all interest and principal charges will be less than the rental which we receive from the building. If you are now paying $75 per month or more for your rent, this is the opportunity you have been wishing for to acquire your own home under an ideal financing arrangement. See this property today, or phone us for full particulars.

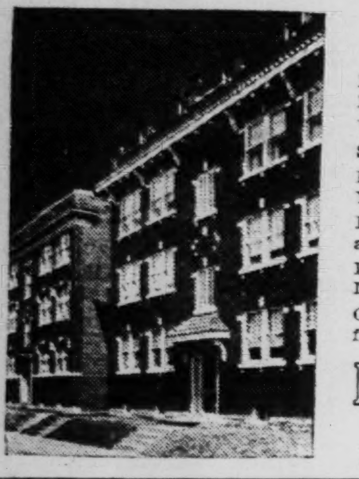
Profits in Lots—Another Delmar Garden

Three-Story Apartments Can Now Be Built In

PERSHING HEIGHTS



City Plan Commission Has Changed the Restrictions

Delmar Garden lots went from $65 a foot to $175 a foot. Profits of $2000 to $5000 and more a lot were made.

We believe Pershing Heights will be another Delmar Garden.

St. Louis is just beginning to grow—HAS ONLY STARTED.

Buy one or more Pershing Heights lots. Make these profits. You can if you will only ACT NOW.

Pay cash or purchase on liberal terms as low as $300 cash and $25 a month.

Keep your money working in good West End apartment lots. Let growing St. Louis make profits for you.

On both sides of Ferguson av.—6800 west on Etzel—across from Pershing School.

THE MOST SUCCESSFUL DEVELOPMENT IN APARTMENT PROPERTY IS

BLUE RIDGE TERRACE

We have sold, during the last few months, apartment locations in this property to a large number of investors and high-class builders.

14 apartment buildings, ranging from 3 to 18 family structures, all of the highest class, are now under construction; a number of others are planned and contracts let, for which sites have already been sold.

The demand for apartments in this location is beyond the present supply, and the apartments are leased as soon as buildings are completed.

Restrictions prohibit the use of soft coal, thereby eliminating smoke, and the residents of this district have the distinct advantage of enjoying country life with all city conveniences.

BLUE RIDGE TERRACE is located between Wydown Bl. and Clayton Rd., on the Clayton carline, only 20 minutes' drive via Forest Park, Lindell and Olive Bls. to 12th St.

THIS PROPERTY is bound to make rapid and large increases in value, and it offers the best opportunity in St. Louis for a money-making real estate investment.

See us for full particulars.

That was Father's Advice— Buy a Home

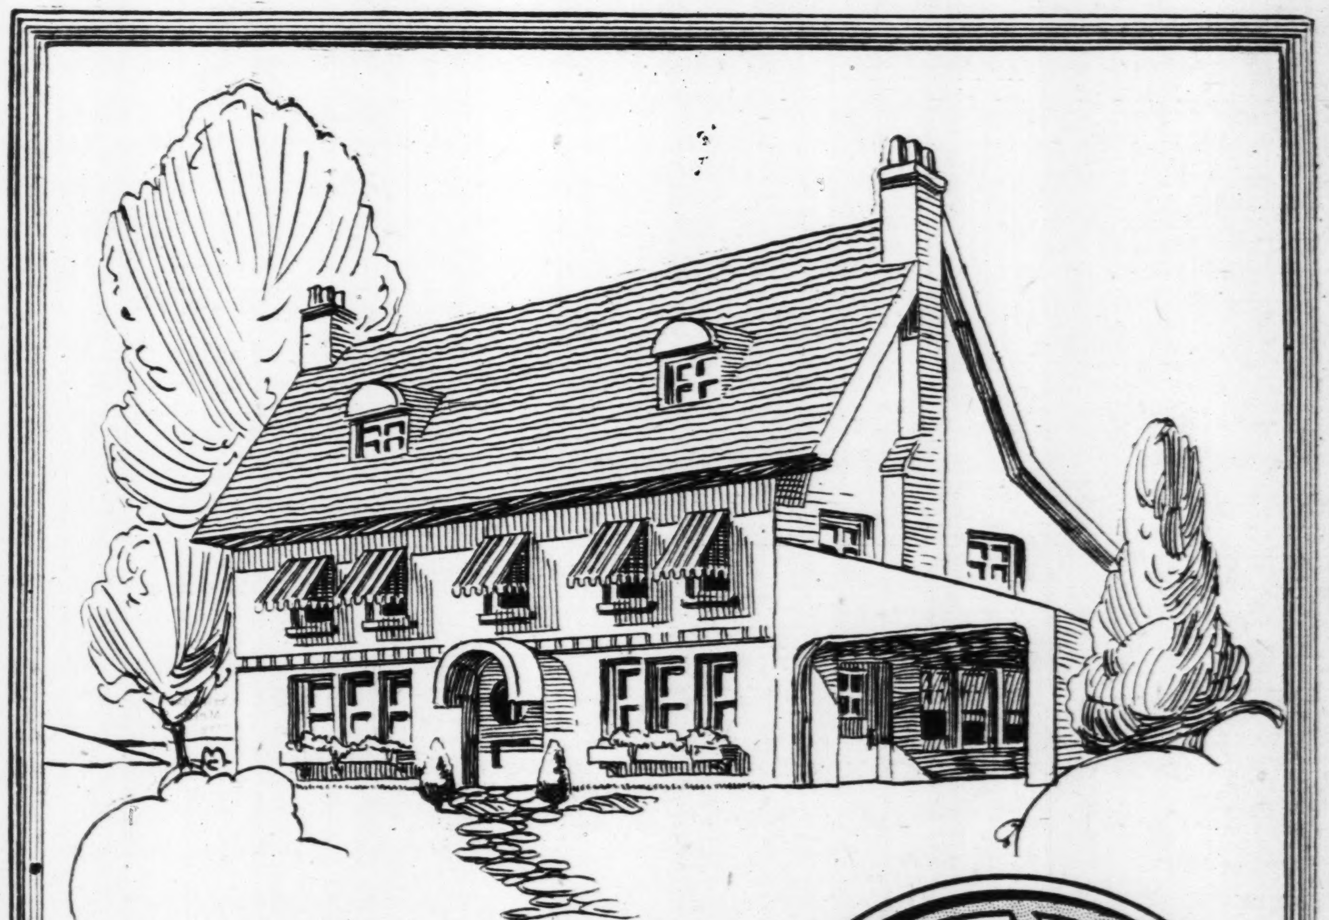
Forty years have gone since a father told his son and the new bride how to "get on in the world!"

A row of flats has grown from that early home investment he helped them make—property from which the income today bids them enjoy their declining years free from financial cares.

Another couple appears before another father today—a father who sees ahead and says, "Son, buy a home!"

This week—real estate week in St. Louis—real estate investments will open this way of independence to many.

Dealers and owners are concentrating their offers in the Post-Dispatch Real Estate columns today and all this week.



Real Estate Week begins today in St. Louis. The Real Estate Week sign in a dealer's window is a reminder that he wants to help you to home ownership.

ANSWERS TO QUERIES

The Post-Dispatch reserves the right to reject any query. Personal and telephone calls or answers by mail cannot be given attention, except letters on medical questions of undoubted sincerity when accompanied by stamped addressed envelope.

W. F.—The trans-Atlantic flight made by Capt. Hermann Koehl, Commandant James Fitzmaurice and Baron von Huenefeld last April 14 was the first East to West crossing by airplane, as stated in the news at the time. Other attempts were not successful.

J. O. M.—Possibly your question about when certain prizes will be given concerns a lottery. Newspapers do not publish information about lotteries because of conflicting with United States postal regulations.

E. H. B.—New York reverts to Eastern Standard time each fall, usually in September, changing to daylight saving time again in the spring. The dates of change are announced in advance. Difference in New York and St. Louis time is one hour. While daylight saving time is in effect in New York, it is, of course, counted as two hours.

THE FOUR HORSEMEN.—There are several ways of accounting for the figure of a mythical creature, the mermaid, in ancient and modern art. Oannes or Hea, the fishgod of the Chaldaeo-Babylonian religion, identical with the Greek Nereus, is pictured with the upper half of the body human the lower half that of a fish. It personifies a belief in the power of the sea.

A. M. B.—Some of the civic activities of the Junior Chamber of Commerce are in the following committees: Historical Sites, Smoke Abatement, Transportation, Fire Prevention, River Front and Waterway, also its Civic Speakers' Bureau and Civic Tours. Educational activities are: Public speaking division, business opportunity division, general meetings and industrial tours. Fellowship activity is represented by the bowling league, basketball league, golf, tennis, dances and banquets, Glee Club entertainments. The organization is neither partisan nor sectarian. It is for men between the ages of 18 and 30. There are no initiation fees, no assessments, dues $12 annually, payable at $1 a month. While it appeals mostly to the young executive, it can readily be seen that it would give anyone a wider contact and increased opportunity.

LEGAL INFORMATION

(By a Member of the St. Louis Bar Association)

DUMBNESS.—Consult a good lawyer personally.

A. W. B.—It would not pay to file a law suit to collect two ($2.00) dollars.

M. F. H.—It is not necessary for you to have a hunting license under the circumstances mentioned.

MRS. E. B. M.—The man could sue you in a Justice of the Peace Court to collect the money.

N. C. S.—Make application for a license in the town where you want to open the shop. The office is usually in the city hall.

DAILY READER.—You are not liable for the expense of filling in the well if the contract had no provision regarding it, and if you have never agreed to pay it.

M. W.—If you have not been at fault yourself you can obtain a divorce and alimony and your husband will have to pay the court costs and your lawyer's fee. You should consult a lawyer.

CURIOUS.—The property owned by husband and wife jointly at the death of the husband would go to the wife. This would not be the case as to the contents of the safe deposit box, however. The joint renting of the safe deposit box could not affect the contents. The persons interested should consult a lawyer in person.

BESSIE.—There is no need of a will where the names of the children mentioned are on a deed, with that of the parents, if you want the property to go to the children.

P.-D. READER.—If the first husband and wife, who adopted the child, died without wills, then their adopted child was entitled to a child's share of the estate. In the second adoption the mother by adoption can will her property to other people if she desires to do so.

R. M.—You cannot discharge an undisputed claim by payment of less than the full amount due. (1) The debtor writing "in full for all accounts to date" on the check does not discharge the debt. (2) The status would be the same if the creditor's agent accepted the check. (3) Answered in (1) and (2). (4) The creditor would not be estopped from setting up the claim that the debtor has a statement of account.

MEDICAL QUESTIONS

Health and sanitation questions of public interest only will be considered. Diagnosis or treatment of individual cases will not be given.

RED.—Any brace or support used successfully for round shoulders must be fitted and adjusted. This will be best done by experienced persons in this work, as may be found at McLain's Orthopedic Sanitarium, 915 Aubert avenue, which you are advised to visit for this service.

AGNES.—Pleurisy caused by a fall is called traumatic pleurisy and is due to an inflammation of the pleura, or serous membrane covering the lungs, which is affected by the wound or injury. It may or may not be serious, according to the nature and extent of injury and responsiveness of the individual to treatment.

A DAILY READER.—Modern authorities are not familiar with the "blood tonic" you mention and hence cannot furnish proportions. You might get them by consulting some ancient medical treatise to be found at the Public Library or library of the St. Louis Medical Society at Vandeventer and Lindell avenues.

G. H.—The early subjective symptoms of tuberculosis are weakness and emaciation, night sweats, cough, hemoptysis, evening rise of temperature and other symptoms. Night sweats may result from general debility, local or general infections, and such causes also apply to swollen thyroid gland.

Nothing can ever take away
The love a heart holds dear;
Fond memories linger every day,
Remembrance keeps him dear.
Sadly missed by
MOTHER, FATHER AND BROTHER.

LANGFORD—In loving memory of my dear daughter, Mary Weiss (nee Buskirk), who departed this life May 10 1919:
There is a mother who misses you sadly
And finds the time long since you went.
And I think of you daily and hourly,
But try to be brave and content
But the tears that I shed in silence,
And I breathe a sigh of regret,
For you were mine and I remember
Through all the world forget.
Sadly missed by your mother,
MRS. M. LANGFORD.

PABST—In memory of our darling sister and beloved aunt, Mabel Pabst, who died one year ago, May 17:
No one knows how much we miss you,
No one knows the bitter pain
We have suffered since we lost you;
Life has never been the same.
In our hearts your memory lingers,
Sweetly tender, fond and true;
There is not a day, dear sister,
That we do not think of you.
The bereaved Pabst sisters and niece.

PHELPS—In loving memory of my dear mother, Barbara Phelps, who passed away May 16, 1927
Dear mother, you are not forgotten,
Though on earth you are no more;
Still in memory you are with us,
As you always were before.

NOW It's COLUMBUS Who's Being DEBUNKED

An Admiral Who Could Not Navigate a Ship, a Governor Without Discipline and a Man Without Truth or Honor, Says Marius Andre in His Astonishing Book on America's Discoverer.

ANOTHER school-book hero has been taken off the shelf reserved for immortals and smashed to bits. This time it is Marius Andre, French historian, who undertakes the debunking process and the hero he seeks to deflate is the great Christopher Columbus.

So thoroughly is the debunking process carried out in this biography of Columbus, which has just been translated into English, that when you finish reading it about the only thing that can be conceded to poor old Columbus is the fact that he actually did make four voyages to the New World. That is, if you accept the view developed by the late M. Andre. To others must largely go the credit for the fact that Columbus returned safely to Spain in each instance, the historian maintains.

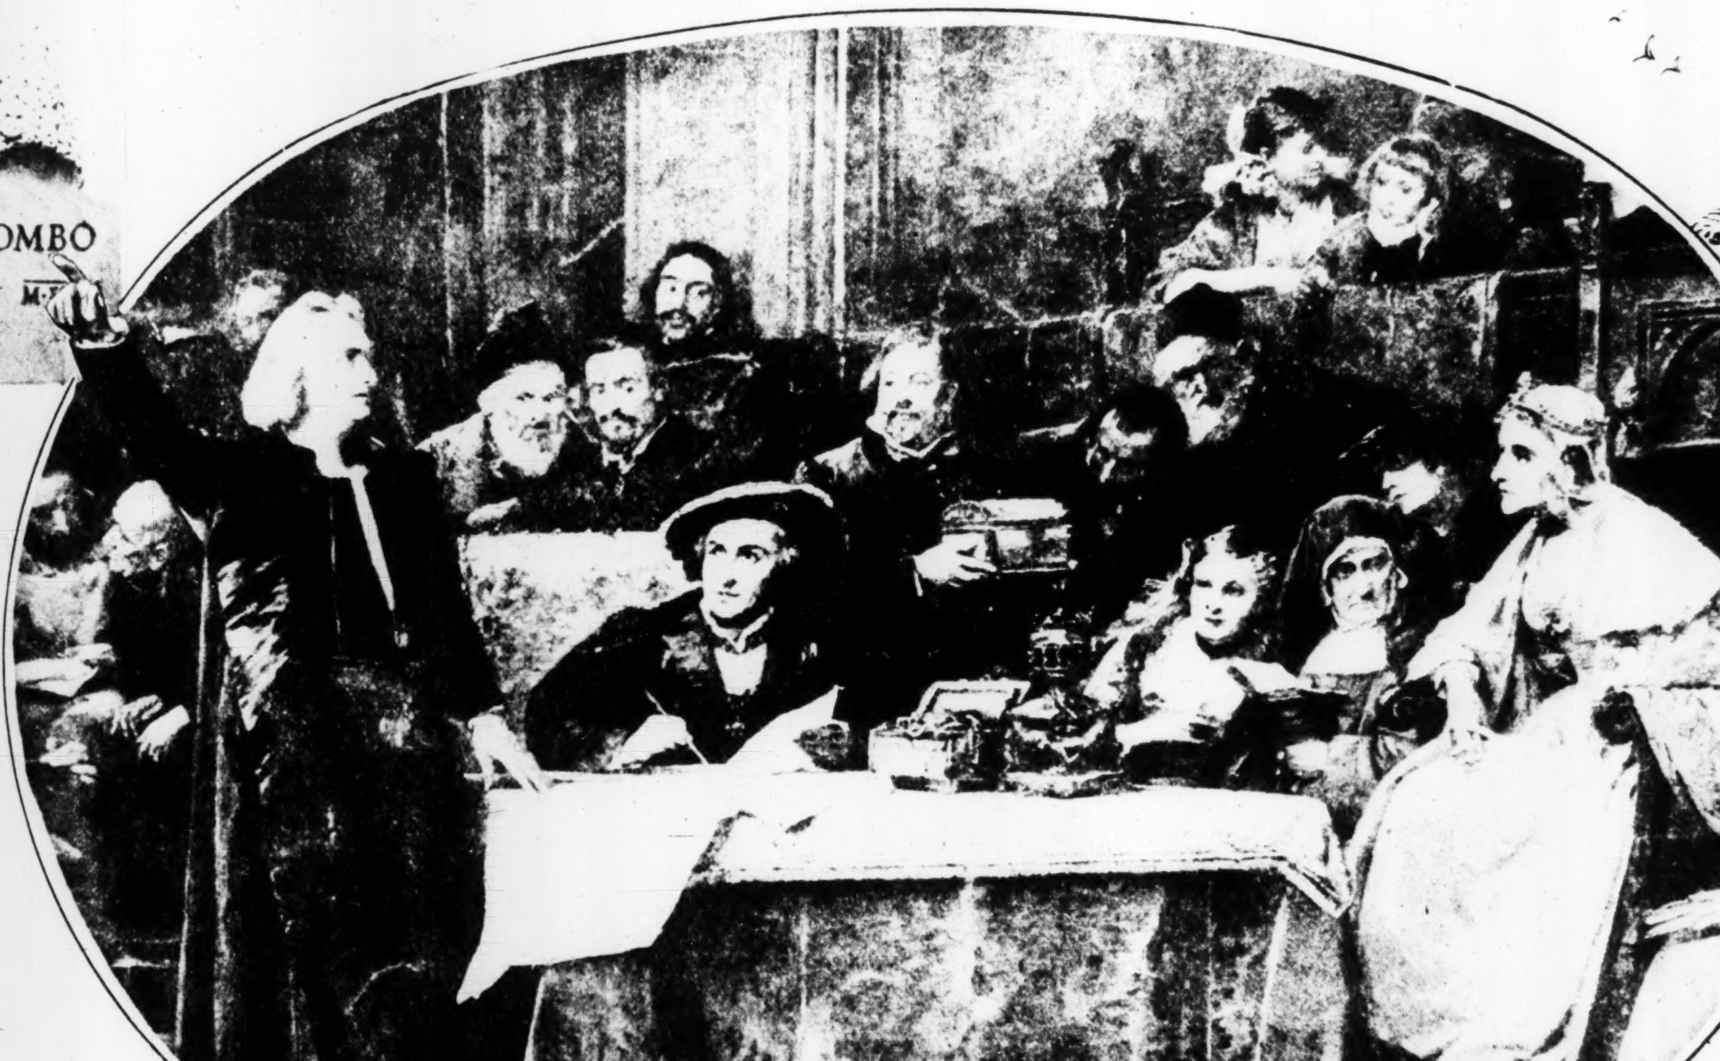
A critic of the French original summarizes as follows:

"The net result of our analysis discloses Columbus as a 'discoverer' whose discovery had been made by another five centuries before; an admiral who could not navigate a ship . . . who floundered helplessly through every cruise he ever made, brought his men to the verge of famine and mutiny and was saved from death and disaster only by the ability of his subordinates . . . a governor without discipline or the gift of command; a traitor to his sovereign, who deserved to be shot; a professed Christian apostle who murdered and enslaved his flock; a man without truth, understanding, honor, faith, gratitude, or loyalty."

But it must be added that a far more human figure, perhaps even a greater figure, emerges from this biography than the stuffed-shirt hero hitherto portrayed as Columbus. It is the figure of a liar, a braggart, an unscrupulous charlatan that emerges. But a poet, a dreamer, with a fixed idea that not even the most terrible adversity could shake. The book is carefully documented. The chief criticism which other historians have directed against it is M. Andre's inexplicable failure to mention the Norse discovery of America by Leif Ericsson in the year 1000.

This newest story of Columbus opens in 1485, seven years before he was to start on his first voyage to the New World. The opening chapter, which is in fictional form, shows him with his young son, Diego, on the way to the monastery of Santa Maria de la Rabida, to see Father Antonio de Marchena. He meets Father Antonio, famous map maker and savant of the time. Andre has historical background for the conversation that follows in the testimony given at a trial which was entered into many years later to determine who should get certain profits from Columbus' first voyage.

COLUMBUS had had a most dramatic encounter while staying with his sister and brother-in-law, who was Governor of Porto Santo, in the Madeira Islands. One of the few survivors of a shipwreck had been tossed up almost at Columbus' feet on the beach and he had carried the man to his home, where he had died a few hours later. That man was Alonzo Sanchez and he was returning from a voyage of discovery when his ship was wrecked. He confided to Columbus in his dying hour that he had discovered, far to the westward, the island of Antillia, one of those almost mythical goals that fired the minds of explorers of the time. The dying man directed Columbus to go to La Rabida and tell his friend and adviser, Father Antonio, of his discovery.



"Columbus at the Court of Ferdinand and Isabella." According to Andre, nothing like this ever happened.

This, then, was Columbus' mission. But it was far more than this, for he in his turn had been fired with a zeal for discovery. He wanted to go to Antillia, and he had secretly vowed that the credit for discovering it should be his. He wanted to learn, too, all that he could from Father Antonio's maps. But he never would—he never did—confess his ignorance of the sea and of navigation and, according to Andre, there can be little doubt that the son of the humble weaver of Genoa was ignorant in the extreme, compared to the learned geographers and expert pilots of his time. He began by boasting to the priest of his noble birth, all of which was untrue, for, and Andre repeats this allegation which was first made some years ago, there are some reasons to suppose that Columbus may have been of Jewish origin. Thereafter the scene goes like this:

"YES,' said Columbus, 'I began sailing the seas at the age of 14 and I have never since ceased. The art of navigation inspires those who practice it to seek out more and more the secrets of this world. I have given 20 years of my life now to this desire. I have sailed every sea known to navigators. I have conversed and corresponded with learned men, both religious and secular, of many nations—Latins and Greeks, Jews and Moors, and numberless others. Our Lord and Savior has shown me much favor in regard to this desire by giving me an intelligent spirit. He has granted that I might acquire ample knowledge of the art of navigation, also all that is needful of astrology, geometry and arithmetic. He has given me understanding of mind and also the dexterity of hand needful to make drawings of the world and to mark on them the cities, the rivers, the mountains, the islands, the ports—each in its true place. And I have used the intelligence He has given me to read all that has been written on cosmography, history, philosophy and the other arts. In our profession one must know many things. Though our poor friend Alonzo was of humble origin, he had acquired much knowledge, by experience and also from books. What a misfortune was his early death!' "

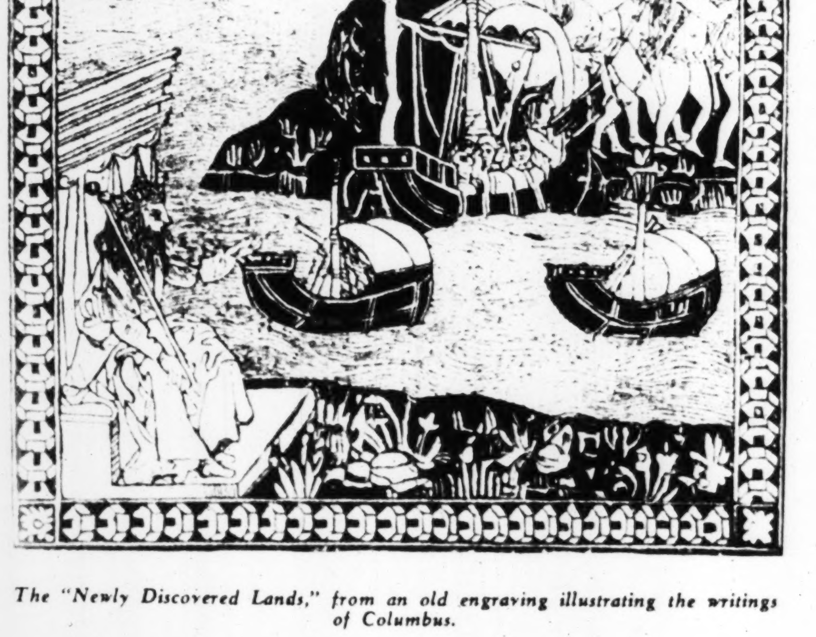
Of this conversation with Father Antonio, Andre says:

"All that Columbus had related to Father Antonio de Marchena concerning his illustrious family, his ancestors, the Roman Consul Colonius (from whom he claimed descent) and the lords of Cuecare, his two cousins the admirals, his own exploits, his command of King Reno's galley, his own encyclopedic scientific knowledge, his voyages on all known seas, begun at the age of 14, the islands he claimed to have discovered—all, from first to last, was untrue. The very day of his arrival in Spain he had begun enriching with new fabulous incidents a legend that he had sketched out in his mind before leaving Portugal. But what he had so far invented was as nothing compared to what he would be inspired to tell and write as events unrolled themselves and as he gave free and freer rein to an imagination magnificently endowed poetically, but constantly tormented and distorted by disappointment and wounded pride."

It was in the library of Father Antonio that he found, during his brief stay at La Rabida, fuel for his imagination. He read the "Book of Marvelous Adventures" of Sir John Mandeville and was fascinated by that author's account "Of the Four Rivers that come from Terrestrial Paradise." This was a geographical illusion which Columbus stoutly defended to the end of his life. Other illusions and wild fancies he picked up during the few days he spent in the library, ancient authorities long discarded by the intelligent of the time, but to which Columbus was always to cling.

AFTER a time he set out for Seville, with letters of introduction to the wealthy and to nobles, with the express purpose of asking Isabella and Ferdinand, their Catholic majesties, to finance a voyage of discovery. The King and Queen were engaged in a prolonged war to oust the Moors from their kingdom. For seven years Columbus was to persist in the effort. His latest biographer says:

"Without further delay we must refute the tales handed down in a false history—tales for which Columbus himself was responsible—of his privations at this period. He wrote that during seven years, from 1485 to 1492, he 'suffered cold and hunger,' that 'during seven years everyone repulsed him,' that he was the 'laughing-stock of all, and only one poor monk had pity for him.' Improving upon that text, the nineteenth century made of him an archtype of romantic hero, superior to his time because of a surpassing genius, and on account of that same genius forced to live in misery, unknown, scoffed at and insulted by his inferiors. Legend claims that Columbus, as a man of scientific progress, was persecuted by monks, plunged in 'the darkness of the Middle Ages,' who were frightened by his daring. The truth is that he suffered neither persecution nor willful hostility from either religious orders or the laity. The actual verity is the exact opposite. His greatest protectors were monks as learned as they were pious, in comparison with whom he himself was but a poor ignoramus."



The "Newly Discovered Lands," from an old engraving illustrating the writings of Columbus.

SURPRISINGLY enough, since he was a stranger without credentials, since his demands were outrageously exorbitant and since he persisted in refusing to say exactly what lands he wanted to discover, Isabella finally granted him his request. All this time he had been under the protection of rich nobles and certain wealthy Jews, living in their palaces, accepting clothes—and fine clothes—money and food from them. And here Andre punctures another favorite legend. There is no evidence whatsoever to support any belief that the Queen pawned her jewels for him. What she did was to give him an order on the city of Palos, a seaport that had incurred her displeasure, commanding the merchants and shipbuilders there to outfit Columbus with a fleet of three caravels.

But the Queen's order was not enough. No one obeyed it. The sailors and pilots lacked confidence in Columbus. Moreover, he had agreed to take a famous mariner of Palos, Martin Alonzo Pinzon, in on the venture with him, but when he got the Queen's order he proceeded to forget this agreement, Andre states. Finally, however, he was forced to ask Father Antonio to intercede with Pinzon, for if Pinzon, who had been estranged by Columbus' behavior, would not aid the expedition, no one else would. Pinzon was at last persuaded to go along.

"Thus it is evident," Andre writes, after summing up Pinzon's heroic efforts in organizing the expedition, "not only that the expedition of 1492 would never have set sail without Martin Alonzo Pinzon, but that he was also one of its chief backers financially. His part in it was considerably greater than that of the Government."

The expedition was at last ready to start. Columbus, to whom the Queen had given, along with other honors, the title of Admiral, went aboard the Santa Maria, of which the navigator and cosmographer, Juan de la Cosa, was Captain. The Pinta was commanded by Martin Alonzo Pinzon, with his son, Francisco Martin, as the first pilot; and the Nina by Vicente Yanez Pinzon, the youngest of three Pinzon brothers.

The story of how Columbus quelled a near mutiny on his ship is well known. This also must be added to what he calls the "Columbian legend," the biographer says. It was Pinzon, according to Andre, who really quelled the mutiny aboard Columbus' ship, enabling the expedition to sail on westward.

ANDRE'S account of the three following voyages and of Columbus' brief period as Governor of Hispaniola—what is believed to be the present island of Haiti—is a dismal record of mismanagement, stupidity, cruelty, false promises, misadventures, suffering and general incompetency, during all of which Columbus clung steadfastly to his belief that he had discovered the Indies and that gold was just around the next cove.

At the end there is fairly well established evidence, according to Andre, that Columbus did plot against Queen Isabella when his rule as Governor was threatened. Andre cites the account of a chronicler of the time to indicate that such a plot existed between Columbus and his brother, Bartholomew. Meanwhile Balboa, De Gama, Vespucci and others were making important discoveries and bringing profitable produce, dye-wood and other stuffs to Spain. Columbus died at Valladolid on May 21, 1506. And he had dropped into such complete obscurity that no chronicler of the time even makes mention of this event. There began almost at once the creation of the legend that has grown up about him. Andre writes:

" . . . his own legend becomes magnified by his first two historians, his son, Fernando (by a woman of noble birth whom he met at the court), and his friend, Las Casas. Others add to it, until, about the middle of the nineteenth century, the story of Christopher Columbus becomes crystallized into the most successful and extraordinary 'mystification' in all history. Nothing is lacking except the halo of sainthood, and for 50 years a formidable campaign, without parallel in the history of the church, was waged in every Catholic country of the world to obtain Columbus' canonization. But Rome knew, and therefore resisted the pressure brought to bear by the millions of Catholics who had accepted romantic legends as history, not knowing that they were proved false by Columbus' own writings. Rome, by refusing canonization, decided the case in favor of the historians and critics who have brought to light the truth."

The Dramatic En
of Dr. B. F. W

Costa Rican W

Dr. B. F. Wallis.

By a Special Correspondent of the Sunday Magazine

NEW YORK.

KATHERINE MACGREGOR WALLIS, who, six years ago, gained the distinction of being the first white woman to travel across certain wild regions of the Andes Mountains and the headwaters of the Amazon in South America, is back in New York with another thrilling story—that of the battle she and her husband, Dr. B. F. Wallis, have been waging to carve a home and coffee plantation out of the Costa Rican jungles.

It was during one of her adventurous forays into Ecuador three years ago that she met and married Doctor Wallis, formerly professor of geology at Bryn Mawr and Northwestern, who was then engaged in a search for oil for American interests. The newlyweds pulled up their stakes and went gold hunting for themselves on the headwaters of the Magdalena River. Their hunt was unsuccessful, and late in 1925 they went to Panama, searching for manganese deposits.

"It's easy to talk about it now," Mrs. Wallis says, "but it wasn't so easy then. Those nights on the jungle trails, with animals of all sorts around you, aren't quickly forgotten! And snakes that hang down from the trees and bushes and touch your cheek as you pass! It was a wonderful experience, but to a woman with any trace of unsteady nerves it would lead to nightmares. We found the manganese, all right, but it was too far from a shipping point to make mining it commercially practicable."

FROM Panama they went to Limon, Costa Rica, and again plunged into the interior. High up on the side of an old volcano they found a stretch of jungle which was ideal for coffee. They decided to turn it into a plantation. Then began a struggle to create a home in the wilderness, a struggle which has lasted two years and is not ended yet.

"The piece of jungle which we decided was suitable for raising coffee was part of a large hacienda which had never been cultivated," Mrs. Wallis said. "From the Costa Rican who owned the land we purchased about 300 acres. It was absolutely wild land, covered with vegetation—creepers and trees, including many cedars. Our first task was to clear off the land, a herculean labor. The cedar proved to be very useful. What wasn't dragged out to be converted into lumber and shipped away we used ourselves for building. The work is all done by native peons. The peons clear away the underbrush with their long, sharp machetes. The trees are then cut down and hauled away by oxen.

"As soon as we had cleared enough ground we built our home. It is a two-story cedar dwelling, on a lattice foundation, and looks something like a Maine lodge. We are two hours' ride by horseback from the railroad at La Peralta. There's nothing there but a small station and a warehouse to store stuff that's being shipped in or out.

"Thus it is evident," Andre writes, after summing up Pinzon's heroic efforts in organizing the expedition, "not only that the expedition of 1492 would never have set sail without Martin Alonzo Pinzon, but that he was also one of its chief backers financially. His part in it was considerably greater than that of the Government."

The expedition was at last ready to start. Columbus, to whom the Queen had given, along with other honors, the title of Admiral, went aboard the Santa Maria, of which the

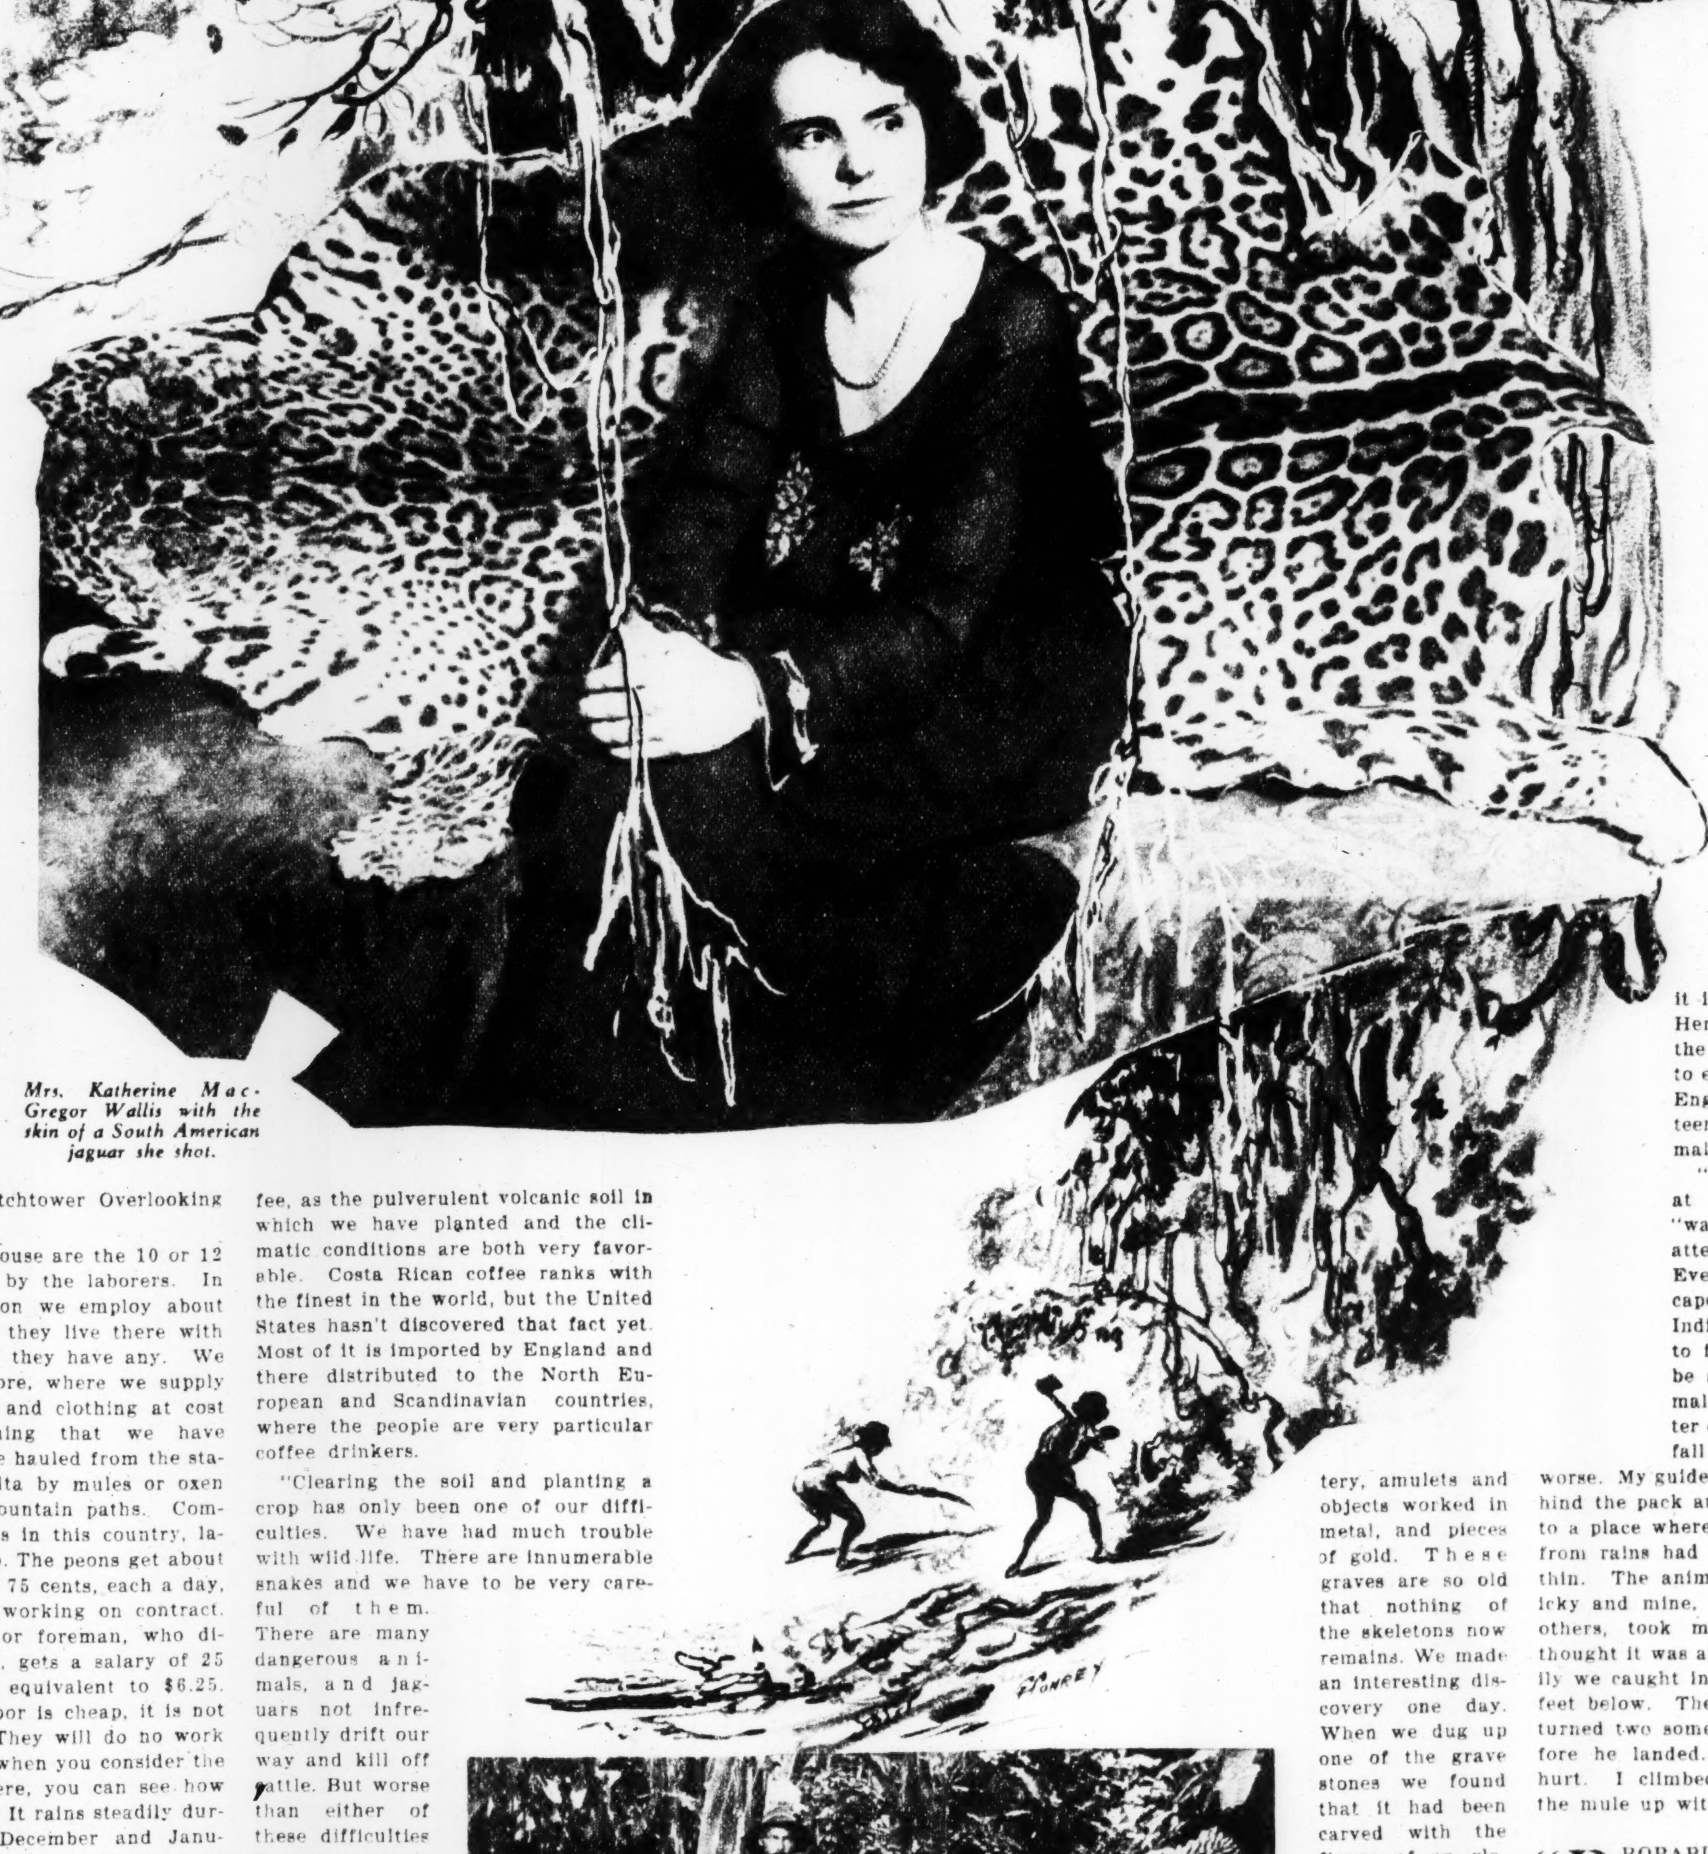
BATTLING the JUNGLE for a HOME

The Dramatic Encounter of Dr. B. F. Wallis and His Wife With the Costa Rican Wilds.

Another view of Mrs. Wallis.

Dr. B. F. Wallis.



Mrs. Katherine MacGregor Wallis with the skin of a South American jaguar she shot.

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch Sunday Magazine

NEW YORK.

KATHERINE MACGREGOR WALLIS, who, six years ago, gained the distinction of being the first white woman to travel across certain wild regions of the Andes Mountains and the headwaters of the Amazon in South America, is back in New York with another thrilling story—that of the battle she and her husband, Dr. B. F. Wallis, have been waging to carve a home and coffee plantation out of the Costa Rican jungles.

It was during one of her adventurous forays into Ecuador three years ago that she met and married Doctor Wallis, formerly professor of geology at Bryn Mawr and Northwestern who was then engaged in a search for oil for American interests. The newlyweds pulled up their stakes and went gold hunting for themselves on the headwaters of the Magdalena River. Their hunt was unsuccessful, and late in 1925 they went to Panama, searching for manganese deposits.

"It's easy to talk about it now," Mrs. Wallis says, "but it wasn't so easy then. Those nights on the jungle trails, with animals of all sorts around you, aren't quickly forgotten! And snakes that hang down from the trees and bushes and touch your cheek as you pass! It was a wonderful experience, but to a woman with any trace of unsteady nerves it would lead to nightmares. We found the manganese, all right, but it was too far from a shipping point to make mining it commercially practicable."

FROM Panama they went to Limon, Costa Rica, and again plunged into the interior. High up on the side of an old volcano they found a stretch of jungle which was ideal for coffee. They decided to turn it into a plantation. Then began a struggle to create a home in the wilderness, a struggle which has lasted two years and is not ended yet.

"The piece of jungle which we decided was suitable for raising coffee was part of a large hacienda which had never been cultivated," Mrs. Wallis said. "From the Costa Rican who owned the land we purchased about 300 acres. It was absolutely wild land, covered with vegetation—creepers and trees, including many cedars. Our first task was to clear off the land, a herculean labor. The cedar proved to be very useful. What wasn't dragged out to be converted into lumber and shipped away we used ourselves for building. The work is all done by native peons. The peons clear away the underbrush with their long, sharp machetes. The trees are then cut down and hauled away by oxen.

"As soon as we had cleared enough ground we built our home. It is a two-story cedar dwelling, on a lattice foundation, and looks something like a Maine lodge. We are two hours' ride by horseback from the railroad at La Peralta. There's nothing there but a small station and a warehouse to store stuff that's being shipped in or out. Four hours' ride by train brings us to the seaport on the Atlantic. That's Limon, and it's 54 miles away. We are located about 3500 feet above sea level, and from the porch of our house we can look between the mountain ranges and see the ocean more than 50 miles away. That's why we've named our place 'Atalaya,' which, very freely translated, may be said to mean 'High Watchtower Overlooking Land and Sea.'

"Behind our house are the 10 or 12 shacks occupied by the laborers. In the busiest season we employ about 25 of them and they live there with their families, if they have any. We keep a small store, where we supply them with food and clothing at cost prices. Everything that we have shipped has to be hauled from the station at La Peralta by mules or oxen over winding mountain paths. Compared with prices in this country, labor is very cheap. The peons get about three colones, or 75 cents, each a day, unless they are working on contract. The mandador, or foreman, who directs their work, gets a salary of 25 colones a week, equivalent to $6.25. Although the labor is cheap, it is not very efficient. They will do no work in the rain, and when you consider the rain you get there, you can see how much they loaf. It rains steadily during November, December and January, and very frequently for the next two months. They also manage to take off one or two days every week to celebrate some saint's birthday.

"On account of our remoteness and the primitive methods we are compelled to employ, we have been able to clear only 100 acres so far. This ground is now under cultivation, and in another two years we expect to have our first coffee crop. It takes four years before a coffee plant, or tree, becomes productive. While the early work of clearing away the jungle was taking place, we were planting the coffee seeds in small nurseries. After four months, when they had reached a height of about 12 inches, we planted them in fields that had been cleared.

"COFFEE plants require a lot of shade, so when clearing the jungle we took care to leave certain of the trees with a spreading foliage. In addition, we had to plant others. The plants also need much attention. Four times a year the earth between the plants has to be spaded by palleros—skilled diggers, who use a special kind of very sharp spade. As our first seeds have been planted two years, it will be another two years before we get production. However, we expect to have a very fine kind of coffee, as the pulverulent volcanic soil in which we have planted and the climatic conditions are both very favorable. Costa Rican coffee ranks with the finest in the world, but the United States hasn't discovered that fact yet. Most of it is imported by England and there distributed to the North European and Scandinavian countries, where the people are very particular coffee drinkers.

"Clearing the soil and planting a crop has only been one of our difficulties. We have had much trouble with wild life. There are innumerable snakes and we have to be very careful of them. There are many dangerous animals, and jaguars not infrequently drift our way and kill off cattle. But worse than either of these difficulties to overcome is the loneliness. We have two neighbors. The natives from whom we bought our ground are only a 10-minute ride from us, but they are people of an entirely different viewpoint and we have too little in common to be very friendly. Our other neighbors are a family of English people who have a coffee plantation only a half-hour's ride away. We are so located that radio reception isn't very successful, so we have very little contact with the outside world. Our work, of course, keeps us pretty busy. Our day begins at 6 in the morning. We're preparing to electrify the place now with a small plant, and we've just put in a kind of pumping system. Overlooking the crops, the laborers and tending to the thousand and one things that always need attention make our days pretty full.

"However, we find time for some pleasures. There is a lagoon on the plantation of our English neighbors and we go swimming there. There is also good hunting, but the best sport of all is grave digging. That is, hunting for old Indian graves, some of them dating back two or three centuries.

"The old Indians used to cover their graves with a certain kind of porous flat stone, over which they heaped dirt. We take a long iron rod with a sharp point, and when we come to a likely-looking mound we thrust it in several feet. If it's a grave, it will touch one of these stones and give forth a hollow sound. Then we dig in. We have found many pieces of pottery, amulets and objects worked in metal, and pieces of gold. These graves are so old that nothing of the skeletons now remains. We made an interesting discovery one day. When we dug up one of the grave stones we found that it had been carved with the figure of an elephant. Elephants have not been known to exist on this hemisphere, at least for thousands of years. Perhaps the Indians who carved that stone were a migratory tribe of remote Asiatic origin. Anyway, it was a mystery to us and would be an interesting problem for archeologists."

Mrs. Wallis is now visiting friends in New York, but will soon rejoin her husband at home. With her is her 2-year-old daughter. Mrs. Wallis is a slender little woman of 35. The last thing a casual acquaintance would be apt to guess about her is the fact that she is an intrepid explorer and adventurer who has had more than one narrow escape. She originally came from Waupaca, Wisconsin. She studied journalism at Columbia University during the war. Then she decided to see the world. She went to Havana, and from there to South America where she spent seven months in the wilds. In 1923 she went to Japan, where she became editor of the English publication of a Japanese daily and shortly afterwards took over the Tientsin Star in China. She went back to Tokio several days before the earthquake and was there during that disaster. Then she returned to the United States and wandered off to South America again, where she met Doctor Wallis.

Her most daring adventure occurred in 1922. Over trails never before traversed by a white woman she crossed the Andes from Lima, Peru, to Para, at the mouth of the Amazon River. As the crow flies, it is nearly 3000 miles. Her purpose was to cross the continent from west to east. With her were an English guide, two muleteers and five pack animals.

"The American Consul at Lima," she recalls, "was annoyed with me for attempting the trip. Everyone said if I escaped the fever and the Indians it would only be to fall over a cliff or to be attacked by wild animals. Both of these latter events transpired. The fall over the cliff was the worse. My guide and I were riding behind the pack animals when we came to a place where a landslide resulting from rains had shaved the trail very thin. The animals in front got panicky and mine, crowded back by the others, took me over the cliff. I thought it was all over then, but luckily we caught in some underbrush 30 feet below. The guide said my mule turned two somersaults in the air before he landed. Neither of us was hurt. I climbed up and we hoisted the mule up with a rope.

"PROBABLY the most remarkable thing about the trip was that I didn't get carried off by the Indians. The Campa tribes are known to desire white women. The women are kidnaped for the chiefs and there is no question of ransom. They look very fierce, with slanting red stripes across their cheeks and crowns of plaited grass on their heads. They are clothed in hand-woven garments dyed a beautiful mahogany brown, with bead belts of white Job's tears. The Indians always know when a party goes through. You never see them, but they know by means of inter-tribal runners. Two men who came through a day or two after I did were held captive and questioned for several days because the Indians thought they were of my party. They were after me, but the fact that I was dressed like a man must have deceived the Indians who saw me.

"When I came to Iquitos, after paddling in a dugout canoe down the Pichis River, the people could hardly believe that I had come all the way from Lima. When the natives saw my letter of introduction from a high official in Peru they gave me a banquet. From there I took a launch down the Amazon to Para, on the east coast. From Para to New York is only 12 days."

WENT to the "Chiropractor's" Office and NEVER CAME OUT ALIVE

What the Fate of Eleanor Lehman Uncovered About the Activities of "Doctor" Hoffman.

"Dr." Louis Hoffman.

Deputy Coroner Charles Rogers.

Assistant District Attorney Pearl McCall.

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch Sunday Magazine

WASHINGTON, D. C.

LOUIS HOFFMAN hung out a sign of "Doctor of Chiropractic," and Washington took him at his word. His office was small, dingy, unprepossessing, but that was his business and the business of those who chose to be his clients. He had a goodly number of clients, too, mostly young women, and, what with the man's announcement of his chiropractic qualifications, there was no reason to believe his patients found their way to his door for any purpose but to be kneaded and twisted and tweaked in the accepted manner of chiropractors. "Doctor" Hoffman went quietly at his work and as far as the city's police were concerned the man's record was beyond reproach.

But one day, not long ago, a young woman named Eleanor Lehman found her way to Hoffman's office. That visit marked her end. She never came out of that dingy little room alive, but her death started an investigation which may likely prove the uncovering of the most surprising medical crime in the history of the capital. Eleanor Lehman's martyrdom seems likely to bring to light somber facts. It now appears that Hoffman, the "Doctor of Chiropractic," was only a blind for Hoffman, dealer in sinister and unlawful practice, and that the young women who took themselves to his dismal quarters went there not for casual ailments but in desperation, to avoid the unhappy lot of unlawful motherhood.

If the District Attorney can establish his suspicions in the case of Eleanor Lehman, "Doctor" Hoffman in all probability will receive the extreme penalty. For there is an eyewitness to the whole sinister affair, a woman believed by the police to be a "come-on" for Hoffman, who accompanied Eleanor Lehman on her fatal visit to the little dark office. This witness tells that Hoffman broke his patient's neck.

LIKE so many of the great mysteries in the annals of crime, the Lehman case did not come into the light suddenly and sensationally. The expose came gradually.

Here was a young girl, a stenographer in a private office, who was said to have been troubled with persistent headaches which no medicine seemed to cure.

She met another young girl, who told her that she, too, had been troubled with such pains, especially when working at a desk all day, and that she had been completely cured by a doctor to whom she would be very glad to take Miss Lehman.

Accordingly, they made an appointment, paid a call upon the doctor in question, and he found the situation more serious than had been expected. The headaches, he explained, were due to a broken vertebra, and even while the girl was on the table she lapsed into unconsciousness.

All efforts to bring her around failed completely, and before help could be summoned she died.

The doctor, according to the ethics of the medical profession, communicated immediately with the girl's parents, called in her family physician and turned the case over to him.

That, briefly, was Hoffman's explanation of the young woman's case.

BUT the girl's family said that Eleanor had never complained of headaches. They further said that they were certain she had suffered no fall or accident that could have broken the vertebra; they said she had complained of no pains in her neck.

And when the Coroner held his inquest, to eliminate any possible reflection upon the professional integrity of "Doctor" Hoffman, it was learned that Hoffman's medical degree had come from a "medical college" of which he was president, secretary, dean and sole professor, and that the "girl friend" who had brought Miss Lehman to him had—for no apparent reason—disappeared from the face of the earth.

None of these facts was incriminating in itself, but together they inspired sufficient suspicion on the part of the Coroner's jury to hold him under heavy bond for action of the grand jury, and to forbid him to leave the jurisdiction of the court.

So, for the first time, the probing fingers of the law set to work in the affairs of "Doctor" Louis Hoffman, self-styled chiropractor. It was a woman prosecutor—Assistant District Attorney Pearl McCall—who directed those fingers in the investigation.

"Doctor" Hoffman's story, as he told it to the Coroner's jury, was clear, candid and matter of fact.

No, he had never seen the girl before her visit to his office. Yes, he had known her companion—Miss Dottie King—having treated her for similar headaches. He had cured her, and it was probably for that reason that Miss King had brought Miss Lehman to him.

Yes, he had received his diploma from a school of which he was the head, but he had actually studied medicine as a male nurse at Providence Hospital. After all, the gentlemen of the jury should realize that there was no law in Washington to prevent the practice of medicine without a license and, indeed, there was no system of licensing physicians. As to the school, that was simply a legalized form of teaching physio-therapy to younger men who wanted to take it up as a profession. He could have very easily conducted such teachings without incorporating himself, but he chose to make his work public and open.

But Prosecutor McCall was not satisfied. The jury, she protested, should not be misled by a suave manner, and should not allow their suspicions to be lathered over with verbal soap.

The fact remained that Hoffman was posing as a recognized physician with a college degree; that he had been practicing his method upon a young girl, and that after his treatment the girl's neck was found to be broken.

IT MAY have been, to be sure, that her neck was broken when she came to him, and that she was actually dying when she entered his office. But there was no proof, at least, that she was, and the only witness who could say one way or the other—either affirm or deny the story of the "doctor"—had mysteriously disappeared.

Certainly that alone constituted grounds for a "reasonable doubt," as the courts call it. The jury must hold this self-styled medic until something more definite could be established. The jury did.

But it was not so easy to ferret out the truth as at first it had appeared.

Days passed, and not an additional ray of light was thrown on the subject. The body of Eleanor Lehman was buried in a Washington cemetery. Time wore on without furnishing evidence either for or against the "doctor" and his dingy little office.

Then, suddenly, came a new lead that again set the fingers of the law in progress.

An anonymous telephone call to a Washington newspaper advised an astonished city editor that it might be well to investigate the death of a certain Indian, a man—a visitor to Washington—some months before, in which a certificate of "death from natural causes" had been issued by the Coroner.

ACCORDING to the informant, the Indian had died in Hoffman's office under circumstances similar to those in the case of the Lehman girl and, despite the fact that a natural death certificate was issued, the man's neck also had been broken. Furthermore, the anonymous voice continued, if the case were tracked down it would be found that the physician named on the certificate was a mythical character, and that the Coroner had been duped into whitewashing a murder.

But before the records could be searched thoroughly regarding the supposed Indian victim there came a telegram to Miss McCall from Patterson, New Jersey, stating that Dottie King—whose name was really Mrs. Dolores Monroe—had been placed under arrest and was being held as a fugitive from justice for Washington police.

She corroborated Hoffman's story. But she would not explain why she had run away. She declared she did not want to return to Washington; she fought extradition. It was not until Miss McCall herself went to Patterson and conferred with her that she agreed to allow herself to be brought to Washington to act as a Government witness in the case, with the assurance that she would not be prosecuted as an accessory. She is now being held on that ground, but only on a technical charge.

Once in Washington, Dottie King, or Mrs. Monroe, went into solemn council with Assistant District Attorney McCall. Just what was said at that somber session is not known; just what pleas, what persuasions, what arguments Miss McCall may have used have not been revealed. Probably Mrs. Monroe again and again reiterated her statement as to Hoffman's integrity and his ethical honesty; perchance she may have insisted on the forthrightness of her first statement regarding him.

BUT regardless of what went before, Mrs. Monroe ultimately told this story: Months ago, she related, she herself went to Hoffman for an operation and, as he performed it successfully and at a reasonable cost, she afterwards brought friends and unfortunate girls whom she heard of to him. She would not admit that he paid her any salary or fee for bringing him patients, but intimated that the patients did so upon occasions.

As time passed, she continued, the sinister profession of the self-styled doctor grew with leaps and bounds, and in the course of her "missionary work"——as she says he called it—she met Eleanor Lehman.

Miss Lehman, she says, was in an unfortunate condition and wished to have medical aid, so she took her to Hoffman, by appointment, and she herself acted as nurse, as she usually did in such cases.

The patient had been prepared for the operation and placed on the operating table when Hoffman entered the room, Mrs. Monroe said, and Hoffman, after an examination, produced the necessary surgical instruments.

Just as he was starting the operation the patient suffered a convulsion, screamed several times and Hoffman grabbed her by the throat, according to the girl, in an effort to quiet her. Miss Lehman still continued to moan, however, complaining that he had hurt her neck, and after another convulsion lapsed into unconsciousness. Ten minutes later she was dead, despite their efforts to revive her.

Hoffman then quietly sat down and discussed the situation with her for some time, she said, explaining that she would have to be involved in the case, as there was a great possibility that someone had seen her bring the girl into his office.

He told her, Mrs. Monroe continued, that if she did not verify his account of the affair to the last word, he would involve her in the crime as an accessory before and after the fact. He then sketched out the story he intended to tell police if any suspicion were aroused, she related, but he told her that he hoped to obviate any trouble by assuming a frank and open attitude.

For her own part, Mrs. Monroe explained, she ran away because she was afraid she would break down if questioned and would betray the whole affair.

That story, told to the grand jury, resulted in the indictment of "Doctor" Hoffman on charges of first-degree murder, for which he was immediately rearrested and held without bail in the District Jail, pending a conference between Miss McCall and Deputy Coroner Rogers concerning the condition of the Lehman girl at the time of her death.

Rogers, who had examined the girl's body, explained that he had conducted the autopsy without any idea of possible unlawful practice and could not say whether it had been attempted or not.

A second autopsy was held. It was discovered that Mrs. Monroe's description of Miss Lehman's condition was correct.

THE next day Miss McCall brought Hoffman and his accuser face to face. Mrs. Monroe repeated her story, just as it had been given to the grand jury.

Throughout it, Hoffman sat motionless, expressionless, neither denying or admitting anything. After it was over he was asked whether he had anything to say, and he replied:

"Only that what she says is not true. I have never performed an operation of any kind in my life. I am not a surgeon and I know nothing of surgery. I only know that this girl was brought to me to have a headache cured and she died of a broken neck before I could call help. I have never performed an operation of any kind in my life!"

But Louis Hoffman, "Doctor of Chiropractic," when he made that statement, did not know that Miss McCall had within her safe five affidavits from as many women who testified to the contrary, and based their testimony on personal experience.

And wasn't the Cap'n right? Sure he was right. Who was it that dispossessed him of his tee-ritory that he had discovered and annexed to the United States? Who was it that wrecked his castle and drove him out of his dee-strict? Who raided his shack and broke up his big Sunday beer business? Why, the capitalists, of course.

Then, seven years after he was dead, who finally won the 42-year "battle of Streeterville" in the Federal courts? Those same dern capitalists—the Chicago Title and Trust Company, representing big property owners of the district. They won it the other day when Cap'n Streeter's 24 heirs were denied any part or share in the real estate holdings in "Streeterville"—holdings now estimated to be worth more than $500,000,000. The action was that of the United States Circuit Court of Appeals in dismissing the heirs' appeal from a former Federal Court decision.

The heirs came right back with another suit, which was wilder even than the departed Captain's. It asks nothing less than the ejection of 600 property owners from a 200-acre district of skyscrapers, smart shops and such hotels as the Drake, the Allerton and the Davis. The suit also asks for $5,000,000 damages. But it isn't being taken very seriously. The Appeal Court's recent action is generally regarded as the last important legal word in the long controversy.

IT WAS a dry victory, this last legal tilt. It came as a sort of anticlimax to what surely was the most picturesque conflict ever waged within an American city. The battlefront has been quiet for seven years. The last actual shot was fired in 1921, shortly before Cap'n Streeter's death. The rest was tame. For real fireworks, of which this court action was but a faint echo, look back to the days when the Captain, backed by "Ma" and a few followers, held forth with his shotgun as self-styled Governor and Generalissimo of the "District of Lake Michigan." War was war in those days.

His "dee-strict" was about 200 acres of sand carried up by the waves of Lake Michigan and deposited around his grounded houseboat, eventually annexing itself to the Chicago shore. He always claimed he "disctor's"

The heirs came right back with another suit, which was wilder even than the departed Captain's. It asks nothing less than the ejection of 600 property owners from a 200-acre district of skyscrapers, smart shops and such hotels as the Drake, the Allerton and the Davis. The suit also asks for $5,000,000 damages. But it isn't being taken very seriously. The Appeal Court's recent action is generally regarded as the last important legal word in the long controversy.

IT WAS a dry victory, this last legal tilt. It came as a sort of anticlimax to what surely was the most picturesque conflict ever waged within an American city. The battlefront has been quiet for seven years. The last actual shot was fired in 1921, shortly before Cap'n Streeter's death. The rest was tame. For real fireworks, of which this court action was but a faint echo, look back to the days when the Captain, backed by "Ma" and a few followers, held forth with his shotgun as self-styled Governor and Generalissimo of the "District of Lake Michigan." War was war in those days.

His "dee-strict" was about 200 acres of sand carried up by the waves of Lake Michigan and deposited around his grounded houseboat, eventually annexing itself to the Chicago shore. He always claimed he "discovered" it and held out for discoverers' rights. For 30 years the picturesque Cap'n, with his plug hat on at a jaunty angle, his Prince Albert coat-tails flapping about his legs and a chew of fine-cut in his mouth, defied the City of Chicago, defied the State of Illinois and defied the Government of the United States to oust him. Even after they did oust him as a squatter he defied them anyway. Many and many a shotgun battle, hand-to-hand fight and legal skirmish took place, but never was his ardor dampened or his spirit crushed. With his trusty shotgun in hand he remained the fighter indomitable.

DISPOSSESSED, driven away, sent to jail, beaten, his property wrecked and his followers scattered, the Captain always came back for more. He kept on renewing the struggle at intervals until pneumonia finally carried him away for good in his eighty-first year. With his last conscious breath he demanded that he be buried in his silk hat and long-tailed coat. And that was done.

Never for a second did Cap'n Streeter recognize the authority of the City of Chicago or the sovereignty of the State of Illinois, yet he was an ardent patriot. When the United States courts intervened he always tried to hang the blame on the capitalists. They were influencing the Government against him. The Government itself wouldn't persecute him that way. Not if they knew. No, sir! He was Chicago's original "America First" booster along about the time that "Big Bill" Thompson, the present anti-British Mayor, was absorbing from King George's school books his quaint ideas about American history. The Captain always went into battle against city or State forces with the American flag flying and his supporters lustily singing "The Star-Spangled Banner."

It was a great sorrow to him that in the later stages of his warfare he was brought into conflict with the forces of the United States. And it may be that he rests easier in his grave for not knowing that it was finally a United States court that robbed him of the honor and glory of being legally acclaimed the discoverer of Streeterville. He didn't want to fight the Government. When things first began to look bad for him, he established his District of Lake Michigan and elected himself the district's first representative to Congress. He never could understand why he was never seated at Washington, although he went down there to see about it. He couldn't understand why the United States should refuse to accept a new territory, presented as a gift.

George Wellington Streeter was an anachronism from the Middle Ages. He was a swashbuckler, an opportunist, but a man without fear and a man who never knew when he was beaten. And he had the saving grace of a sense of humor. He knew he was a ridiculous figure in his silk hat, tatterdemalion frock coat and ragged garments, with his long, red hair, his sweeping mustache and his unshaven face.

But he knew, too, when he sallied forth, shotgun in hand and thus arrayed, he struck a responsive chord in public sympathy. Thus, through his innumerable arrests and court appearances, he always had the support of the public and generally of the arresting officers and of the courts.

THE antecedents of this modern knight are lost. As a youth he toured the West in prairie schooners. When the Civil War broke out he enlisted as a private in a Michigan regiment and fought throughout the war. He was with Sherman on the March to the Sea. He emerged from the rebellion a full-fledged Captain and thus had a right to the title he insisted on all through the remainder of his stormy life.

After the war he traveled with a circus; then he turned boatman on the Great Lakes. He had many wives, sometimes more than one at a time, but that never bothered Cap'n Streeter. He never could keep track of his matrimonial affairs, and never made any serious attempt to do so.

Early in 1884 his adventurous spirit was fired by reports of a revolution in Honduras. So with the wife he had then, Marie, he constructed a 100-ton boat, the famous Reutan, and started with her from Indiana to Honduras.

On their way up Lake Michigan they encountered a terrific storm outside of Chicago. The little Reutan was blown shoreward. It grounded some 400 or 500 feet off what is now the foot of Chestnut street, on the new Gold Coast. Lake Michigan here was very shallow.

The Captain and his wife remained aboard the Reutan. The waves piled sand against the ship. When the storm abated, Streeter was astounded to find himself the center of a little island, about 450 feet from shore. Day by day the island grew, lakeward and shoreward.

Lake Michigan was filling up at this point, and had been for some time. The Captain did not know this. He only knew that his little boat Reutan was hopelessly bound in the shifting sands and that land was being made before his eyes.

Meanwhile, the wealthy property owners along the shore had noticed the tendency of the sand to fill in the lake and were eagerly trying to increase their holdings by extending their riparian rights. They built piers and other devices to entrap the sand and increase their properties. And they never gave a thought to Cap'n Streeter and his rapidly growing island right in front of them.

It was this action on their part, in building piers and putting out pillars to hasten the filling-in process, that gave the Captain his first great legal victory when the eventual conflict arose between him and the property owners over the ownership of the filled-in land.

EVENTUALLY, Cap'n Streeter's island joined the mainland. By this time it had swelled to more than 200 acres off the most advantageous part of Chicago. The shore owners promptly claimed the island as having been annexed to their shore property by the course of nature. A long legal battle began. But Streeter won first blood when in 1902 the Supreme Court held, first, that land under water belonged to the State. Then came up the case of Alexander H. Revel, pioneer builder, who had erected piers in front of his holdings to catch the sand. In this, the court held that land acquired by assisting nature also belonged to the state, but that land extended by the natural course of drift was undoubtedly the property of the abutting owner.

On the strength of this decision, Streeter was able to get an injunction preventing the property owners from interfering with his possession of the island, which was now hard and fast a part of the mainland. But he never was able to get a court to hold that the land belonged to him. He advanced some canny legal arguments, too. He went back to the time of the Indians, who sold the land on which Chicago is now built, and produced treaties to show the Indians sold land only down to the shore line of the lake. The land under the lake, he claimed, belonged to the United States Government. Therefore, having "discovered" the island that sprang up around the ill-fated Honduras-bound Reutan, he, of course, was owner of it by right of discovery. And he was generous enough to annex it to the United States, instead of setting up a separate government.

But this argument didn't prove exactly tenable in court and the Captain despaired of further legal measures. He settled down to a contest of arms and the long "battle of Streeterville" was on. Subsequent court decisions were all against him, but he hung on just the same.

CHICAGO lost interest in the court proceedings, but for nearly 20 years it was entertained by his military measures against invading "capitalists," constables, deputies, police and process servers. Until his death, he was ever on the alert with his shotgun. Time and again he chased invaders from the "dee-strict." Other times he was overpowered and driven away, but he always returned.

Sometimes his abode was a horse-drawn wagon, not unlike a prairie schooner. Then he got a dilapidated motor truck. Driven from one part of the "dee-strict," he settled in another, and, when too hard pressed, he took to his houseboat, the celebrated and historic "Vamoose."

Once, early in the fight, when it seemed that the "capitalists" would overwhelm him, he deserted the district and embarked in the good steamer Ola Streeter for the inland waters of Indiana. There, for a time, he scandalized the good people with his nightly soirees aboard the boat, for he always had a contempt for antiliquor laws. Then he came back and learned, to his astonishment, that Chicago had decreed no liquor was to be sold on Sunday. That was unthinkable. But he had a great idea. Observing that his was Government territory, discovered by him and by him annexed to the United States, he decided he was not subject to any such foolish Sunday closing law.

Here began the most picturesque stage of his career. Erecting a large rambling shack, he equipped it with a long bar and laid in a plentiful supply of beer. On the very first Sunday he had to close at 6 p. m.—because the beer was all gone. The next Sunday he laid in a larger supply and again sold out. All Chicago trooped out to the district through thirst and curiosity. Then one night when the Captain and his aides were too busy selling beer to man the shotguns, a squad of police raided the place, seized all the beer and wrecked the bar and fixtures.

AGAIN Streeter opened up, only to be raided again. Finally, on one of the raids the wooden shack mysteriously caught fire and was burned down. This raiding business was getting to be an annoyance, so Streeter and his wife decided on another venture. This wife was Alma Rockwood Streeter, still alive today and known as the dauntless "Ma" Streeter. Marie Streeter, who had helped build the Reutan and who stood by the Captain in his early struggles, had died several years before. And the Captain had married again—a couple of wives, it developed later. But Alma was the only wife present at the time. So he armed Alma and the bartenders with shotguns and opened up a new place—the "Castle." It was built of

Of the Post-Dispatch Sunday Magazine Staff

THE dawn of May 8, 1927, in Paris, saw the beginning of one of the most talked-of flights in modern aviation, one that failed in its purpose, yet provoked the interest and excited the sympathy of the world. Charles Nungesser and Francois Coli were hopping off on the westward trip across the Atlantic to North America.

There was a magnificent gesture to the flight that worked itself into the pulsing heartbeat of France. Nungesser was one of those who did things with just the right dash and flourish. While others planned the less dangerous eastward flight for a $25,000 prize, he sought the honor of being the first to cross westward. There was no money to be won, only danger to be courted and honor to be gained—maybe posthumously.

Death he laughed at, and Francois Coli, his friend, smiled approval. Coli the quiet, who had lost an eye in the war, studied charts and made computations. Nungesser, who had shot down 44 German planes, stood by and with relish surveyed the death-scorning insignia that he had had an artist paint on the fuselage, the personal coat of arms he had once carried on his military pursuit ship.

IT WAS a distinctive design. On a background of a large black heart had been drawn a white skull and crossbones, emblem of the Crown Prince's regiment, and above this a white coffin, surmounted at either end by a lighted candle. Just part of the magnificent gesture. People recalled his daring in the war—how once, when an American friend had been shot down, Nungesser, on an avowed mission of vengeance, clambered impetuously into his plane and swept off toward enemy territory; how a few minutes later French line officers smiled as two planes, flaunting black crosses, went into tailspins and crashed to the ground, leaving black plumes of mourning in the sky.

The skull and coffin jibed oddly with the poetic name of the craft, the "White Bird," whose double row of wings quivered under the vibration of the 450-horsepower motor. Nungesser flitted here and there among friends while Coli in the cockpit of the biplane "gunned" the motor impatiently. Then with a wave of the hand Nungesser hopped aboard, the blocks were pulled from under the wheels and the ship taxied down the runway.

With enough fuel to keep the "White Bird" aloft for 40 hours, Nungesser and Coli took off toward Ireland on their flight to North America, which they hoped to make in 35 hours, confident in their ability to land in Boston, or nearby. A few hours later Fastnet, Ireland, reported that the "White Bird" had soared over the village and pointed out to sea, and newspapers the world over printed in heavy black type one of those one-paragraph "bulletins" telling briefly of the departure from Ireland.

That was to be the last authentic word of Nungesser and Coli. Telegraph editors sat tight and chewed cigars, waiting for the tap-tapping that would tell of the flyers being sighted by a ship at sea. But it never came. Days passed and searching expeditions scoured Newfoundland and the waters adjacent on the doubtful tip that farmers in the vicinity of Harbor Grace had heard what they took to be the sound of an airplane motor. But the parties gave up the search and returned.

MEANWHILE Chamberlin was making test flights in the "Columbia" at Mitchel Field, L. I., waiting for favorable weather reports for a flight to Europe and Commander Byrd was standing by with the "America." In San Diego the flight commander of the 110th Observation Squadron of the Missouri National Guard was tuning up his silver monoplane for a belated flight cross-country to Mitchel Field, from where he hoped to hop off for Paris—alone.

Two weeks later Lindbergh dropped down upon Le Bourget airdrome and into world renown. In another fortnight Germany was playing host to Chamberlin and the eccentric Levine. Byrd and his three companions splashed into the water at Ver-sur-Mer and swam ashore in the dark. But still no word from Nungesser and Coli.

The westward crossing, with its adverse winds and admittedly worse conditions to face, still challenged. Further flights eastward were regarded as unnecessary but the westward journey still beckoned with bony fingers and the "White Bird" became the symbol of the tragedy that awaited hearts stout enough to accept the dare.

But there were others ambitious to blaze the westward trail. Minchin and Hamilton, British flyers, accompanied by the 61-year-old Princess Lowenstein-Wertheim, left Upavon, England, August 31, bound for Ottawa in the monoplane "St. Raphael." Hours later they passed the Irish village of Inervan and faded out of sight over the Atlantic. During the night the lookout of the oil tanker, "Josiah Macy," 900 miles west of Ireland, thrilled to the sound of a motor overhead, and saw three flashes from a Morse light as the "St. Raphael" roared westward into the darkness with its Captain, Lieutenant-Colonel and 61-year-old Princess in the cabin. That was the last seen of the "St. Raphael." The usual "hours overdue" notices were printed and the customary fake reports and hoaxes run to the ground and the second attempted conquest of the westward jump was filed with the first. Another "premature" effort had met with failure.

There was still a third to join the ranks of the lost before the "Bremen" with its German-Irish crew was to conquer the storms out of Newfoundland. Captain Walter Hinchliffe, another Britisher, and Lord Inchcape's daughter, the Hon. Elsie Mackay, made the attempt on March 18 of the present year in their Stinson-Detroiter monoplane, the "Endeavor." They started from Cranwell airdrome, confident in the reliability of their Wright Whirlwind motor, but were never seen after passing out of sight of the Irish cliffs.

Thus, when Baron Gunther von Huenefeld sought funds in Germany to finance the expedition of a Junkers monoplane across the Atlantic, he met with stern opposition on every side and was barely able to raise the necessary money. Critics pointed to the impressive list of the missing — Nungesser, Coli, Minchin, Hamilton, Lowenstein-Wertheim, Hinchliffe and Mackay. Not one had succeeded.

That Von Huenefeld, Major J. C. Fitzmaurice, commanding officer of the Irish Free State's air force, and Captain Hermann Koehl flew from Baldonnel airdrome, Ireland, to Greenly Island, in the Strait of Belle Isle between Labrador and Newfoundland, is now part of flying history. It is also part of the record that their plane, the "Bremen," landed 500 miles off its course due to variations in the compass encountered near Newfoundland, and the happy circumstance that the ship did not land in the ice wastes of Labrador with empty fuel tanks was a matter of luck in sighting a lighthouse when the gasoline was all but gone.

This stroke of luck, added to the skill and bravery of the pilots, has helped to unseal the book that tells of what befell the "White Bird," the "St. Raphael" and the "Endeavor" and given us at least a glimpse into its pages. So that, in the light of what difficulties the "Bremen" met and conquered, we may for the first time draw probable conclusions as to the fate of the others.

Briefly, the "Bremen's" flight was as follows: The early part of the trip was uneventful, the plane flying about 50 feet above the water, except to rise over occasional storms. When 600 miles off Newfoundland and in the neighborhood of the magnetic pole, the compass became useless. Here, too, the plane encountered the Newfoundland fog and had to climb to 6000 feet. In the darkness the "Bremen" passed over Newfoundland and, when dawn came, the pilots knew that they were lost. Judging correctly from the character of the country over which they were flying that they had gone far into Labrador, although they had no way of telling how far, they steered southeast, using the sun as a guide, and about noon, as their gas and spirits were at their lowest ebb, the lighthouse on Greenly Island was sighted and the landing made.

Conjecture as to the fate of the lost divides itself into two parts: First, what befell them if they did not reach the North American continent; and, second, what befell if they did reach it.

MANY things besides gravity conspire to plunge a transoceanic airplane into the water. If a high altitude is maintained, ice is likely to form on the wings and weigh it down. This is due to the condensation of moisture on the wings and its subsequent freezing. Lindbergh spoke of encountering this difficulty and dropping to a lower and warmer altitude to melt it off. The "Bremen" was doubly guarded against this by a coating of paraffin oil on the wings and a steadily maintained level of 50 feet above the surface of the water.

Nungesser and Coli flew a biplane and hence had twice the wing surface of a monoplane on which ice might have formed. The others had monoplanes, but may have had to fly high because of fog.

If they flew low there was always the danger of the "downward bumps," atmospheric depressions, spoken of by the "Bremen's" crew, which all but precipitated the ship into the waves. A third possibility is that of a defect in the motor, or in the gas or the oil lines, or some other mechanical failing. Except for Fitzmaurice's cleverness in finding and repairing an oil-line break, the "Bremen" might have plunged and foundered before reaching Newfoundland. Then, of course, such a thing as a defective rudder, which is known to have sent one of the trans-Pacific planes into a fatal tailspin, is a possibility.

Since, however, it has been demonstrated that the prevailing westerly winds over the Atlantic furnish no insurmountable barrier, critics, assuming the mechanical perfection of the three lost planes, lean to the belief that at least one of them reached land and came to grief on this side. This impressed itself on the mind of Major Fitzmaurice as he sat down to write his articles, from which the paragraphs preceding this article are quoted. Somewhere, perhaps, among the frozen hills of Labrador may be one of these craft of high emprise frozen in the ice with the bodies of its crew huddled in the cabin; or crashed against a mountain, or hanging in a tree. It is even possible that some of the lost aviators may have picked up a stray Indian hunting party in the south part of Labrador or Eskimos in the north part and are still trying to make their way back to civilization.

When a plane approaches Newfoundland along the Great Circle route, its compass becomes useless and it must find its bearing by the sun or stars. The "Bremen" proved this. Now fog created near Newfoundland by the contact of the Gulf stream with the cold waters of the North may obscure both the sun and stars to such a degree that only an expert fog flyer, like Koehl, can find his way, and then only half-blindly.

What would befall a plane without a Koehl to guide it? It might pass between Cape Ray and Cape North into the great body of the Gulf of St. Lawrence and, its gasoline supply failing, land on the rough waters and sink as surely and as completely as in mid-Atlantic, without its crew ever knowing they had crossed the ocean.

OR, PASSING over Newfoundland in the night, like the "Bremen," it might fly too low and crash against a mountain in Labrador. Once over that vast territory of the Province of Quebec, usually spoken of as Labrador (although Labrador, strictly speaking, is only a strip along the seacoast), any of the usual eventualities of the air might befall. In addition, the "mirages" mentioned by Von Huenefeld and Fitzmaurice may have caused a crash. These men spoke of seeing the spires and roofs of towns and fully equipped airdromes that vanished upon being viewed through binoculars. Apparently, these were figments of their imagination rather than objective phenomena, a result of overstrained eyes and the desire they had to see a landing spot. A less experienced flyer, or even one who failed to take along field glasses, might well have attempted a landing on one of these "mirages" and come to grief. And finally, there is the obvious possibility of the fuel running out and a perfect landing being made in the snow—in the interior of Labrador, synonym for desolation.

"What fate overtook their gallant crews?" asks Fitzmaurice who leans strongly to the belief that at least one of his predecessors spanned the ocean. "Were they killed in crashing? Did they die of hunger and exhaustion or are they, or are some of them, fighting their way back through a wilderness of forest and a waste of snow? I do not know, but I sincerely hope they may be."

So the fate of the three planes and the eight pioneers who sat at their controls remains a mystery. But the success of the "Bremen" encourages the hope that the "White Bird," the "St. Raphael" and the "Endeavor," one or all, may have made port. And in this day, when man-made wings are receiving their supreme test over distances and amid conditions never before encountered, such a hope or possibility is not without its significance.

THEY called him "Soor"—which means "swine" and means also several less complimentary things. In fact, it is the lowest possible term of reproach. Perhaps that is why such a wretched name was tacked on to this mongrel pariah dog, by the Hindoos among whom he lived.

The Hindoos, for the most part, regard dogs as unclean, and they tolerate the animals' presence in their towns and villages only because the dogs are scavengers and keep the streets and alleys cleaner than the natives have energy to do. The poor brutes, as a rule, are half-starved and are forced to depend wholly upon themselves for a living. They are mongrels, and not prepossessing to look at.

Soor was a reddish-brown dog, bone thin and with pointed fox-like ears. But for mere chance he might have been allowed to spend his whole unhappy life in nosing for food in the gutters, and might never have found his way into history. Here is his story:

TALES of REAL DOGS

Soor, the Pariah Dog That Was a Tiger's Chum.

THEY called him "Soor"—which means "swine" and means also several less complimentary things. In fact, it is the lowest possible term of reproach. Perhaps that is why such a wretched name was tacked on to this mongrel pariah dog, by the Hindoos among whom he lived.

The Hindoos, for the most part, regard dogs as unclean, and they tolerate the animals' presence in their towns and villages only because the dogs are scavengers and keep the streets and alleys cleaner than the natives have energy to do. The poor brutes, as a rule, are half-starved and are forced to depend wholly upon themselves for a living. They are mongrels, and not prepossessing to look at.

Soor was a reddish-brown dog, bone thin and with pointed fox-like ears. But for mere chance he might have been allowed to spend his whole unhappy life in nosing for food in the gutters, and might never have found his way into history. Here is his story:

In the Carnatic district, early in the nineteenth century, the local rulers had zoos for their own personal amusement. In these were kept all manner of wild beasts, and there were adjoining tanks full of enormous alligators.

In a moment of thrift one such ruler hit on an economical method for furnishing the raw meat for his savage pets. It was costly to buy cattle and sheep and goats for the carnivora to feed on. So he found cheaper rations for them.

HE ORDERED that large quantities of pariah dogs be caught and thrown into the cages and into the alligator tanks. The luckless dogs proved an acceptable diet for the monsters. Also, it amused the cruel spectators to watch a dog dragged screaming below the surface of the water by a crocodile's jaws or to see it crushed to death at a blow from the paw of a hungry lion or tiger.

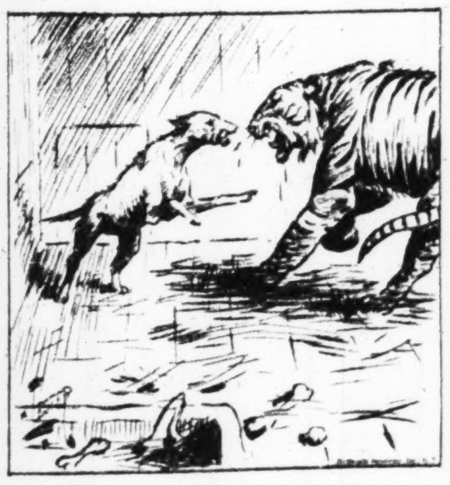
In the cages of the larger carnivora were small doors, through which the cages' occupants could not possibly squeeze their way, but through which dogs could be shoved, for their daily food. Crowds used to gather in front of the bars "to watch the fun."

One day a young pariah dog was caught in an alleyway and carried to the zoo to serve as dinner for a gigantic Bengal tiger, which was the ruler's prize exhibit. The dog was lively and the tiger was hungry. So the spectators looked forward to an interesting sight. The dog was later to be known throughout the region as "Soor"—one of the few pariahs honored by any kind of a name.

Soor was thrust in through the small door, and the door was clapped shut behind him. There was a wide dish of rice and milk in the cage for the tiger but the striped brute preferred fresh meat. He was savage with hunger.

As Soor was tossed in through the aperture the tiger bounded at him. Soor darted nimbly out of reach of the mighty paws and backed into a corner of the cage. The tiger, having cornered him, advanced in leisurely fashion to kill and devour him.

Soor ducked under the crushing forepaw that sought to smash him to a pulp, and he drove his keen white teeth clean through the tiger's nostril. Then, once more ducking out of reach he flashed back into his corner and stood ready for the tiger's next move.



At last the tiger drew back, bleeding and tortured.

Maddened by the pain of the bite, the tiger sprang afresh at the little dog. Once more Soor dodged the charge, and his teeth met in the tiger's underlip, ripping it deeply and agonizingly. Roaring with wild fury, the tiger flung himself again and again at the corner where Soor crouched.

But the pariah dog had learned speed and strength and fierceness in the alleys where he had been forced to battle for his livelihood. He was fearless, and he was an inspired fighter, deadly and as swift as a striking snake. Again and again he eluded the tiger's rushes. Again and again he slashed or bit deep into the tiger's face and throat.

At last the tiger drew back, bleeding and tortured and panting. He had had enough of the strange duel, and he had no desire to continue assailing a foe which was everywhere and nowhere, and whose teeth had such unerring punitive powers. The tiger was through.

Soor was yanked out of the cage. He had given the spectators rare sport and they wanted more of it. He was stuck into a box and kept there for several days, fed and watered, but not allowed to escape. Meanwhile, except for his dish of rice and milk and his pan of water, the tiger was left without food. He craved raw meat and he grew frantic for the lack of it.

WHEN the keepers thought the tiger was hungry enough they shoved Soor back into the cage. The half-starved tiger launched himself at the dog. Once again the former scene was enacted. Soor dodged and shifted and ducked the fierce attacks and countered by ugly wounds upon his enemy's face and throat.

At last the tiger drew back from the conflict, as before. But this time, Soor seemed to read some new meaning in the giant's retreat. For, instead of crouching in his corner, he stepped forward fearlessly and touched noses with the great creature. Then Soor's tail began to wag.

Turning his back on his recent antagonist, the dog walked over to the dish of rice and milk and began to eat. The tiger followed, ranging alongside the dog and eating peacefully out of the same dish with him. The spectators stared, unbelievingly.

That was the beginning of one of the strangest friendships in animal history. Dog and tiger lived on for years in the cage, the dog going in and out at will through the small door. The two ate together, romped together, slept curled up side by side. It was a spectacle that brought incredulous visitors from all over the province.

(Yes, I know the story sounds fishy. But you will find it chronicled in Youatt's authoritative work on "The Dog," as well as in the "Oriental Papers" of Captain Williamson.)

Finally the tiger died. Soor was inconsolable at the loss of his loved chum. For days he moped miserably in a corner of the desolate cage, refusing to eat. Bit by bit the gallant little dog pined away, dying in less than a month after his tiger-comrade's death.

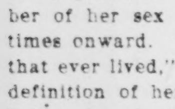
By the time old Mr. Lyle's well-polished sedan whizzed into the county seat it had the irresponsibility of a cyclone.

MRS. BENDER and NAPOLEON

By Booth Tarkington



IN OUR village it is popularly understood that Mrs. Henry Bender is the best of all women, and this affectionate estimate of her goes so far as to hold her superior to every other member of her sex from the earliest times onward. "The best woman that ever lived," is our customary definition of her, and he will be bold who denies that she deserves it.

She has lived here since she was a child; she is growing elderly now; and the glaring intimacy of village life, so commonly dangerous to reverence, if not to respect, has never found a flaw in her utter unselfishness.

In simple truth, she is one of those people whom we call "saints on earth," and this particular bit of earth is immeasurably the better because of what she has done for it.

Nevertheless, seeing her with her husband, thoughtful observers have been perplexed by Mr. Bender's expression. Even where competition is serious, he is easily the most solemn.

Almost as surprising as Mr. Bender's gravity is the expression of the saintly lady herself. After decades of self-sacrifice, her daily exercise is still the conduct of good works; but she shows none of the serenity that painters and biographers have taught us to expect to see upon the brows of saints.

HER look is preoccupied and anxious, even haggard; there is a doubt that she listens to a sermon, or, indeed, that she even listens with a full attention to anything. In fact, no matter what Mrs. Bender may happen to be doing, she seems to feel her conscience urging her to be doing something else; it is as if there were always some critically incomplete task to which she ought to be hurrying herself.

And, indeed, there always are such tasks upon her hands, and she is always actually in an anxious hurry—in so much of one that sometimes she faints from exhaustion.

She fainted five times in one day when she was helping the district nurse at the pesthouse, during the smallpox epidemic last winter.

"She doesn't know how to spare herself anything," the nurse said, and added, a little sourly, "nor anyone else, either!"

Two of the patients died, and the nurse found it difficult to forgive the form assumed by Mrs. Bender's anguish of regret.

"It was more like remorse, and she insisted that we were both responsible and that those two men would have been alive and well today, if we'd done the right thing for 'em," the nurse said later. "She upset me terribly, because she was so upset herself, and, while she blamed herself even more than she did me, I couldn't see the use of blaming anybody. Those two men couldn't have been pulled through; they didn't have the vitality to resist the disease, and so they died, and that's all there was to it! But, just after the second one went, Mrs. Bender heard about some new treatment for smallpox, and she got it into her head that, if we'd known about it in time, they'd both have been saved. The point I tried to make with her was this: That, even if the new treatment would have saved those two cases, we never heard of it till afterward. So how could we have tried it on 'em? But the way she argued, she said we were guilty of their deaths, because we ought to have heard of it in time to save 'em!"

Mrs. Bender's feeling about her brother-in-law, Rambo Bender, is not dissimilar. Rambo Bender, unfortunately, is the "town drunkard," and not to be reformed, even by Mrs. Henry Bender. Rambo doesn't wish to be reformed; in fact, he is wholly opposed to reformation, and likes things as they are.

"Look at Henry," he says, offering his brother as an example to be avoided. "Do you think I want to get like him?"

Nevertheless, his sister-in-law weeps over Rambo. "If we'd only had prohibition when Rambo was a young man," she said to her husband, the day after Rambo's last outbreak, "he never would have had this terrible craving for liquor. If prohibition had come in the nineties, Rambo would have been a useful citizen today."

"Well, it didn't," Mr. Bender returned in his gloomy manner, wherein there still lingers a relic of obstinacy, faint but imperishable. "The country wouldn't have voted for prohibition in the nineties—not under any conditions."

"No," she agreed. "That's why all of us who were alive then are so terribly to blame."

"I'm not to blame," Mr. Bender said. "I was alive then and I didn't take the slightest interest in prohibition. I never so much as had a thought about it. I'm not to blame for something I never even thought about."

His wife shook her head ruefully—probably her most frequent gesture. "Then I am. I'm to blame for not having made you think about it, Henry."

THE Benders had only one child, young Roger. Until Roger was 6 or 7 years old he was of a sickly habit, and Mrs. Bender, emaciated with her care of him, blamed herself for not having applied better scientific methods of "child up-bringing," though, as her husband said, she "had tried all there were"! And, when Roger caught the scarlet fever from some children he stopped to play with on the way home from school, one afternoon, her remorse was pitiable.

"We knew those children had been having scarlet fever, didn't we?" she sobbed, when her husband tried to reason with her. "We knew their house was between here and the school, didn't we?"

"Yes; but we didn't know he'd go around that way; it's two blocks farther and we never could have figured out he'd follow a stray cat that far, or that he'd catch it and take it in their yard, especially as he didn't even know those children. And we certainly couldn't have supposed their mother'd be fool enough to let them go out in the yard when they were still peeling and contagious. It's just one of those things we couldn't help."

"We could," she insisted. "We ought to have known all of those things!"

WHEN Roger recovered, he appeared to have been fitted with a new constitution; for his health became rugged. Nevertheless, his mother was unwilling to risk the chance of his following another cat. For several months Mr. Bender had to leave his lumber yard every afternoon, long enough to drive to the school and take Roger safely home.

Thus, for a time, the boy was prevented from forming any further germ-laden connections; but later, when he was 13, he contrived one day to associate himself with a group of youths suffering from another kind of contagion. They were all older than he; and it is evident how warmly he must have admired them, since he went with them upon their most calamitous excursion. George Wentz, 16, and the apparent leader of the group, said in court afterward that he had several times told Roger to go home; but Roger was not to be persuaded.

They wished to see a football game at the county seat; and, with no other thought than to convey themselves with comfort and rapidity, broke into old Mr. Lyle's garage and set forth in his treasured sedan.

Old Mr. Lyle is a bachelor who lives alone outside the more compact parts of the village. He had gone away to remain several days, and the boys intended to put the automobile in the garage at dusk, after they returned from the football game. No one would know they had borrowed it, they thought, and all would be well.

Unhappily, one of them had discovered that his father kept a carboy of synthetic gin in a private cabinet, and the son felt that under the law his right to a little exhilaration was as good as his father's.

It was easy to supplant a vacancy in the carboy with an equal amount of water—really a benefit to the father, if one looked at the matter rationally—and the expedition to the football game set forth, supplied with a jug as perilous as any in the Arabian Nights. Roger did not like the taste, but, in his desire not to make his inferior age conspicuous in such a company, he went to rash lengths.

So did the others, who were almost as ill-equipped with experience of what they trifled with; and it was illustrated upon them that alcohol is the most dangerous of servants, becoming the wild and treacherous master instead, if watchfulness be in the least relaxed. Moreover, as is well known, to set alcohol in command of gasoline is to arm Bedlam with axes.

By the time old Mr. Lyle's well-polished sedan whizzed into the county seat it had the irresponsibility of a cyclone.

It sideswiped and broke down the Stop-and-Go pillar at the principal street intersection of the town; then, without pausing, it ran down an elderly woman, took a wheel from a farmer's buggy, upset and injured a motorcyclist, and finally destroyed itself in collision with a laden coal truck.

Roger was saved, with some difficulty, from a term in the reform school; but nothing could save Mrs. Bender from her remorse. She reproached herself incessantly for not having "built up Roger's character," as she said, so that he would have been "free from temptation."

HER husband told her truthfully that they had both done everything possible to them in the building of Roger's character, and that a boy of 13 can neither be watched every moment of his life, nor prevented from making adventurous mistakes not to be expected from adults matured by their own previous mistakes. "You can't make a 40-year-old Sunday school superintendent out of any boy," Mr. Bender said, "no matter how many hours a day you talk to him."

He had no effect upon his wife, however, nor could he check what he called her "If-I-had-onlies." Thus he referred to a habit she had of beginning lamentations with "If I had only."

If she had only kept Roger with her on the day of the football game, she moaned, disgrace would have been spared him. If she had only known that he had become a follower of the older boys, she could have directed his admirations to worthier objects. If she had only understood the character of those older boys, she could have brought good influences to bear upon them and saved them, too. There was no end to the poor woman's "If-I-had-onlies."

Now there may appear to be some incongruity, with no obvious useful result obtainable, if we compare Mrs. Henry Bender's "If-I-had-only" habit of mind with the reminiscent thoughts of Napoleon Bonaparte, after he had been sent into retirement at St. Helena.

Nevertheless, a resemblance, as well as a dissimilarity, is discoverable and possibly instructive. Napoleon at St. Helena, pondering upon the events that brought him there, frequently said, "If I had."

If he had made sure, for instance, that Grouchy would arrive at Waterloo before Blucher, the island of St. Helena could not have become the imperial prison. Looking back upon his prodigious career, he uttered a hundred "If-I-hads" as significant as this one; if he had done otherwise than he had done in a hundred matters, St. Helena would never have known him; and, of course, this was only to say that his mistakes, later recognized for what they were, had brought him there.

And so it was with Mrs. Henry Bender lamenting what had befallen Roger; and herein her likeness to Napoleon. The essential dissimilarity between them is that Mrs. Bender said, "If I had only," while Napoleon said merely, "If I had."

Both believed in free will; both believed that the irrevocable past was not determined or solidified when it was the present, but was then open to be molded by a free choice of action; and this was a position which Mrs. Bender and Napoleon had a right to assume, since it is still an open question whether or no we are all mechanistic automatons, neither philosophy nor science having yet given us a perfectly demonstrated answer.

Therefore, taking Mrs. Bender and Napoleon upon their own ground and admitting that they may have been warranted in their belief in free will, we interest ourselves in the difference between what Napoleon characteristically said and what Mrs. Bender characteristically said.

In Napoleon's omission of the word "only" we might find a superiority of his mind over that of Mrs. Bender; in fact, we might find the dissimilarity between "If I had" and "If I had only" to be of an edifying significance. Mrs. Bender's "only" means more than regret; it means reproach—it means remorse and it sometimes means anguish. The important thing to discover is whether or not it may mean reproach, remorse and anguish that are futile.

OF COURSE, it may have been true that Napoleon was of a native disposition to omit the "only"; he may have been "born like that." But, when he was a boy at St. Cyr, there was a bitterness in him that makes us suspect his saying to himself sometimes: "Ah, if I only had the advantages of wealth and position possessed by these other boys!" It may be that, as the affairs in his hands became vast and therefore vastly demanding, he perceived that he had no time to lament mischances, no time to say "If I had only." But much more probably he had perceived the "only" to be useless.

Looking back upon mistakes that had ruined him, he knew that he had done his best and that his best had not been good enough, for here he was, in the end, at St. Helena. He could not play his great game again; he had played it, and all he could do was to review it. This he did with a cool, if somewhat melancholy, glance, seeing his mistakes in the historic light and not at all in the light that Mrs. Bender saw her own.

For in Mrs. Bender's lamentations what is extraordinary is the shadow of an implication that, if one tried hard enough, the past might still somehow be changed. Napoleon's point of view has the advantage here—both he and Mrs. Bender felt that if the thing were to be done over they would not repeat the same mistakes; but Napoleon perceived clearly that the thing was absolutely not to be done over.

Moreover, in reviewing his errors Napoleon understood that it had been impossible to avoid mischances, because he had been compelled to rely upon Generals and soldiers who were of human dimensions and therefore not ideally perfect military mechanisms; and he understood that he, too, was of human dimensions and imperfect, even in war.

He understood that the execution of the most excellently devised plans may be botched by a freak of weather. The retired Emperor perceived not only that he had been fallible but that he could not have been infallible; whereas, after any mischance, Mrs. Henry Bender suffered poignant remorse because she had not been infallible, and she made up her mind forthwith to be infallible in the future.

SHE blamed herself for not having been omniscient and omnipotent, determining henceforth to be both. After the gasoline and alcohol disaster to Roger, she promised that such a thing should never happen to him again, and as the village looked coldly upon him and she feared this might undermine his self-respect, she took him away to school and remained with him to watch over him.

She was sure that his new teachers would have only the best influence upon him; but, after what had happened, she felt, as she said, that "somebody should be with him all the time." Saturday was a whole holiday at the school, and on Saturdays she brought Roger home with her, a morning's journey by rail, and so found time to supervise the work of the Society for the Relief of the Village Poor and to see that Mr. Bender was getting proper food.

Mr. Bender's food was nourishing enough; but, unfortunately, he fell from a high pile of lumber and broke his leg. Upon that, as if in collusion to provide a rain of misfortunes, the treasurer of the Society for the Relief of the Village Poor went to Honolulu with the society's funds, and Roger, left alone at his school, while his mother hurried home to Mr. Bender, forgot to keep out of a draft after exercising and was prostrated with severe bronchitis in the school infirmary.

Mrs. Bender's omniscience was thus put to the test. Some of the village poor, in whom she was profoundly interested and for whose maintenance she felt responsible, might suffer painful privation, if she did not provide for them—she was president of the society and had herself appointed the defaulting treasurer. She had to organize and superintend an emergency bazar in order to supply the deficit; and, at the same time, it was necessary for her to nurse both her son and her husband, whose sick beds were a hundred miles apart.

She made a splendid effort to do the three things simultaneously and was put to bed herself, almost by force, when her temperature, due to influenza contracted on the train, reached 104 degrees.

During her convalescence, old Mr. Carmichael, the minister, came to see her one day; but after talking cheerfully to her for half an hour, he became a little testy. "What's the use of trying to say anything to you?" he said. "You don't listen. You've never really listened to me in your life. Don't you suppose I've noticed that from the pulpit? It's spoiled some of the best things I've said."

"YES, I know," Mrs. Bender murmured plaintively. "If I'd only impressed it upon Roger strongly enough that when he was overheated, he must always go straight to his room and change his clothes"——

"See here! Roger's all right. Didn't you have a letter yesterday saying that he's attending classes again?"

Mrs. Bender went on, unheeding: "Ah, if I'd only made my husband understand that he absolutely risked his life every time he climbed over those piles of lumber! If I'd only made him realize that, he'd have been a well man today!"

"He is," Mr. Carmichael said. "The only sick person around here is yourself."

"Yes," she returned unhappily. "A fine time for me to choose to be sick it is, too! I ought to have known that car was full of germs! If there ever was a time when I just had to be well, it was now—Roger with bronchitis, Henry with a broken leg and the society"——

"Dear me! The society's all right. The other ladies have put the bazar through just as well as if you'd been there, Mrs. Bender, and it's been a great success. And Mr. Bender's out on crutches. Listen to me for one moment, please. What's the matter with you?"

"The matter with me isn't my illness, Mr. Carmichael, it's my neglect and my ignorance. All this need never have happened, and, if I had been as energetic and intelligent as I should have been"——

"Wait a moment," he said. "Did you know there's a great famine in Persia, Mrs. Bender?"

"No. Is there?" Mrs. Bender made sounds expressive of pity and of impatience. "Oh, dear! If the doctor would only let me get out of this house"——

"What would you do, Mrs. Bender?"

"What would I do? That famine's got to be stopped, Mr. Carmichael."

"I hope it will be, Mrs. Bender. But there's worse news still: It looks as if there'd be another war in the Balkans."

"THAT'S got to be stopped, too, Mr. Carmichael. It's the most awful thing that ever happened to me, being helpless at such a time. A relief committee's got to be organized right away, and we ought to form a Balkan Peace Society this very morning. Then just look at my husband! He's stumbling all over town on his crutches, with nobody to look after him, and heaven knows when he'll fall again! and, worst of all, there's Roger, far away in school, all by himself and likely to bring on another relapse of his bronchitis at any time—and no one to do anything"——

The minister interrupted her again, and, by a natural coincidence, he was inspired to think of that other in whose resemblances and dissimilarities to Mrs. Bender we have been taking some interest.

"Mrs. Bender, I don't believe Napoleon Bonaparte himself would have made himself responsible for

When the Charlemag Fell

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch Sunday Magazine

TOURS, France.

FOR some time past, men had argued that the Tower of Charlemagne in Tours would collapse unless its sagging supports were strengthened, and the world would lose forever one of its most famous architectural relics of the middle ages. Letters were written and speeches made calling upon the Government to furnish the funds necessary to keep the structure from falling.

But an impoverished treasury could not afford an appropriation and Tours went about its work of manufacturing goods and playing host to tourists. People forgot about the supposed weakness of the Tower and modern business and tourists renewed their surge around the structure that had stood for eleven centuries. Meanwhile Germany ordered an appropriation to restore Cologne Cathedral and Britain had taken steps to rebuild the comparatively modern St. Paul's.

Avoid GRAY Hair

YES, GRAY HAIR can be avoided—if you know Kolor-Bak, the clean, colorless liquid which brings color back to hair, whether blonde, auburn, brown or black. tracted on the train, reached 104 degrees.

During her convalescence, old Mr. Carmichael, the minister, came to see her one day; but, after talking cheerfully to her for half an hour, he became a little testy. "What's the use of trying to say anything to you?" he said. "You don't listen. You've never really listened to me in your life. Don't you suppose I've noticed that from the pulpit? It's spoiled some of the best things I've said."

"YES, I know," Mrs. Bender murmured plaintively. "If I'd only impressed it upon Roger strongly enough that, when he was overheated, he must always go straight to his room and change his clothes"——

"See here! Roger's all right. Didn't you have a letter yesterday saying that he's attending classes again?"

Mrs. Bender went on, unheeding: "Ah, if I'd only made my husband understand that he absolutely risked his life every time he climbed over those piles of lumber! If I'd only made him realize that, he'd have been a well man today!"

"He is," Mr. Carmichael said. "The only sick person around here is yourself."

"Yes," she returned unhappily. "A fine time for me to choose to be sick it is, too! I ought to have known that car was full of germs! If there ever was a time when I just had to be well, it was now—Roger with bronchitis, Henry with a broken leg and the society"——

"Dear me! The society's all right. The other ladies have put the bazar through just as well as if you'd been there, Mrs. Bender, and it's been a great success. And Mr. Bender's out on crutches. Listen to me for one moment, please. What's the matter with you?"

"The matter with me isn't my illness, Mr. Carmichael, it's my neglect and my ignorance. All this need never have happened, and, if I had been as energetic and intelligent as I should have been"——

"Wait a moment," he said. "Did you know there's a great famine in Persia, Mrs. Bender?"

"No. Is there?" Mrs. Bender made sounds expressive of pity and of impatience. "Oh, dear! If the doctor would only let me get out of this house"——

"What would you do, Mrs. Bender?"

"What would I do? That famine's got to be stopped, Mr. Carmichael."

"I hope it will be, Mrs. Bender. But there's worse news still: It looks as if there'd be another war in the Balkans."

"THAT'S got to be stopped, too, Mr. Carmichael. It's the most awful thing that ever happened to me, being helpless at such a time. A relief committee's got to be organized right away, and we ought to form a Balkan Peace Society this very morning. Then just look at my husband! He's stumbling all over town on his crutches, with nobody to look after him, and heaven knows when he'll fall again! and, worst of all, there's Roger, far away in school, all by himself and likely to bring on another relapse of his bronchitis at any time—and no one to do anything"——

The minister interrupted her again, and, by a natural coincidence, he was inspired to think of that other in whose resemblances and dissimilarities to Mrs. Bender we have been taking some interest.

"Mrs. Bender, I don't believe Napoleon Bonaparte himself would have made himself responsible for

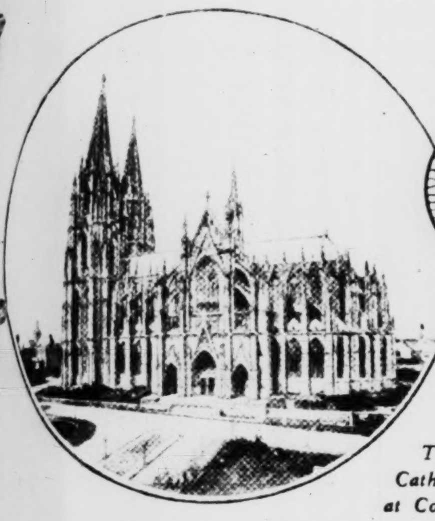
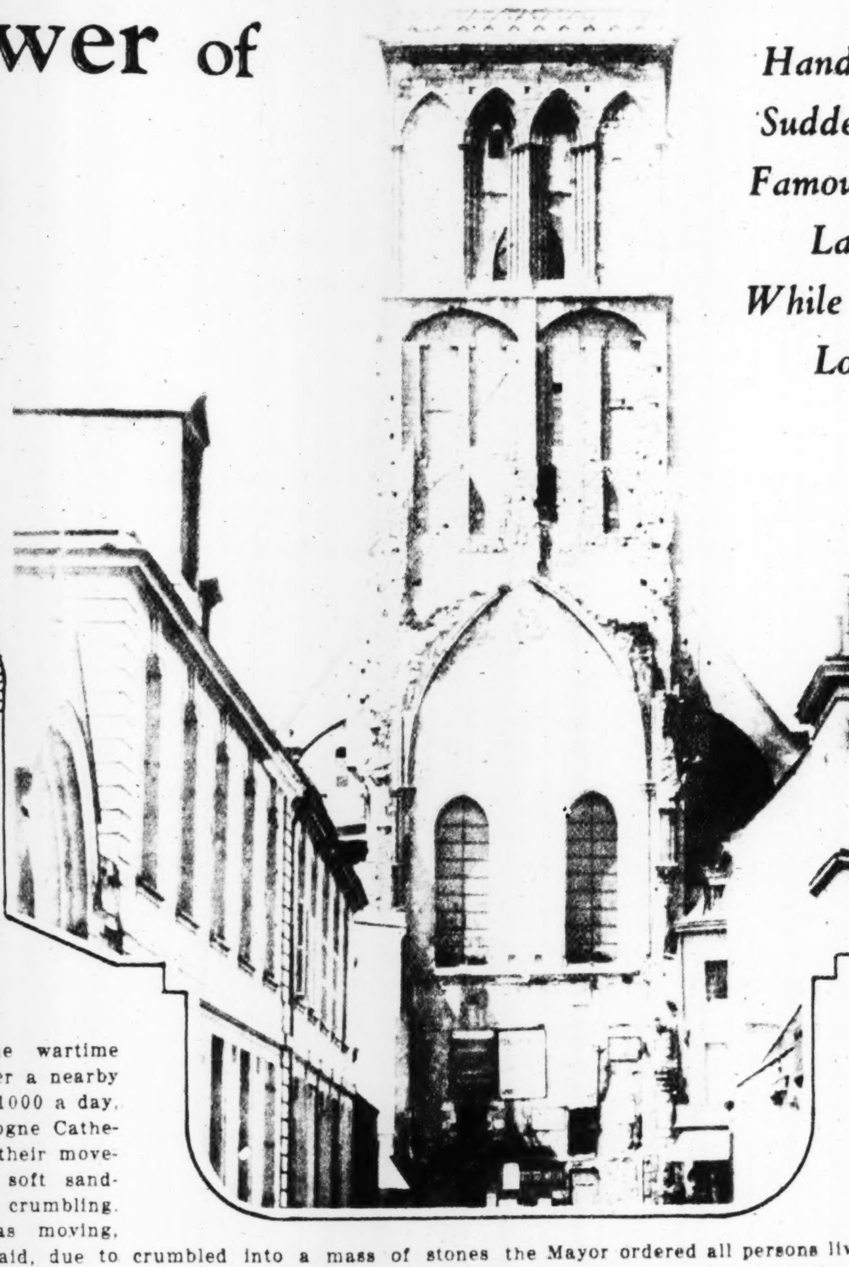
When the Tower of Charlemagne Fell

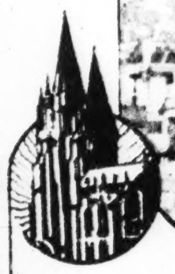
Hand of Time Suddenly Smites Famous Medieval Landmark While Thousands Look On.



The Cathedral at Cologne.



The Tower of Charlemagne at Tours.



St. Paul's Cathedral in London.

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch Sunday Magazine

TOURS, France.

FOR some time past, men had argued that the Tower of Charlemagne in Tours would collapse unless its sagging supports were strengthened, and the world would lose forever one of its most famous architectural relics of the middle ages. Letters were written and speeches made calling upon the Government to furnish the funds necessary to keep the structure from falling.

But an impoverished treasury could not afford an appropriation and Tours went about its work of manufacturing goods and playing host to tourists. People forgot about the supposed weakness of the Tower and modern business and tourists renewed their surge around the structure that had stood for eleven centuries. Meanwhile Germany ordered an appropriation to restore Cologne Cathedral and Britain had taken steps to rebuild the comparatively modern St. Paul's.

Troop trains of the wartime period, thundering over a nearby bridge at the rate of 1000 a day, had damaged the Cologne Cathedral by the vibration their movements set up. The soft sandstone showed signs of crumbling.

St. Paul's dome was moving, competent observers said, due to the fact that 28 of the 32 buttresses of the "parish church of the British Empire" were cracked and the masterpiece of Sir Christopher Wren was in danger.

Recently the Tower of Charlemagne, disintegrated by the effects of weather and time, and suffering from neglect, collapsed and crumbled into a mass of stones and dust. It happened suddenly, before the eyes of thousands of residents who, on a few hours' notice, had assembled to wait for the weakened structure to tumble.

Eighteen hours before it fell, the Tower first gave signs of its approaching doom. Cracks appeared across the face of it and the Mayor ordered all persons living near the Tower to vacate their premises pending an investigation. Before the investigating committee had fairly assembled, more cracks appeared and it was apparent that nothing could be done to preserve the historic relic.

Word quickly passed through the town and by evening a large part of the 75,000 inhabitants of Tours were on hand, waiting for the Tower to crumble. Searchlights were played upon it by the fire department and each new crack was traced with excited gestures. At 8 o'clock in the evening the old Tower trembled and swayed for the first time. A long moment it hung, as though striving to remain erect. Then the south facade gave and in another moment the whole magnificent pile, a thing of beauty since the middle ages, fell with a thundering sound and became a litter of broken stone. A great mass of debris spread two hundred feet down the street.

This unique occurrence, which has no parallel in European history, marked the passing of the last surviving building of a once famous and powerful abbey, that of St. Martin. The Abbey of St. Martin, built over the resting place of its patron saint, was completed in the year 800, or thereabouts, but all of its buildings, except that of the Tower of Charlemagne, have long since been pushed out of the way by business development.

Twenty-eight churches were under the Abbey of St. Martin and the abbey itself housed 200 monks. At one time it was the custom there to keep up a perpetual chanting in the chapel.

To the abbey in the year 770 came the mighty Charlemagne, he of the flowing beard, great warrior and statesman and one of France's best rulers. He came sadly, for his retainers carried the body of his wife, Luitgard. Near the foot of the Tower she was buried.

brick and guaranteed to stand against "accidental" fires incidental to police raids.

By this time Chicago had abandoned its Sunday closing and Streeter was troubled little by the police, but there appeared a new foe. Or rather the renewed assault of an old one. The "capitalists" were rallying again. The Chicago Title and Trust Company had taken over the fight and they were calling police and county aid. The "Castle" thereupon became a fortress, the stronghold of the beleaguered Cap'n and Ma.

IN THE almost innumerable skirmishes that followed, Ma stood valiantly by the Captain. When the shotgun shells became exhausted she turned apparent defeat into victory several times by bringing up reinforcement in the form of huge kettles of boiling water. A score of men were wounded and at least one was killed in the course of the long battle. One John S. Kirk, a watchman, was shot to death by Streeter followers in one of the clashes, and for this the Captain served nine months in Joliet prison.

Forays into Streeterville became nightly affairs. Chicagoans picked up their morning papers to see what was the latest from the Streeterville front, just as they look now to read about the latest bomb outrages. One night, shortly before the end, Chicago observed the amazing spectacle of two armed camps actually intrenched within 150 feet of each other, blazing away all night with shotguns, campfires burning behind each line of trenches. On one side were 150 special deputies mobilized by the "capitalists"; on the other, Captain Streeter and his loyal followers. Lots of shots, but few, if any, casualties.

FINALLY, on a cold winter day 10 years ago, the "capitalists" caught the Captain unaware. In daylight they descended upon the "Castle" armed with all sorts of legal documents, ousted Ma and the Captain, threw the furniture into the street and demolished the building. Even with this blow Cap'n Streeter was unbowed. With Ma he spent the night in front of the wreck, warming his aged body by the heat of a campfire. But in a day or two he retired to the houseboat "Vamoose" and sailed away to the sanctuary of South Chicago, across the Indiana line. Three years later he died on the boat.

Ma Streeter attempted to carry on the war after that. She proclaimed herself "Empress" of Streeterville. But three years ago she received a double coup de grace. First, the old houseboat was towed into the lake and sunk as a common nuisance for cluttering up the harbor and violating the prohibition laws. Then, in a $500,000,000 suit which Streeter had brought against the Chicago Title and Trust Company, a Federal Judge decided that she had not been the Captain's legal wife. She is now living on the charity of the other heirs.

all the jobs you're setting out to tackle."

"What of that, Mr. Carmichael? These things have to be done, don't they? People like Roger and my husband have to be taken care of, don't they? The village society has to be put on its feet again, doesn't it? And look at the dreadful state the whole world's in! War and famine! War and famine have to be banished, don't they?"

"You mean right now, Mrs. Bender? You mean today?"

"I do mean now. It is intolerable that such abominations should continue. Shouldn't we banish them from the world?"

"Yes," he said, "as soon as we can. But I was wrong to warn you that you were taking more on your shoulders than Napoleon Bonaparte took on his. I've discovered what's the matter with you, Mrs. Bender."

"That's simple enough, I should think. Here I am laid up, with my family and my community and the whole world all going wrong. When I get out again"——

"No," Mr. Carmichael said. "Your good works are beautiful, Mrs. Bender, and we all need you to continue them. But, when you get out again, you must surrender a little of the burden of the universe."

"To whom? You don't expect me to wait for evolution to remedy everything, do you?"

"No," he said. "There must have been something before evolution, I think, and I believe, if you'd ever listen to me in church, you'd discover"——

"What would I discover?"

"You've just asked to whom you might leave a little of the responsibility for the universe," he said. "You might discover the answer. It seems to be the theme of my weekly unheard discourse."

Avoid GRAY Hair

YES, GRAY HAIR can be avoided if you know Kolor-Bak, the clean, colorless liquid which brings color back to hair, whether blonde, auburn, brown or black. So gently and gradually that others can't detect the change, Kolor-Bak brings back a natural appearance without harming the finest hair or the most tender scalp. Wise men or women won't use any preparations which so often produce weird colors worse than gray; Kolor-Bak is a very different proposition! No worry over shade—the one bottle is right for all. No uncertainty—you needn't experiment on even one lock of hair—Kolor-Bak is sold on a money-back guarantee.

Easy to Choose Right Pro-phy-lac-tic

. . . and to win brighter teeth, healthier gums

1. Tufted Pro-phy-lac-tic. Most dental arches are full-formed and require this type of brush.

2. Oval Pro-phy-lac-tic. Scientifically designed for small, more sharply oval arches.

3. Masso Pro-phy-lac-tic. For dental arches that have tender gums. Massages as it cleans.

Full-formed dental arch

Dental arches (teeth and gums) differ. Each requires a different type of tooth brush to win gloriously white teeth, coral-firm gums. Let your mirror tell your type and help you choose correct Pro-phy-lac-tic Brush.

Small, oval dental arch

THE very next time you look into a mirror, face your features with these facts: 1. Dental arches (teeth and gums) differ in shape and condition . . . 2. No one tooth brush suits all arches, say dentists . . . 3. Pro-phy-lac-tic now offers you a brush exactly designed for your type of dental arch.

If you have a normal, full-formed face and dental arch, the Tufted Pro-phy-lac-tic is right for you. Or, your features might be more petite, revealing a smaller-than-average and more sharply oval arch. Then a smaller, tapering brush is the one you should use—the Oval Pro-phy-lac-tic.

You may have either of these types and still require a totally different brush. For if your mirror shows pale and tender gums—a dental arch of subnormal condition—then you need the special care of the Masso Pro-phy-lac-tic. This brush massages the gums as it cleans the teeth.

Pick yourself to win

Place yourself. It's easy and fascinating. And . . . pick yourself to win a sparkling new health of teeth and gums you never dreamed would be yours. The right Pro-phy-lac-tic will help you do it.

Marvelous substance banishes "YELLOW MASK"

THIS is one bit of scientific news that will bring joy to your heart.

After years of effort dental science has succeeded in embodying in a smooth, creamy tooth paste a remarkable substance that removes that repellent yellowish tinge from pretty white teeth. Technically it is known as "Tri-Calcium Phosphate." But your dentist will tell you that it is that white, silky powder he uses to erase stains and impart that enchanting polish. And more—that it is the finest whitening agent known!

When embodied in a creamy, fragrant tooth paste, as we have succeeded in doing in ORPHOS TOOTH PASTE, this wonderful substance removes "Yellow Mask" as an eraser would a pencil mark. Leaving the teeth an exquisite, pearly white. Beaming and lustrous like newly manicured nails.

"Yellow Mask" is so unbecoming. Look in your mirror . . . what does the reflection say? If it reveals yellowish teeth, ask for ORPHOS tomorrow at your favorite drug or department store. Whiteness is pledged you . . see our guarantee below.

The Brahm-Mitchellette Motor Company's NEW HOME

The new home of the Brahm-Mitchellette Motor Co., at 3337 South Kingshighway, is an example of substantial business growth due to the energy and aggressiveness of two men whose names it bears.

The business is owned and operated by Elmer A. Brahm and Joseph Mitchellette, who began selling automobiles eight years ago. While serving as salesmen, they saw their opportunity, secured the agency for the OAKLAND and PONTIAC automobiles, locating their new venture in a small store room on Boyle Avenue. The quality of their cars with the excellent service rendered by the new Company assured success. The agency grew from the beginning. Their new home came as a need. They applied progressive methods and square dealings in serving St. Louis. The attractive building at their new location is evidence of the public's approval and shows the measure in which they have gained and held the esteem of their growing clientele.

The structure pictured below is one of the many new enterprises located in Kingshighway Hills, developed by the Cyrus Crane Willmore Co., Boatmen's Bank Building, where magnificent apartments, residences and business blocks stand on what was a wilderness only a few years ago.

JOHN WUNDERLICH Architect

The erection of this beautiful building was made possible through financing by the investment house of WOLFF-SCHIELD & CO., American Trust Building. They underwrote and are offering to investors the 6% First Mortgage Gold Bonds secured by the property.

Lose 20 lbs. as I Di

Why should not men as well as women keep their figures, their health, their vitality? Excess fat blights both alike. And normal conditions are as easy for one sex as the other.

About 30 years ago science discovered a great cause of excess fat. It lies in a gland deficiency which science can supply. Physicians the world over now treat obesity in this modern way.

That method is embodied in Marmola prescription tablets. People have used them for 20 years—millions of boxes of them. Note the results in every circle. Ask your friends about them. Slender figures are many times as common as they were.

Abnormal exercise or diet is neither required nor advised, but moderation helps. Correct cause. Simply take Marmola tablets until weight down to normal.

A pamphlet in package gives formula compl Also the reasons the many good This is done to any fear of harm.

Consider that Marmola has, for 20 been winning you want. In an pleasant way. D you think it time to learn how much scientific method means to you yours? The cost is a trifle. You would gladly give many times as much what a normal figure means. Then how easily people get it.

Marmola prescription tablets are sold by all druggists at $1.00 per box. Any druggist who is out will order from his jobber.

Smart Society Decrees Dark, Long-appearing Lashes the Vogue!

Expressive eyes are as unmistakable a mark of refinement as cultured speech. They complete the note of unaffected charm which brilliant society decrees conventional . . . Matronly dignity is enhanced by the added loveliness lended to the eyes by accentuating the darkness and length of their lashes, and debutante smartness is vivified . . . Fortunately, dark and long appearing lashes are very easy to acquire. A simple brush stroke of Solid Maybelline or Waterproof Liquid Maybelline produces the effect instantly. Maybelline is the most delightful preparation of its kind to use, and it is perfectly harmless, as millions of women know.

THE MODE AND THE MANNEQUIN

MISS GERTRUDE CLARK, famous New York mannequin, in a black and white printed crepe afternoon frock from BERGDORF-GOODMAN. Her black suede shoes are worn with Phoenix Hosiery in the Vanity shade—an alluring beige color.

Clothes ~HOSE~ and Effect

Neither the debutante in the spotlight of a brilliant season, nor the actress playing to a critical audience, is quite so dependent for success upon a perfect appearance as is the professional mannequin. With the mannequin, personality cannot compensate for any shortcomings of costume. She is judged entirely from the standpoint of clothes and effect. ¶ Beautiful accessories are essential. And to meet the requirement of hose which equal in loveliness the exquisite costumes they model, mannequins in leading New York fashion salons regularly select Phoenix.

PHOENIX HOSIERY

The fineness and sheen which make Phoenix Hosiery so necessary to the ensemble of the mannequin will have the same beautiful effect when worn by you. Ask at any counter where Phoenix Hosiery is sold for a new booklet, "The Mode and the Mannequin," in which eight famous models discuss the matter of correct dress.

THIS BUSINESS OF BEAUTY QUEENS—No one can recall how it started, but nowadays almost every fair, convention, pageant, sport, college and industry has to have a "beauty queen." Undoubtedly the appeal of beauty is universal and pictorially some very fine effects have been achieved. Such a setting as the picture to the right rises almost to the rank of art.

Philadelphia, Penna.

"WHEN PIMPLES started to break out on my face I was frightfully embarrassed. I had terrific headaches too, with frequent stomach pains and constipation. Seeing Fleischmann's Yeast advertised, I decided to try it. Soon I noticed that I was less constipated and didn't feel so cross. And when my pimples disappeared, too, my family was so impressed that several of them began eating Yeast themselves, with good results."

Edith Veronica Edwards

"A lumber camp was no place for a sick man"

Seattle, Wash.

"Ever since my earliest days in the lumber camps I can remember being bothered with boils. Often so bad I couldn't sleep.

"One time the camp doctor lanced 13 on my legs. There I was, hobbling around, no good for anything, just when there was the most work to do —2 weeks of hard chopping.

"Indigestion, too. I was a sick man! Finally I went to the drug store where I had bought many different patent medicines. The druggist said, 'Do you want my honest advice?' 'Yes' I said. 'Then lay off medicines and try Fleischmann's Yeast.'

"I did, and inside of three months —no more boils. Indigestion gone, too . . . I can't praise Yeast too highly."

Dave E. Bartl

WHERE drugs and cathartics have failed, millions have found lasting relief in a simple, non-habit-forming food.

Fresh as new celery, Fleischmann's Yeast combats the poisons from stagnating food wastes. It stimulates the colon muscles. Keeps your whole intestinal tract active, clean. Your skin clears. Digestive troubles vanish. Your youthful appetite returns.

Buy 2 or 3 days' supply of Fleischmann's Yeast at a time from your grocer and keep in any cool, dry place. Also at many leading cafeterias, lunch counters, soda fountains. Write for latest booklet on Yeast in the diet—free. Health Research Dept. N-958, The Fleischmann Company, 701 Washington St., New York.

"I HAD STUDIED so hard at school that when I graduated I was completely run down. The principal had advised that I be given a long rest. Instead, Mother sent me to the family doctor, who said the best thing for me was Fleischmann's Yeast . . . After a month I was amazed at my improvement. Now I am dancing for pictures all day and in a local theater in the evening—but with the help of Yeast I am more than equal to the strain."

"I FELT IN NEED of athletic exercise, so with 15 or 20 friends I formed an athletic club. It was a great success—kept me in fine trim.

"Then came the 'flu'—a severe attack—leaving me badly run down, and constipated. For two years I dragged along, trying various medicines and treatments . . . . Then I read about Fleischmann's Yeast and decided to try that. I ate it every day. It proved so effective in my case that my brother and mother have also become converted to eating it."

An easy way to health, vigor:

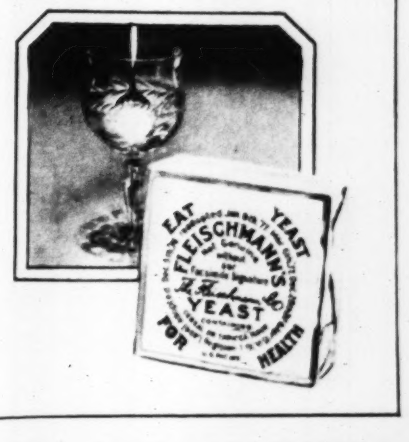
Eat three cakes of Fleischmann's Yeast regularly every day, one cake before each meal or between meals. Eat it just plain, or dissolved in water (hot or cold) or any other way you like. For stubborn constipation physicians recommend drinking one cake in a glass of hot water—not scalding—before each meal and before going to bed. And train yourself to form a regular daily habit. As you are benefited by eating Yeast you can gradually discontinue dangerous, habit-forming cathartics.



The NEW FORD BUSINESS COUP

An unusually good car for the business an professional man because of its Beauty

Safety
Comfort
Reliability
Low first-cost
Economy and Low up-keep

Here is a photograph of the new Ford Business Coupe. Top covering and rear quarter are of long-wearing heavily coated leatherette. Rear deck has a luggage space of 14 cubic feet and the opening is 35 3/8 inches wide. Large parcel shelf behind seat is another convenient feature.

THE new Ford Business Coupe has been specially designed to meet the needs of business executives, salesmen, physicians, and the thousands upon thousands of other men and women who use an automobile for its practical utility in their daily work as well as for pleasure in their hours of leisure.

You will like its low, trim, graceful lines—its beautiful colors—its snug protection from all kinds of weather—the generous seat room—the unusually large luggage space provided in the rear deck—the rich simplicity of its finish and full-nickeled appointments—its alert speed and quick acceleration.

Security in driving is another feature you will appreciate in the new Ford Business Coupe because of the safety of the steel body, four-wheel brakes and Triplex shatter-proof windshield.

Long trips over rough roads and long hours at the wheel are made easier because of the restful tilt of the deeply cushioned seat and the easy-riding comfort of the new transverse springs and Houdaille shock absorbers. The economy of 20 to 30 miles per gallon of gasoline means a considerable saving in the cost of running this car for your own use or the use of your business.

But greater even than this beauty and these details of operation, comfort and convenience is the mechanical reliability which is such an outstanding feature of the performance of all the new Ford cars.

This reliability means a great deal to every motorist and is of special importance to men and women who drive a car many miles each day the whole year through. It is the direct result of the simplicity of mechanical design of the new Ford and the enduring quality which has been built into every part.

For the low price of the new Ford is not due to cheapness of material or construction, but to established Ford methods of manufacturing and production which cut many dollars off the price you would ordinarily have to pay for a car of this kind.

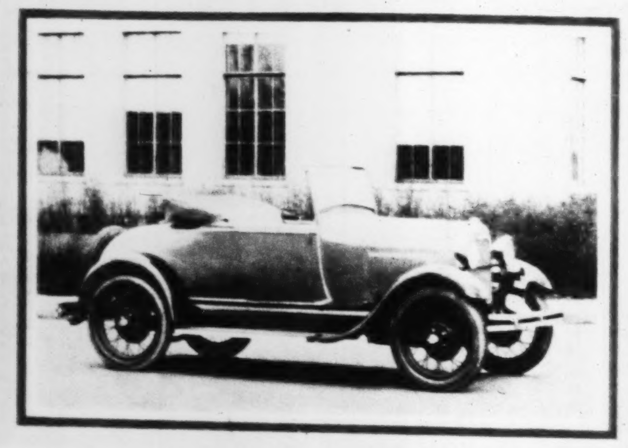
Every purchaser of a new Ford shares the benefits of the Ford policy of selling at a small margin of profit—of owning the source of raw materials—of constantly giving greater value without increased cost.

Because of this policy, the new Ford is not just a new model—not just a new automobile—but the advanced expression of a wholly new idea in modern, economical transportation.

The new Ford Business Coupe sells for $495, which is the same price as the regular Coupe and the Tudor Sedan. The Roadster sells for $385, the Phaeton for $395, and the Sport Coupe, with wide substantial rumble seat, for $550.

All of the new Ford cars are furnished in a pleasing variety of beautiful two-tone color harmonies.

The prices given above are F. O. B. Detroit. They include four Houdaille hydraulic shock absorbers, mechanical, internal expanding-shoe type four-wheel brakes, Triplex shatter-proof glass windshield, gasoline gage on instrument panel, windshield wiper, dash light, mirror, combination stop and tail light, theft-proof coincidental ignition lock, and high pressure grease gun lubrication.



The new Ford Roadster is another good car for business use. Top may be raised quickly and easily. Furnished with rumble seat if desired at slight extra cost. Your choice of a variety of colors.

IT'S A WOMAN I MET LAST WEEK AT A RUMMAGE SALE. I INVITED HER TO CALL ON ME AND SHE'S BEEN HERE SINCE TWO OCLOCK WAITING FOR ME TO ASK HER TO STAY FOR DINNER. SUCH NERVE! SHE'S GETTING READY TO GO NOW. DON'T YOU DARE OFFER TO TAKE HER HOME IN OUR CAR OR—
SH-HH! SHE'S PHONING NOW!
HELLO! HELLO! HELLO! HELLO! BUCKLYN?
YES, BUCKLYN, I'M AT THE BUNGLE HOME..........IT'S ON SUNKEN HEIGHTS TERRACE. THE THIRD HOUSE FROM THE CORNER..........HOW LONG?......ALL RIGHT, I'LL WAIT.......AND HURRY.
IT WONT BE LONG NOW.
I'LL FIX DINNER AFTER SHE LEAVES.
THE MOMENT THE DOCTOR SAW ME HE TURNED TO BUCKLYN AND SAID, I WASH MY HANDS OF THIS CASE, UNLESS THIS POOR WOMAN IS IMMEDIATELY RUSHED TO THE HOSPITAL. WELL BUCKLYN HAD BEEN THROUGH THE SITUATION SO OFTEN DURING MY OTHER OPERATIONS THAT HE REALIZED—
THERE'S THE DOOR BELL. I'LL ANSWER IT.
IT'S YOUR HUSBAND TO TAKE YOU HOME. SO SORRY YOU HAVE TO RUSH AWAY. DEAR.
NOT JUNGLE! BUNGLE!
GLAD TO MEET YOUR ACQUAINTANCE BANGLE. IF I HADN'T TOLD OUR MAID THAT I'D RUSH RIGHT BACK HOME TO SEE A MAN WHO'S TO CALL FOR ME I'D....
OH SIT DOWN FOR ONE MOMENT, BUCKLYN, GIVE ME YOUR HAT.
BUCKLYN, YOU KNOW WHAT THE DOCTOR TOLD YOU ABOUT DISCUSSING THE BOLSHEVIKI.
I DON'T CARE. IF ANYTHING GETS MY GOAT IT'S THE IDEA THAT ARE WE GONNA LET OUR COUNTRY BE RUN BY A LOT OF BOLSHEVIKI? ARE WE? I SAY NO! BUT YOU ASK ME IF—THERE'S THE PHONE!
I'LL ANSWER IT.
IT'S FOR YOU, MR...? I FORGOT YOUR NAME AGAIN. THIS PARTY ON THE PHONE ASKED FOR DOGGY.
THE CALL MUST BE FROM THAT OUT-OF-TOWN CUSTOMER YOU EXPECTED TO CALL YOU, BUCKLYN.
OH, YES. WHERE'S YOUR PHONE, AH GEORGE?
HELLO.....WHO.........OH, YES OF COURSE I REMEMBER YOU.......WHAT DO YOU WANT TO SEE ME ABOUT?.......WELL ALL RIGHT.......I'M AT THE BUNGLE HOME.......SUNKEN HEIGHTS TERRACE. THIRD HOUSE FROM CORNER........COME RIGHT UP.
? ? ? ? ?
LETS SEE. I DIDN'T CATCH THE NAMES OF THESE TWO GENTS. MR.......AH WHAT'S YOUR NAME AGAIN?
FISH! JOE FISH! I BROUGHT THESE OTHER BOYS WITH ME FOR THE RIDE.
NICE FLOORS HERE! HAVE WE GOT ANY MUSIC?
JAZZ?
WELL BOYS JUST MAKE YOURSELVES AT HOME AND—
THERE'S THE PHONE! WE TOLD OUR WIVES WE WERE COMING HERE.
I'LL ANSWER THE PHONE.
TELL THE GALS TO GRAB A TAXI AND RUN UP HERE, PHIL!
TEE HEE! YOU BOYS DARED US TO COME HERE AND SO HERE WE ARE.
THERE'S THE TAXI DRIVER BLOWING HIS HORN AGAIN. ED, YOU PAY HIM, WILL YOU?
IT'S RIGHT NEXT TO THE POLICE STATION. GO TO THE BACK DOOR. ASK FOR OSCAR. TELL HIM I SENT YOU. ALSO GET SOME GINGER ALE.
AND I SAID TO HER—
IN THE DAYS OF AULD LANG SYNE
LISTEN, HORTENSE, LETS HAVE SOME MORE REAL PEPPY DANCE MUSIC.
SUCH CRUST!
GO IN AGAIN AND ORDER THEM TO LEAVE!
A PARTY AT YOUR HOUSE? AND WHO'S THROWING THIS PARTY?
I DON'T KNOW. I ASKED THEM FOUR DIFFERENT TIMES TO LEAVE. WHEN I ORDERED THEM OUT THEY GOT HARD AND THREW ME OUT OF MY OWN HOME. YOU'D BETTER GET HELP. LOTS OF IT, BECAUSE I FOUND OUT HOW FAR ONE MAN CAN GET WITH THAT CREW!

HOW ARE YOU COMING WITH YOUR AVIATION LESSONS, ROD?
WELL, I'M NOT READY FOR AN OVERSEAS FLIGHT YET, BUT I'VE SOAKED UP THREE CHAPTERS --- I'VE GOT THE FUNDAMENTALS
BEFORE WE FORM OUR CLUB TO STIMULATE AVIATION WE'VE GOT TO GET AN AIRPLANE --- I WONDER IF THE ONE THE FELLOW OFFERED ME FOR ONE HUNDRED DOLLARS IS ANY GOOD
THERE'S JUST ONE WAY TO FIND OUT AND THAT'S TRY IT OUT OURSELVES
I DIDN'T KNOW YOU COULD BUY A PLANE THAT CHEAP
YOU'D BE SURPRISED, ROD, HOW CHEAP THEY REALLY ARE --- THE "SPIRIT OF ST. LOUIS" ONLY COST THIRTEEN THOUSAND DOLLARS
HE SHOULDN'T ATTEMPT STUNTS LIKE THAT WITHOUT ANY INSURANCE
OH DEAR, I WISH I WEREN'T SO CHICKEN-HEARTED - I CAN'T BEAR TO LOOK WELL, I GUESS I COULDN'T'VE LANDED IT ANY BETTER THAN THAT MYSELF
CRASH
OH BONNIE, SOMETHING TERRIBLE'S HAPPENED! RUSH RIGHT OVER AND BRING ALL THE GANG
SHALL WE BRING OUR UKES?
I'LL SUGGEST A FUND TO ERECT A STATUE TO HONOR ROD AND HIS BEAUTIFUL SACRIFICE TO THE ADVANCEMENT OF AVIATION
WE'RE HERE, DORA
FOLKS - STOP! YOU DON'T UNDERSTAND - I DIDN'T INVITE YOU OVER TO A PARTY - I HAVE TERRIBLE NEWS THAT WILL STUN YOU WITH SORROW
THE PLANE CRASHED FROM 500 FEET --- I COULDN'T BEAR TO VIEW THE WRECKAGE - POOR ROD
I'LL BET THAT SPOILED HIS AFTERNOON
ROD WOULDN'T WANT US TO BE MOURNFUL -- REMEMBER HE USED TO SAY HE WANTED US TO PLAY "VO-DO-DE-OH-DO" AT HIS FUNERAL
I GUESS YOU'RE RIGHT, WESLEY --- WE'LL MAKE IT A PARTY AND JUST STOP THE MUSIC AT TWELVE FOR ONE MINUTE TO PAY A SILENT TRIBUTE TO OUR FALLEN HERO
SHE AIN'T SO DUMB!

Fate is funny— Ella, once slavey for her stepfamily, now has hired them as maids. They're broke, you see
MY IDEA OF THE HEIGHT OF LUXURY IS BREAKFAST IN BED WITH THE STEPFAMILY TO WAIT ON ME!
MRS. CINDERS WILL COOK BREAKFAST, PRISSIE WILL SERVE IT, AND LOTTA, YOU MAY DRAW THE ROYAL BATH!
NASTY LITTLE SNIP!
I'D LIKE TO SERVE HER BREAKFAST OVER HER EARS!
I'M SO SICK OF THIS JOB, I'M GOING TO GET SICK TO GET OUT OF IT!
YOU'LL HAVE TO WAIT FOR YOUR BREAKFAST— LOTTA'S BEEN TAKEN SERIOUSLY ILL!
OH-H-H— MY HEAD— MY FEET— MY BACK— MY NECK—
DON'T FORGET YOUR NERVE—THOUGH THERE'S NOTHING WRONG WITH THAT!
WOW! OW! HELP!
OGEEGOSH— MAYBE SHE REALLY IS SICK!
IF SHE CAN MOVE THAT FAST WHEN SHE'S SICK, SHE'LL BREAK SPEED RECORDS WHEN SHE FEELS RIGHT!
AFTER YOU'VE SAT THERE LONG ENOUGH TO REST YOURSELVES, GO AHEAD WITH THE REST OF THE ACT —STARTING WITH BREAKFAST!
Reg. U. S. Pat. Off.; Copyright 1928, by Metropolitan Newspaper Service
LOOK, ELLA— THE LITTLE DOCTOR WHO MADE THE QUICKEST CURE ON RECORD! I WOUND HIM UP, SLIPPED HIM IN THE BED, AND LOTTA DID THE REST!

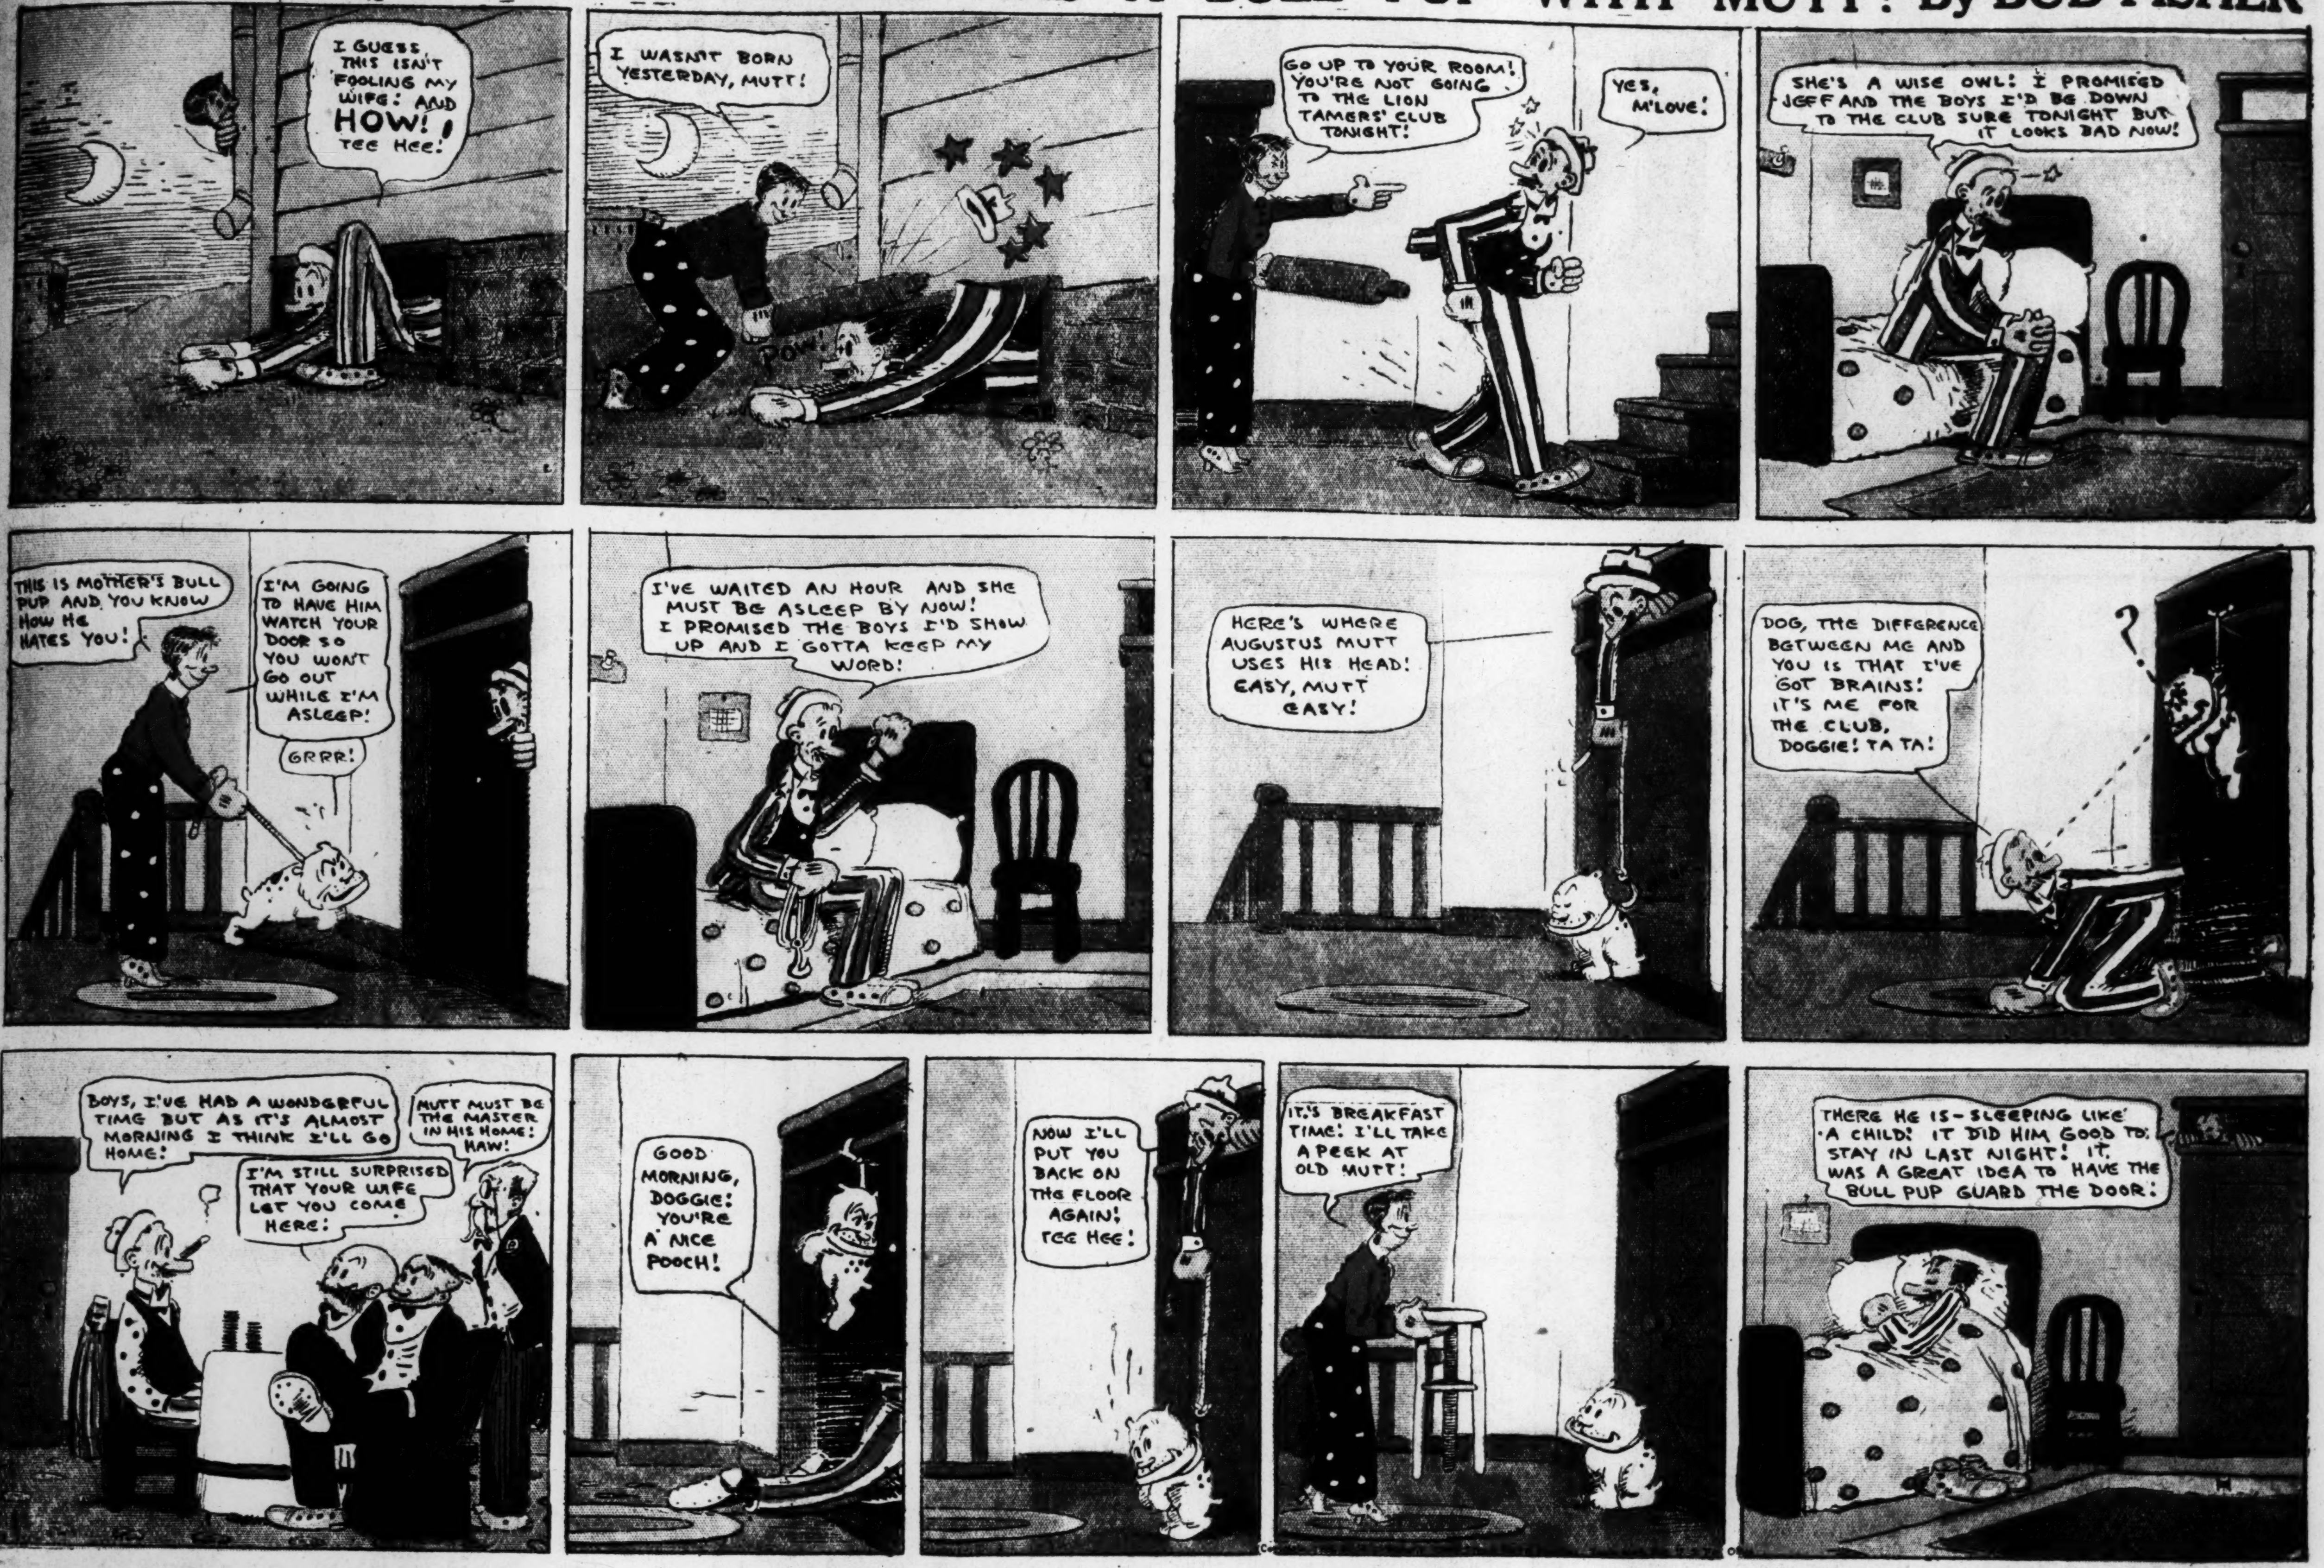
MUTT AND JEFF WHAT CHANCE HAS A BULL PUP WITH MUTT? By BUD FISHER



I GUESS THIS ISN'T FOOLING MY WIFE! AND HOW! TEE HEE!
I WASN'T BORN YESTERDAY, MUTT!
POW!
GO UP TO YOUR ROOM! YOU'RE NOT GOING TO THE LION TAMERS' CLUB TONIGHT!
YES, M'LOVE!
SHE'S A WISE OWL! I PROMISED JEFF AND THE BOYS I'D BE DOWN TO THE CLUB SURE TONIGHT BUT IT LOOKS BAD NOW!
THIS IS MOTHER'S BULL PUP AND YOU KNOW HOW HE HATES YOU!
I'M GOING TO HAVE HIM WATCH YOUR DOOR SO YOU WON'T GO OUT WHILE I'M ASLEEP!
GRRR!
I'VE WAITED AN HOUR AND SHE MUST BE ASLEEP BY NOW! I PROMISED THE BOYS I'D SHOW UP AND I GOTTA KEEP MY WORD!
HERE'S WHERE AUGUSTUS MUTT USES HIS HEAD! EASY, MUTT EASY!
DOG, THE DIFFERENCE BETWEEN ME AND YOU IS THAT I'VE GOT BRAINS! IT'S ME FOR THE CLUB, DOGGIE! TA TA!
BOYS, I'VE HAD A WONDERFUL TIME BUT AS IT'S ALMOST MORNING I THINK I'LL GO HOME!
MUTT MUST BE THE MASTER IN HIS HOME! HAW!
I'M STILL SURPRISED THAT YOUR WIFE LET YOU COME HERE!
GOOD MORNING, DOGGIE! YOU'RE A NICE POOCH!
NOW I'LL PUT YOU BACK ON THE FLOOR AGAIN! TEE HEE!
IT'S BREAKFAST TIME! I'LL TAKE A PEEK AT OLD MUTT!
THERE HE IS—SLEEPING LIKE A CHILD! IT DID HIM GOOD TO STAY IN LAST NIGHT! IT WAS A GREAT IDEA TO HAVE THE BULL PUP GUARD THE DOOR!
